U.S. To Register Most Beefs In Economic Meet

Many Items Will Be Discussed by Ministers

OTTAWA (CP)—In a switch from the usual situation, the United States will be registering the most of the beefs as Canadian and U.S. cabinet members meet here this week to discuss points of economic friction between them.

Issues involving foreign investment, the auto industry, grain and magazines will be raised at the Wednesday-Thursday meeting of the joint cabinet committee on trade and economic affairs.

On each point, the loudest complaints are expected to be made by the powerful contingent that includes senators and officials from Washington.

The committee, set up in 1963, had its last meeting in Washington. Most of its meetings, held almost once a year, have featured Canada's problems in relations with its huge southern neighbor.

There will be five cabinet members from each country.

RUSK HEADS TEAM

On the U.S. team are State Secretary Dean Rusk, Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon, Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman and Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges.

Among 23 top U.S. officials will be Under-Secretary of State George Ball, who in a speech Saturday mentioned some of the U.S. complaints that will be aired here this week.

There is no important friction on the major item on the agenda — a discussion of the "Kennedy round" of international tariff-cutting negotiations opening next week at Geneva under GATT, the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Canada supports the U.S. initiative for major reductions of international trade barriers, but discussion here likely will centre on ways of bringing this about. Disagreement between the U.S. and the six-nation European Economic Community has prevented accord being reached on certain rules for the GATT negotiations.

The Canadian government is under pressure from many of its Liberal supporters in Parliament to be even tougher in its

NewBounce Witnessed In Army

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — There's a new bounce in the Canadian Army these days.

Though there are a few long faces at headquarters about who will be declared supernumary in the defence de artment reshuffle, the big majority of officers look on integration and the army's newly assigned roles as just what the doctor ordered.

The big reason: this time the promise of new equipment and new tasks which will get the soldier away what often can be a stultifying garrison life.

"Integration is going to be a morale-builder instead of the reverse," an enthusiastic senior officer said Monday.

The army stole a long march on its brother services by beginning two years ago a study of long-term plans and needs. By the time the government while paper on defence came down last month, the army was already tied out in the field a new concept of a service battalion which, in effect, is integration of the support services in the field.

EFFORT SAVINGS

Big financial savings are expected to be made by defence department integration of such services as procurement, supply, communications and movement of personnel. These savings will go for new equipment, giving the services an incentive to cut administrative costs.

The army has new armored troop carriers and cargo helicopters on order. Beyond these, it is to look for:

A new armored reconnaissance vehicle; a new five-ton truck; better anti-tank weapons; a new fifty pound gun from NATO to replace the Centurion; more self-propelled artillery; and an anti-aircraft weapon. The aim is more armor, less infantry.

1. The 6,200-man brigade in Europe will remain there but will be able to deploy farther eastward—that is, up against

Schooling Tax Aids Urged

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons must be primarily concerned with education under the constitution, but there's no doubt that it is partially concerned with the subject under the income tax act.

So the Commons inched its way Monday through the dull detail of a series of income tax amendments—the debate fell to 37 at one point—and thread of education weaved its way through all the discussions. It ranged from gentle observations to hammering criticisms.

Virtually all of it came from the opposition benches; and virtually all who touched on the subject said the federal government is not making a big enough contribution to the cause of education.

There was no shortage of suggestions.

P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe East) suggested that the amount of money taxpayers give to education through municipal taxation should be deducted from their taxable incomes of $4,000 or less."

Another suggestion from Mr. Rynard was that family allowances be continued until students have finished high school. Family allowances are being extended to 16- and 17-year-olds but Mr. Rynard wanted to know why they don't go on until the completion of high school.

It was also this particular topic was being discussed that Colin Cameron (NDP — Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) dismissed any suggestions that these extended allowance payments be linked to taxation of provincial rights.

They are "no business of any provincial government" he said, in reference to statements made earlier by Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec. If the federal government accepted Mr. Lesage's views it would be "another disastrous step toward the disintegration of our central national authority."

Mr. Cameron, like other opposition spokesmen, said the budget didn't go far enough in easing the tax burden of students. He said that besides tuition fees, the cost in travel and other education expenses should be treated as deductions from taxable income.

The comments came as the House opened debate on preliminary legislation to implement income tax changes announced in the March 16 budget of Finance Minister Gordon.

The government has already announced an agreement with the provinces on a formula whereby the new family allowances will not be paid in Quebec. Instead, Ottawa will receive extra taxing powers—probably an added share of personal income taxes—in lieu of the payments.

In opening the debate, Mr. Gordon introduced an amendment to the tax-change resolution to strengthen the government's recent decision to give all provinces a larger share of personal income taxes, a general change in the federal - provincial tax arrangement.

Under the new deal, the central government next year will provide an abatement of 21 per cent in personal income taxes in favor of the provinces. This provincial share will rise to 24 per cent in 1965 and 20 per cent in 1966.

Mr. Gordon touched on another aspect of the arrangement reached with the Quebec government. This would provide that the proposed federal interest - free loans to university students could be taken over by Quebec and any other province wishing to, in return for financial compensation from Ottawa.

The finance minister said the student loan legislation will be introduced as soon as possible.

Tendency for Secrecy To Be Overdone in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — There is a tendency for secrecy to be overdone in Ottawa.

This is one of the main conclusions of the royal commission on banking and finance in its study of monetary policy and the workings of the Bank of Canada.

Its report calls for steps to improve public understanding of monetary policy "and to continue dismantling the barricades of secrecy still surrounding central banking."

The commission said the Bank of Canada must take the lead in providing the public with information and ideas to stimulate "intelligent and informed analysis and debate [financial policy generally."

Not all the blame for present shortcomings is placed on the bank.

Economists "all too rarely" take part in informed discussion of economic policy matters — especially monetary policy, the report says. They were asked to take a more active role.

The financial press also was asked to improve its "standard of commentary and analysis."

Of the central bank, the report said:

"Mystery leads to misinformation, and monetary policy needs informed public opinion to function effectively and acceptably."

For example, changes in the bank rate should be accompanied by as clear a statement as possible of the reasoning behind them.

There is no virtue in the central bank confining its communications to a curious system of flashes when more direct and understandable means are available."

The central bank contacts with the bond and money markets could be broader and "less Olympian," the report said.

"The more information that markets can be given and the more they can be left to work out the pattern of interest rates without undue dependence on the authorities when broader considerations allow, the more useful and effective they are likely to become."

Walter Thomson, Former Ont. Liberal Leader, Dies

TORONTO (CP)—Walter Cunningham Thomson, 68, former leader of the Ontario Liberal party, died of a heart attack in hospital Monday.

Mr. Thomson was born at Hastings, Ont., and attended public and high schools at Norwood, Ont. He graduated from Osgoode Hall law school here in 1923 and was called to the bar of Ontario in 1924.

In 1944 he was appointed Ontario solicitor for the Veterans' Land Act and was later vice-president of the Toronto Liberal Association and the Central Ontario Liberal Association.

He was first elected to the House of Commons in a general election June 11, 1945, and resigned the Commons seat for Ontario riding to lead the provincial Liberal party in a vain effort to wrest power from the Progressive Conservatives in November, 1951.

He resigned as Liberal leader May 31, 1953.

In the 1961 election, the Liberals took seven seats while the Progressive Conservative party took an overwhelming 71. The CCF party took two seats with other candidates winning two for a total of 26 seats. The previous standings showed Liberals with 13, PC 53, CCF 21 and others three.

Mr. Thomson was defeated in his own Ontario riding by CCF candidate T. D. Thomas. Mayor Michael Starr of Oshawa was runner-up to Mr. Thomas.

During the bitterly fought election campaign of that year, the first as Liberal leader, Mr. Thomson promised a contributory hospital - care scheme within the first year of forming a government and sharply criticized the administration of Premier Leslie Frost.

Mr. Thompson, the son of a Presbyterian minister, served overseas during the First World War with the 21st Battalion, attaining the rank of major before he was invalided out in 1918 after suffering trench fever and shell shock.

He worked nights to put himself through Osgoode Hall and established his own practice in 1925. In 1930—he settled on a 127-acre farm near Pickering, Ont., with an interest in dairy cattle and dairymen's organizations.

Mr. Thompson's first bid for office was an unsuccessful attempt at the provincial Liberal leadership in 1947. At the time he was president of the Central Ontario Liberal Association.

He was defeated by Harry C. Nixon, member of the legislature for Brant, since 1919, who died in October, 1961.

Lobby Keeping Cheese off U.S. Market

TORONTO (CP)—An Ottawa-Washington cheese lobby is keeping tiny Canadian cheddar from the United States market, says Donald C. Mac Donald, leader of Ontario's New Democratic Party.

Only about 900,000 pounds of old Canadian cheddar cheese can be exported to the U.S. each year, he told the legislature. In Mr. Macdonald's words, this amount was only a "mouse bite."

He identified a major U.S. cheese manufacturer, which also operates in Canada and the other parts of the world, as being the lobbying force against easement in U.S. cheese import restrictions.

Mr. MacDonald said this company (Kraft food) not only was lobbying in Washington against any relaxation in U.S. imports, but was lobbying in Ottawa against any representations it might make to Washington on behalf of Canadian cheese manufacturers.

"I have an early suspicion that it has to do with election funds," he said.

Ontario cheese manufacturers could sell millions of pounds of old Canadian cheddar to the U.S. if import restrictions were lifted, said the NDP leader.

Economics Minister Randall promised to see whether it could "open any doors." He had heard complaints by Canadians who had visited Florida that they could not buy Canadian cheddar there.

Says Russian Threat Grows More Deadly

Russian strength "is itself is formidable enough to evoke concern," the supreme allied commander for Europe said. The concern is greatly aggravated, however, by our knowledge that these forces exist to serve a fundamentally aggressive policy."

Lemnitzer's remarks were in a statement prepared for a closed session of the House foreign affairs committee.

He said: "The Soviets remain steadfastly committed to the objective of world domination, and have clearly demonstrated that they are capable of using every means available to them to achieve this objective."

Attack Castle From Positions 200 Yards Away

Serious Implications On UN Role in Cyprus

By HAL McCLURE

NICOSIA (AP) — Greek Cypriot forces brought the Turkish-held Kyrenia Pass under fire for the first time today and sporadically attacked St. Hilarion Castle from positions only about 200 yards away.

The Greek - Cypriot fighters are led by Interior Minister Polykyarpos Georgehadjis.

A UN officer said the Greeks threatened to plaster Kyrenia road, a link between Nicosia and the Turkish-held highlands near the north coast, with mortar shells.

Compared with earlier actions in the Kyrenia area, the scale of the fighting remained minor. There was a brief flurry of shots about dawn. Greek national guardsmen lobbed three 60 millimeter mortar shells at an positions on the castle. There was no artillery duty.

Twenty-seven shells have fallen inside the castle since the Greek offensive started.

DIG FOXHOLES

Greek troops worked through the night to fortify advanced positions at the base of the lofty crag on which the castle is perched. By the light of the moon, they dug elaborate foxholes and camouflaged them with branches to blend in with the pine trees covering the slopes.

A Canadian UN contingent drove in armored cars from Turkish positions to the pass and parked near the Greek Cypriot headquarters to observe developments. Greek riflemen dozed while awaiting orders for an assault.

The commander of the UN peacekeeping force, Indian Lt.-Gen. Prem Chand Gyani, said the Greek offensive could have serious implications on the role of the United Nations in Cyprus. He said he has sent a full report to Secretary - General U Thant.

Mr. MacDonald said this company (Kraft food) not only was lobbying in Washington against any relaxation in U.S. imports, but was lobbying in Ottawa against any representations it might make to Washington on behalf of Canadian cheese manufacturers.

"I have an early suspicion that it has to do with election funds," he said.

Ontario cheese manufacturers could sell millions of pounds of old Canadian cheddar to the U.S. if import restrictions were lifted, said the NDP leader.

Economics Minister Randall promised to see whether it could "open any doors." He had heard complaints by Canadians who had visited Florida that they could not buy Canadian cheddar there.

Pay Parity Requested By Non-ops

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

MONTREAL (CP) —The railway's non-operating railway unions were to continue pressing their case before a conciliation board today for wage parity with workers in the so-called durable goods industries.

The 17 unions opened fire with a 30,000 - word brief when the board, headed by Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe of the British Columbia Supreme Court, convened Monday.

The hearings were last for at least a week. Railway spokesmen said they were ready to proceed with their case as soon as the unions finish their argument, probably Wednesday.

The unions' key demand is that the average wage paid workers in the durable goods industries, as defined by the bureau of statistics, be made the minimum wage standard for their 100,000 members from coast to coast.

If granted, it would mean an average wage increase of at least 14 cents an hour to $2.16. The non-ops' brief charged that the railways have acted with "persistent inconsistency" in wage negotiations during the last 15 years.

It said the railways succeeded in forcing the durable goods standard on the unions more than a decade ago and then felt free to disregard it later in favor of other standards that were lower and could be disregarded in turn if they served inconvenient.

The standard had been adopted as a yardstick during arbitration of a 1950 contract dispute but the railway employees' earnings had begun to lag behind it.

Contract talks between the non - operating unions and the railways, Canada's biggest labor negotiations, broke down and broke down Jan. 16. Frank Hall, the unions' chief negotiator, then asked for conciliation board.

Huge Blasts Set Off by Reds Trying to Free Dammed-up River

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet engineers blasted tons of rock and earth today trying to release a dammed - up mountain river which threatens to send a devastating flood down the Zeravshan Valley toward Samarkand.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda said more than 2,000,000 cubic feet of water have built up behind the landslide that tumbled into the rain-swollen Zeravshan River Friday and blocked its path through a mountain gorge.

Engineers hoped to cut a 985-foot canal through the natural dam, had planned to touch off 110,000 pounds of explosives today. Their goal is to drain off the water before it rises into the riverbed, which has dried up below the landslide.

A powerful explosion was set off at precisely 6 a.m., Moscow radio said, "blasting hundreds of thousands of cubic meters of rock.

The tense battle against the elements has gone on all night in the disaster area on the river Zeravshan. Eighty-two charges have been laid along the future drainage canal."

An official source in Moscow said it would take more than 500,000 pounds of explosives to blast through the landslide.

The Tass news agency said experts at the scene warned that unless the water is relieved soon, the rising waters would begin spilling over the top of the natural dam and erode it.

A breakthrough would send flood waters surging down a valley 50 miles, destroying villages, posing a threat to Samarkand 100 miles away, and possibly cutting off the ancient rug centre which is twice that distance.

The landslide is so unstable that the 6.5 feet wide and 26.2 feet deep have to be dug by hand to place the explosives, chief Engineer Anatoli Tsurikov told a Soviet reporter.

The dam was formed Friday when the Iskander Mountain, cracked by earth tremors and loosened by weeks of heavy rain slid into the valley.

The government newspaper Izvestia said the dam that was formed ranged in height from 492 to 787 feet, was up to 1,312 feet wide and more than 2,623 feet wide.

U. S. Cigarette Firms Place Ads Under Control of Administrator

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. cigarette manufacturers are putting their $250,000,000 - a - year advertising program into the hands of an administrator to enforce a new code banning appeals aimed at teen-agers.

The administrator, to be named shortly, will be empowered to fine code violators up to $100,000. He is to be given "complete and final authority" on all cigarette advertising.

Synopsis: A storm centred over Iowa is expected to result in a lengthy spell of cloudy and unsettled weather over most of Ontario as it continues to move slowly eastnortheast towards the Great Lakes. Its central and northeastern Ontario cloudiness and scattered showers will result in cooler weather today and Wednesday.

nine companies which account for more than 99 per cent of the cigarettes made in the United States announced Monday.

The industry acted 3½ months after the report of U.S. surgeon general which linked cigarette smoking with cancer.

The code was given approval by the federal justice department to comply with anti-trust laws, an administration aide said.

The code falls short of Federal Trade Commission proposals in that it does not require all cigarette ads and packages to carry a clear warning that smoking is dangerous to health.

Companies agreeing to the code were:

The American Tobacco Company, Brown and Williamson Tobacco Corp., Lorus and Brother Company, Inc., Liggett and Myers Tobacco Company, P. Lorillard Company, Philip Morris Inc., R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Stephano Brothers, Inc., and United States Tobacco Company.

Forbidden are suggestions that cigarette smoking is essential to social prominence, distinction, success or sexual attraction.

Janitor Duties at City Hall Tendered Out to Pro Firm

Janitorial duties at city hall will be placed in the hands of a professional firm instead of the work being done under the present system of hiring individual workers.

Yesterday council accepted the tender of Hunt Brothers Ltd. of Peterborough in the amount of $7,927.56 per annum with the mayor and clerk being authorized to sign a one-year contract after satisfactory completion of a three-month trial period.

Two other tenders for the job were received, both of them for more money.

The contract to be awarded to the Peterborough firm, which has an office in Belleville, also covers the cost of janitorial supplies.

Alderman Don Whalen wondered whether in giving the job to a professional firm, the individual attention of a full time private worker would be lost.

"What happens if a pane of glass or a lock happens to get broken? Is it full custodial service we will be getting or merely cleaning?" he asked.

Alderman Corke said the contract covered everything which is being done now. The contractor would hire local help, it was stated.

The tender of the Peterborough firm at $7,927 was said to be several hundred dollars below the cost under the present system and the cost of supplies is included.

Curtailment of Bus Service Turned Down by Council

Belleville city buses will continue to operate until midnight instead of being cut off at 9.45 as had been suggested by the city transit commission.

City council yesterday voted that there be no change in the present bus hours and town will continue to operate until midnight.

Two weeks ago the transit commission had suggested cutting off the buses at 9.45 as an economy measure, including that $5,000 annually could be saved from the expected deficit this year of $50,000.

Yesterday a delegation from senior citizens group objected to any thought of cutting off buses at 9.45 claiming this would seriously inconvenience members in getting to meetings and other evening entertainment.

Alderman Don Whalen said the $5,000 which might be saved was a mere "pittance" in comparison to the overall cost of bus service to the city.

REASON FOR OPPOSITION

"I don't think it would be wise to eliminate this service. Night operation of the buses is most essential," he said.

Alderman Ross Bailey was also opposed to any reduction in bus hours — but for a different reason.

He claimed it was costing taxpayers half a million dollars a year for roads, sidewalks and other public works services, with a big percentage of this money going to provide roads for the motorists.

He took the view that council could well afford to spend more, to provide a bus service.

Alderman Jack Aikin wanted the matter referred to the finance committee, but committee chairman Ben Corke couldn't see a point of this action, noting that it had already been considered by his committee.

"We (council) have a problem," he admitted. "I don't know what the answer is, but the possibility of $5,000 is not enough for the inconvenience that would be caused.

MOTION DEFEATED

Alderman Don Jose warned that council would soon have to look into control of the bus line deficit or soon the taxpayer would be paying, not $50,000, but $100,000 per year.

Mayor Frank Ellis' discussion on whether to refer the matter back for further consideration with the transit commission or on the riginal transit commission recommendation to cut evening bus service.

The motion was defeated.

Council Turns Down Rawson Offer to Sell Bus Terminal

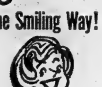
City council yesterday turned down an offer of the Rawson Bus Company to sell its Bleecker Ave. bus barns and garage to the city and instead will continue to rent the property for three years at $425 per month.

Two weeks ago council referred back a recommendation by the City Transit Commission to renew its lease with Rawsons for another three-year period, noting that a two-year lease would be preferred.

Since the city took over the city bus lines, the Rawson property has been rented by the Transit Commission as headquarters and garage.

Mr. Rawson, however, was unwilling to rent for less than three years and countered with an offer to sell the property outright for $50,000, with a down payment of $13,000, the balance payable at $425 per month with no interest charged.

The Transit Commission in a letter to council over the signature of commission chairman, Kenneth Pinder, said the Rawson property was suitable both as administration headquarters and a garage.



"In fact," the letter said, "the location is very much preferable to any other location that has yet been considered."

The commission strongly recommended acceptance of Mr. Rawson's offer.

However, the advice of city manager J. R. Reynolds was that it would not be wise for council to consider the purchase of the Rawson property at this time. In any event there had been no provision in the five-year capital works program for this purpose.

Alderman Ben Corke said the city had no money at this time to purchase the Rawson property and in any event the city did not want to be committed for all time to operate a bus line from a residential district.

Fire Chief Will Retire Early Next Year

Long time veteran of the Belleville Fire Department with nearly 43 years of service with the city, Fire Chief Gerald Vance will retire early next year.

City council voted yesterday that the retirement become effective on February 2nd, 1965, when Chief Vance will have attained his 67th birthday.

Personnel Committee head, Alderman Ben Corke, told council that his committee had discussed the matter of retirement with the chief and that the decision was jointly agreeable.

Alderman Corke said that the policy in recent years in many municipalities has been to retire police and fire chiefs at the age of 60 years.

There was no discussion as to the successor for the fire chief's post but in the seven months before next February council will have ample time to make a decision.

City to Study Plan to Prepare County History

Although not committing the city to any expenditure of money, city council will go along with the county of Hastings in the appointment of representatives of a committee to consider having a history of Hastings county prepared.

The matter of a county history was discussed at the April meeting of county council which invited the city, the town of Trenton, and the Hastings County Historical Society to set up a joint committee on the matter.

The county history is suggested as a centennial project on the part of the county.

"We don't know what is involved and although the project may be well worth while we are not committing the city to anything," stated Ald. Ben Corke.

Councillor Douglas Boyle and Ross Bailey were named as committee members.

Rezoning of Building Lot Not Allowed by Council

Belleville city council yesterday turned down a Belleville and Suburban Planning Board recommendation to rezone a building lot in the Victoria Ave.-Strathcona Drive area to allow residential construction on a lot of lesser width than called for in the zoning by-law.

The request was to rezone the lot from R1 to R2 which would allow building on a lot of less than 80 foot width.

The original request was made to council by Maurice H. Rollins who wanted to divide an existing lot 81.44 feet by 180 feet into three building lots, claiming that division into two lots would be uneconomical and would make the cost of local improvements prohibitive. The request was referred by council to the planning board for recommendation.

HAD PUBLIC HEARING

Following a public hearing late in March the planning board yesterday recommended to council that rezoning be approved to allow division of the lot into three parcels.

But after a brief discussion council yesterday turned down the recommendation to rezone.

Alderman Wm. Jarvah commented that there had been considerable "lobbying" on the request and although nearby residents had objected, their objections had apparently been rejected by the planning board.

The motion to allow the rezoning was defeated on a 7-6 vote.

Council voted to amend by-law 6495 regulating the use of land and the height, bulk, character and use of buildings, to allow the insertion of the definition of the word "clinic."

Dr. J. N. Hart had applied to council for permission to erect a clinic on Dundas Street opposite the hospital but it was found the city zoning by-laws did not specifically set out just what a "clinic" was.

The planning board held a public hearing inviting comments and the definition of a clinic will now be written into the by-law.

Escaped Youth Recaptured in Essex County

CAMPBELLFORD — A local man who escaped custody Friday night has been recaptured in the Essex County area. Thomas Murray Gray, 19, of Rylestone, being escorted from Campbellford police station for transfer to Northumberland County Jail at Cobourg, bolted from Campbellford police constables Lynden Hamilton and Ken Kern. The constables chased Gray for about two blocks, but were unable to catch him.

Gray was remanded Friday afternoon by Magistrate William Brady. He was charged with the Wednesday night rape of a 16-year-old girl, and bail had been set at $2,000. The girl told police that a man followed her from a restaurant, grabbed her from behind and dragged her into a car, where he assaulted her.

Arrested in his home hours before his escape, Gray was the subject of a province-wide manhunt over the weekend. Constables Thomilson and Kern from whom Gray escaped, were due to meet county to escort him back to Cobourg.

Some Members Not Satisfied With Minutes

Should city council adopt a "Hansard" method of reporting council minutes.

That is the question to be decided by city officials following a request yesterday by a city alderman who claimed council minutes were not reported fully enough.

Alderman Don Jose complained that his comments on the budget passed two weeks ago were omitted from the minutes, while those of Mayor J. R. Ellis were reported.

He felt that the comments of any alderman on an important subject should be reported, he said.

Council admitted the point was well taken but pointed out that full reporting of minutes would require expert shorthand reporting at all meetings.

Alderman William Jarvah, as acting mayor, directed that the executive committee take the matter under consideration.

Obituary

H. F. BRIEGEL
(Montreal)

Word has been received in the city of the passing of H. F. Briegel, son of the late Fredrick Briegel, superintendent of Montreal Railway Service.

Mr. H. Briegel lived at 4230 West 8th Ave. N.D.G. Montreal, Quebec. He married a well known Belleville musician, Miss Flossie Moon, daughter of J. R. Moon contractor. At time of her marriage she was soloist at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church also had large class piano pupils. She was a graduate of Albert College, Belleville and Toronto Conservatory. Besides his wife, he leaves one son, James who is a high school teacher in Montreal protestant school specializing in music.

Sympathy of Belleville friends will be extended to his wife and son.

Council Wants Amendment to Municipal Act

City council yesterday concurred in a town of Lindsay resolution asking for an amendment of the Municipal Act, which would allow publication of an "approved summary" of the previous year's municipal audit statement.

The Municipal Act now requires municipalities to publish certain portions of the audited financial statement or deliver copies to each ratepayer.

The Lindsay resolution claimed the amount of detail required in an audit was extremely costly to the average ratepayer and felt that publication of an approved summary in such a form as would be readily understood by the ratepayers would be more suitable.

Council also approved of a City of Belleville resolution urging asking the Ontario government to give leadership in planning for more treatment and residential facilities for wards of children's aid societies.

Now a direct financial assistance for treatment of severely emotionally disturbed CAS wards was asked so that necessary remedial care would be assured and the financial burden on CAS organizations and municipalities would be reduced.

Glenora Biologist Speaks On Fish of Bay of Quinte

Fishing in the Bay of Quinte was the theme of Mr. Jack Christie's address at the regular dinner meeting of the Rotary Club here on Monday. Vice-president S. Keston presided in the absence of President R. Cass.

Mr. Christie, biologist-in-charge of the Glenora Fisheries Station, said that both commercial and sport fishing are familiar aspects of life on and around the Bay of Quinte. The sport fishery includes such species as black bass, pike and maskinonge, while the commercial fishery includes white fish, bullheads, carp, eels and channel catfish. Fish taken by both classifications consisted of sunfish, bluegills, rock bass, perch, smelt and pickerel.

Mr. Christie explained that the Department of Lands and Forests has had a research program under way on certain Lake Ontario fish species of commercial importance for a number of years and in 1957 this program was extended to include a study of the Bay of Quinte yellow pickerel. He said a very important part of the pickerel program was the creel census which includes the daily contact with Bay of Quinte anglers throughout the fishing season by a team of assistants. The data they collect is recorded and compared.

The speaker went on to say that one important factor is that we have changed and are continuing to change the characteristics of the water in both obvious and subtle ways. Aside from the local toxic effects of pollution by our communities, the waters are becoming richer as a result of our increasing population density.

"With our present knowledge," he said, "the wisest approach to the best use of the Bay of Quinte fishery resource would be recognition of the basic fact of natural population change and the fishery as only be broadly based operation prepared to exploit and utilize the fish harvest speedily in times of temporary depression of the more prized stocks."

The speaker was introduced to the club by Rotarian Don Grant and was voted on behalf of the members by Rotarian B. Meagher.

Rotarian C. Reynolds introduced a new member to the club, in the person of Donald J. Southcott.

Three Suspects Held After Police Alarm

Scene of the incident was Johndrew's service station where neighbors were startled early this morning by the smashing of a plate glass door.

Police chief K. G. M. Closter radioed an alert to police in the Belleville area for an automobile wanted in connection with the attempt.

Later city police stopped a car containing the three youths on Dundas Street East.

Two Advertising Experts Clash Over Fees

TORONTO (CP)—Two advertising experts clashed Monday on whether agencies should abandon their traditional role of accepting payment from media and charge direct fees to their clients.

Andrew Kershaw, managing director of Ogilvy, Benson, and Mather (Canada) Limited, described the current practice of Canadian agencies of accepting a 15-per-cent commission from media as payment for their services as a "grotesque anachronism."

George C. Sinclair, vice-president and general manager of Maclaren Advertising Company Limited of Toronto, said while the fee system had many advantages, it did not justify the abolition of commissions.

Under the commission system, the agency receives a rebate from the media of 15 per cent of what the client spends on advertising space. The fee system levies a charge against clients for services rendered by the agency.

Mr. Kershaw and Mr. Sinclair presented their arguments to separate meetings sessions of the Association of Canadian Advertisers' Incorporated opened its three - day annual meeting here.

NUN CITES CHALLENGE

Attacking mum from the United States told delegates advertising faces a "hazardous" challenge in a world in which indoctrination will be met with inquiry.

Sister Jacqueline Grennan, vice-president of Webster College in St. Louis and a leading expert on education, said that education may "foster a predustry as a whole to desert much of the slick indoctrination . . . of the Madison Avenue."

Emphasis on critical evaluation, inquiry and invention rather than concentrated absorption of facts may force mass media to "create a different approach to all forms of communication," she said:

Jerry Goodis of Toronto, president of Goodis, Goldhar and Soren Limited, accused greedy agencies and clients of violating the advertising code of ethics and warned clients not to chose agencies on speculative presentations.

He told the association that the best way to choose an agency was a check on ads it had done for other clients.

Red Cross Reports Show Active Month

At the regular meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross Society, Mr. N. Thompson, the president, received the reports from the various committees.

Mrs. Ketcheson's report for the Homemakers' Service showed that up to date for the past month 73 cases had received assistance and 183 children had been cared for. Nineteen senior citizens had also received the benefits from this service.

Under the Individual Emergency Aid one family had been given shoes and bedding to carry the family over a difficult period.

It was reported that extensive work for a dental patient had been completed, while another family requested aid for dental treatment that would necessitate expenses for travel and hospitalization.

SUCCESSFUL CLINIC

On April 9 one of the most successful blood donor clinics had been held at the Riverside Centre when 300 bottles of blood were collected.

Sincere appreciation was expressed to Mrs. Fletcher and her assistant, Miss Sager, for their work in conducting the Home Nursing Classes during the past winter. It was hoped that Mrs. Fletcher might consider conducting a similar course next year.

Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Marsh represented the Belleville branch at the annual Red Cross meeting held in Windsor. Mrs. Marsh gave an informative report of the proceedings of that convention.

On the 7th and 8th of May, Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Marsh president will attend the Senior Citizens' meeting to be held in Toronto.

Accounts totalling $672.40 were received and ordered paid.

Residents Want Old Street Name Reinstated

Some of the residents on Elmer Street (now going under the name of Wallbridge Crescent) are recognizing that the new street names and have made representation to have the old names reinstated.

Alderman Don Whalen said that despite the matter being discussed at the residents' meeting on Elmer Street apparently did not know of the move to have the old names reinstated and asked if all residents had been directly notified by city hall.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds admitted this had not been done but said the original request for the street name change had been through a petition.

Now a second petition had been received objecting to the name change and it was noted that some residents had signed both petitions.

In view of this he suggested that secondary petitions were not "too important."

He said, however, that the objection of the residents would be considered.

Made Wrong Statements To Commission

A Belleville man — said unemployed — who wrote — today pleaded guilty to four counts of fraud against the Unemployment Insurance Fund.

Ray Whiteman pleaded guilty to making four statements to the local Unemployment Insurance Commission which wrongfully set his earnings at $8.75 when he earned $140 with a local contractor.

Eric Naylor, commission inspector, said Mr. Whiteman had drawn $76 insurance — all of which had been recovered through withholding other benefits.

However, Mr. Naylor told Magistrate T. Y. Wills, the elderly accused could neither read nor write and another person had drawn up the statements for him.

"If he signs things like that it's his own fault," retorted the magistrate. "He knew enough to draw the money."

He fined Mr. Whiteman a total of $60 or one month in jail.

When the accused pointed out he was still jobless the magistrate allowed him a month to pay.

"It might be much cheaper for you to spend the month," he added.

Members of Walking Tours Enjoy Day at Stirling

The usual Sunday walking tour arranged by the Architectural Conservancy Committee of the Historical Society was at Stirling this week. It was accomplished mainly by automobile. The day was warm and bright, and nearly thirty - five people attended, more than twenty from Belleville.

The first stop in Stirling was the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Belshaw on Front St.; built in 1842, a typical early Ontario farm house. It is a brick - filled frame building, with the original clapboards. Mr. Belshaw himself added the so - called "Gothic" the little gable over the front door with a window to light the upper hall.

These gables became a great feature of Ontario architecture in the 1840's and 1850's, when the Gothic Revival took hold, but earlier houses followed more Classic lines and builders often had to make do with little squares or windows on part of the frieze, just under the eaves. One interesting feature of Mr. Belshaw's house is the great size of the wooden moulding above each window in the ground - floor rooms.

An attractive house is the Morton house, just across the street, built of stone in the 1840's and evidently brought up to date in the 1870's.

Nearly every house along Front St. seems to have had a verandah added in the 1870's or 80's or 90's. The airy scrollwork involving hundreds of turned bobbins, sometimes arranged in fan shapes, is here especially attractive, as is casta patterns of sunlight and shade on porch and house.

BUILT IN 1830's

Two great brick houses face each other across Front St. Mr. Belshaw remembers when they were built, in the 1830's. From a distance they still appear imposing and even handsome (though that particular style of architecture is admittedly indefensible), but it is distressing to see on closer inspection that they are run down and that one is being altered and shorn of its trimmings. Keep the plaks of condition, houses like this have entertainment value at least; modernized or cut down, they are mere monstrosities.

The numerous party squeezed into the hallway of the house to the north (it was built by Mr. Wallbridge), were viewed with interest the mural paintings covering the front hall. They show alpine scenes and a stag at bay and a coat of arms; Queen Victoria used to live here and she is covered by wallpaper.

Much of the history of Stirling and its personalities as the party made the rounds. For this, let readers refer to the little book, "Stirling Centennial," published in 1958.

A small house, now covered with imitation bricks, on the Old Marmora Road, was pointed out as one of the first schools in Stirling. It has been the Weese School, the only one existing in 1842. Another early school was the log building at 69 Front St. West next to Mr. Belshaw's house.

The attractive little St. John's Anglican Church was visited.

It is said to have been built in 1860, the architects being Fuller and Laver (Augustus) of Bath, Ontario. Were these not the architects of Ottawa's Parliament buildings?

Thomas Fuller (1822-1898), a native of Bath, came to Canada in 1856, designed the main block of the old Dominion Parliament Buildings in 1859, and later worked on the State Capitol at Albany, N.Y. Later collaborated with F. W. Stent in the design of the East and West Blocks of the Parliament Buildings.

Stirling is charmingly situated on a little river, once important as a power source. The citizens have, over the past century, been proud of its appearance and anxious to make the town attractive. We fear that such a large influx of automobiles as ours of Sunday does little to make the town liveable, but the kindness of the Council in providing refreshments and of Mrs. Elliott in being hostess was greatly appreciated.

Mr. Belshaw's name should be singled out for special recognition, as he was a very informative guide and Mrs. Roy Bush's, as she did a great deal to organize the tour. Mr. Dredge should be mentioned, as (being leader of the tour) he nearly held things up for an hour by neglecting to adjust to Daylight Time.

Next Sunday's tour will start from the Museum in the usual way at two and take in West Front St. There is still some of Belleville to be covered, but possibilities for the future include Prince Edward County, Trenton, Napanee, Lonsdale, and Brighton.

Youth Given Six Months For Car Theft

Magistrate T. Y. Wills ruled this morning since a youth was not in the driver's seat of a stolen vehicle he could not be convicted of possession.

Simultaneously the magistrate sentenced a second youth, alleged as the driver, to a maximum six months.

Wilshire who police said was the driver of the vehicle, will go to reformatory.

Reviewing the evidence against Spence the magistrate dismissed as uncorroborated the accused's alibi that he was elsewhere when the stolen wagon.

"The crux of an alibi being disallowed or not believed, the court must still very carefully examine the circumstances against the defendant," said Magistrate Wills. "I have been given the conviction beyond (that) seeing of the defendant in the vehicle — not in the driver's seat — in circumstances constitutes possession."

However, the magistrate emphasized "my finding restricted to the facts of this case."

Told this was the second similar offence against Wilshire the magistrate said: "I think it's a case for the maximum penalty."

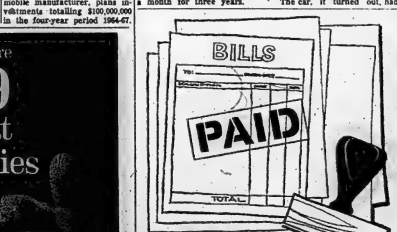
2. Two backup brigades in Canada will have airlift. From these brigades will come the battalion-size (800 men) mobile reserve for NATO which will have artillery and which likely will exercise overseas.



3. A special service force of some 2,000 men will be based in Canada. It will provide the standby force for UN operations or any other type of special force.

How soon can all this be accomplished?

Some of it can be done by the end of this year, senior officers say. The remainder will depend to some extent on how fast and smoothly tri-service integration is carried out and how big a savings are to make room for more equipment purchases.

What Does He Want?

Christian A. Herter, the former U.S. Secretary of State who is now on the top U.S. tariff negotiator, says that he would like to see free trade between Canada and the U.S.

Mr. Herter adds that the initiative for such a move must come from Canada, "otherwise Canadians might believe we are trying to swallow them up."

Although many Canadian manufacturers would look askance at any program designed to eliminate tariffs between Canada and the U.S., it may eventually prove advantageous for us to move in that direction.

We are all acutely conscious of the stiff competition to which our industries would be exposed by any such development, but there is another side to the coin. As Mr. Herter points out, a free trade agreement would give our manufacturers easy access to a vast market. With efficient production involving ever higher capital investment, there may come a time when only the existence of such a big market will make it feasible for Canadian manufacturers in certain lines to equip their plants with the most modern machinery.

Then, just when Mr. Herter's words combine with a swift appraisal of trends to make his free trade proposals acquire some alluring prospects, Mr. Herter presents the benefits which would accrue to the U.S. He does not stress the easy access which U.S. manufacturers would have to Canadian markets, but rather assurances of access to Canada's huge supply of raw materials.

What assurances? Since when has "free trade" meant an assured right to buy, rather than an assured right to equal opportunity to sell? Any free trade program which would guarantee that Canada would continue to sell its raw materials, rather than endeavoring to increase the proportion of these materials she processed herself, would certainly be of questionable value to us.

New System in Quebec

We would expect residents of Quebec, particularly those burdened with the responsibility of conducting municipal governments, to applaud Premier Jean Lesage's revision of the sales tax.

In the past, three different rates have prevailed, fifty per cent in those areas where no municipal sales tax was levied, four per cent in some other municipalities which levied a two per cent tax and six per cent in Montreal and Quebec City, where a four per cent municipal sales tax was collected.

Under the new bill there is one tax rate for the whole province, six per cent, and the province will turn back part of the proceeds to the municipalities.

However, instead of the amount received by the municipalities depending on the amounts collected within their borders, the provincial subsidy will be on a per capita basis.

This has the advantage of not further penalizing a municipality if a large proportion of its residents should do a major share of their shopping out of town. In Ontario, where the major portion of a municipality's income is derived from taxes on real estate, the effect of heavy spending in other municipalities is bad enough. It means that the commercial assessment is likely to be small in relation to the residential assessment. The effect of out-of-town spending would be much worse if revenue from municipal sales tax provided a large share of the municipality's revenue.

Hard Times?

Out of all the flurry and hurry of the Timmins copper strike, only one fact has been proved to our satisfaction. Prospectors are not what they used to be.

All the proof we need for this comment is contained in a recent Canadian Press story of a prospector coming out of the bush, trading a dollar for a dime with a teenager and dropping the dime into a soft drink machine.

"I've waited three days for that drink," the prospector said.

Buying dimes for a dollar each is normal practice for a boomtown prospector, of course. But waiting three days for a SOFT drink?

The assassination of President Kennedy may have been necessary as the only means of avoiding, or even long deferring, national scandals so flagrant as to shock the whole of our brainwashed and hypnotized populace back to sanity. Prof. Revile F. Oliver of the University of Illinois in a John Birch Society publication.

Making One Feel Important Unusual Talent of Pearson

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — "Why do they waste that man around here?" asked one of the girls from the Women's Press Club Ottawa Journal after meeting the Prime Minister for the first time. "He's just so charming. Everybody should meet him, just everybody."

It had only been at casual meeting in a long reception line. But it had had its personal impact.

With a brief handshake, a smile and a word or two that, somehow, he managed to make almost personal, the Prime Minister, with that astounding talent of his for charm, had made her feel that she, suddenly, was important.

It was, she said, almost that the Prime Minister had personally wanted to feel that meeting her had made his day all worthwhile. Silly, of course, and she knew it.

But that's the way it was with her — just as it is with most other people who meet the Prime Minister.

Perhaps it is that these people are not only made to feel, but to him actually are important.

It's a rare talent, a talent for communication.

STUCK ON THE HILL

Because he uses it with all the savvy, and more, that comes in the enjoyment anybody finds in doing anything outstandingly well.

The Young Lady from The Journal social department was made to feel important, and, as she put it, "so good," that she wondered why such an unusually pleasant experience couldn't be shared by all Canadians. To her, keeping him in Ottawa on the Hill seemed almost certainly inconsiderate.

Lots of people had the same way. And are exciting many of his political opponents. In the personal sense, they're equally captivated. So are almost all the correspondents in the Parliamentary Press Gallery, even those who question some of his policies and whose newspapers support the Conservative party in opposition to lambaste him.

And so, too, do a number of the Liberal backbenchers in the Commons who don't subscribe always to his political proposals — and there are some of these independently - minded MP's who question such things as bilingualism and, more to the point, special deals for Quebec, the doubling of some Government salaries and other points of party issue.

But while having reservations about Pearson the politician, they are widely loyal to Pearson the man. This goes double for his large and growing staff, all fiercely devoted to him.

His enemies — even he, the almost professional nice guy, has a few — are few and they look

Bridge Street Church Choir Presents Handel's 'Messiah'

By EUGENE LANG

It was a packed congregation of over one thousand persons who jammed practically every available pew in Bridge Street United Church last evening to hear a performance of Handel's immortal Oratorio "The Messiah". The musical forces involved consisted of Bridge Street United Church Choir of fifty-four voices, apportioned among twenty-three sopranos, nine contraltos, ten tenors and twelve basses. Add to this the four soloists in the persons of Constance Reid, soprano, who is the wife of the conductor, Mr. Robert Reid; Doris Brown, contralto, of the Mendelssohn Choir and Bloor Street United Church in Toronto; Thomas Clarke, tenor, also of the Mendelssohn Choir and a member of the Canadian Opera Festival, and William Perry, of Lindsay, another member of the famed Toronto choir mentioned twice above. The tricky Handelian instrumental accompaniments were provided by the Eastern Ontario String Quartette featuring Stephen Chorna and Marion Stubbs as first violinists and William Grant and Joachim Reimann carrying off the second violin parts. Mr. James Benore of Toronto added rhythmic punctuations to the more involved numbers on the tympani. The organ continuo was provided by Mr. S. Alec Gordon at the fine manual Casavant. The aforementioned vocalists and instrumentalists were all under the direction of conductor Robert Reid.

There are fifty-six separate selections that make up "Messiah" but seldom are all of these used in actual performance. Part One was given in its entirety, but some minor deletions were made in the second and third parts of the Oratorio. Even with the deletions mentioned, the time scope ran to nearly three hours.

This, perhaps the most familiar and beloved of all English speaking religious works, was written in the short space of less than twenty-five days and must have been composed in the white heat of inspiration. Since it's first appearance in Dublin in 1742 it has been performed more than any other religious composition in the history of music.

SOLOISTS EXCELLENT

The four soloists were excellent in their individual selections and maintained a high standard of vocal artistry in every appearance. Outstanding were the interpretations of "Rejoice Greatly, O Daughter of Zion" and "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth" by soprano Constance Reid, who imparted deep conviction with a voice of crystal clarity and consistent charm. Contralto Doris Brown gave fine interpretations of "O Thou That Tellest Tidings to Zion" and "He Was Despised and Rejected" in a manner of reverent humility accentuated by a voice of deep hued timbre. Tenor Thomas Clarke voiced telling renditions of "Every Valley Shall Be Exalted" and "Thou Shalt Break Them With a Rod of Iron," imbuing these two arias with exciting regality and robust feeling. Baritone William Perry's resonant voice was ideal in his creative projections of the dramatic "Why Do The Nations So Furiously Rage" and "The Trumpet Shall Sound". Handel's vocal virtuosity did not faze him as he handled these difficult arias with ease and agility.

The choir must be complimented for its fine singing and in all of its participations the members gave with their very best. Mr. Reid knew what he wanted from them, and under his expert guidance and conducting he sapped them of every nuance and gradation that was necessary for the successful manner in which the vocal barriers were hurdled. Two outstanding examples can be mentioned, the bouncing interpretation of "All We Like Sheep Have Gone Astray" and the grandiose and majestic effects arrived at in the "Amen" Chorus in a tense build up that filled every square foot of the church with glorious sound.

FINE ACCOMPANIMENTS

The Eastern Ontario String Quartet gave fine examples of themselves in the open Sinfonia and the "Pastoral Symphony" with overall good accompaniment throughout the Oratorio with only once or twice a little lagging. Alec Gordon handed out his organ balancing with sanity and dignity as is his trademark. James Benore, the guest tympanist, toosled in an additive of pomp and splendor with the kettle-drums poundings and rolls that Handel wished used in performance.

Dogs in Pound Will Have Better Home

At least their actions accepted last night by city council will put them in good standing with the humane society.

The Junior Chamber has offered to do general repairs at the city animal shelter on the Exhibition grounds, to clean and paint inside and out, and to provide a roof shelter and concrete floor for the outdoor exercise area at the shelter, all at no cost to the city.

Also offered was to arrange for a supply of food for impounded animals and to advertise on a weekly basis in an attempt to find homes for the animals which would otherwise be destroyed.

The Junior Chamber indicated its offer was in keeping with its policy of taking on worthy projects dealing with community betterment.

The exulting performance that could not but please the most exacting musical minds. Mr. Reid can feel confident that any large scale work that he attempts in the future will fill Bridge Street Church as it was filled last evening. He is a decided musical asset to this community, one whose stature rises with each new performance that he and his musical forces present.

The opening words of greeting and invocation of Prayer, as well as closing Benediction were given by Rev. Harry M. Davis, minister of Bridge St. United Church.

Fire Trucks Called to Fire

CAMPBELLFORD — A large grass fire on property owned and adjacent to the town of Campbellford caused the town and Seymour township fire trucks to be called into operation to control it on Sunday afternoon.

The property is also used in part as a town dump, but because of the physical features of the land, there are ravines in which brush and long grass made an intense fire. In proximity are properties owned by Simpkin Marine, Campbellford Cloth Co. and others.

It was brought under control late in the afternoon.

Trent Valley Convention Area W. I. Holds Executive Meet

The full executive of 12 members convened April 22 for a two session meeting of the Trent Valley convention area executive meeting, which covers the combined seven Institute districts of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Peterborough. The meeting was held in the Co-operative Insurance office on Church Street in Belleville.

Those in attendance were: president, Mrs. C. R. Beatty, Madoc; past president, Mrs. John Reid, Trenton; 1st vice-president, Mrs. H. Shearer, Lakefield; 2nd vice - president, Mrs. T. M. Greshame, Colborne; 3rd vice president, Mrs. Clifford Barber, Prince Edward, secretary - treasurer, Mrs. Percy Kay, Halloway; board director, subdivision 5, Mrs. Grant Masters, Shannonville; board director, subdivision 6, Mrs. W. A. Goodfellow, Codrington, and public relations representative, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Stirling R.R. 2.

Convention committee will be: Mrs. Sherman Foster, Hillier; Mrs. H. Dilwood, Warsaw; Mrs. Allen Linton, Cobourg. The sessions were chaired by Mrs. S. Beatty, and Mrs. Percy Kay read the correspondence.

38TH AREA CONVENTION

The 38th area convention will be held on Monday and Tuesday, September 14 and 15 in Club Canara, Belleville. The theme will be "Friendship is the only cement that will hold the world together", and the district presidents will answer the roll call. The election of officers will be held on Monday afternoon with two new convenors to be appointed. The provincial president, Mrs. Leonard Trivers of Thessalon, Ontario will give her message that afternoon and on Tuesday morning Miss Helen McKercher, Toronto, director of home economics service will outline her department.

The evening session will be devoted to the Institute work in the North West Territories and the national convention held in Wolfville, Nova Scotia in June.

The meeting was devoted to planning this 38th annual convention with its five sessions.

At last year's area convention Mrs. Percy MacMullen was in charge of a sale of articles for F.W.I.O. and the total amount was $24.64. This was the first venture for the Trent Valley area and was a suggestion from the Provincial public relations officer. Mrs. Austin S. Zoeller of R.R. 2, Hamburg.

All articles were displayed except the special cup and saucer. In this way the delegates were able to view the articles and place their orders.

For the past two years a voluntary offering for Pennies for Friendship has been collected. The amount in 1962 was $19 and in 1963 it was $22.23. ACWW wrote showing letters of thanks for these donations.

SUPPORT OF ACWW

Mrs. Mungo Barr, honorary treasurer, delivered a message in which she said, "If members maintain increased support the ACWW will just be able to meet the budget accepted in Melbourne, Australia.

At an international evening in Northern Territory, Australia, Mrs. Nell Schroder stated that without a healthy Pennies for Friendship fund, it would be impossible to operate the Lady Aberdeen scholarship fund or any other practical project.

Even the smallest paper requires a match to light it, so there must be a constant supply of matches to provide the Pennies for Friendship.

This year penny jars will be placed in the hall and anyone who is interested may contribute and thus assist this worthy cause.

The ladies enjoyed the noon meal at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

The convention date is the earliest for this area, however, it is hoped that the Institute women will plan to attend as many of the sessions as possible.

FUNCTIONAL READY-TO-FINISH FASHIONS

Paris, always the test area for new fashion ideas, has come up with what looks like a practical, truly functional scheme aimed at the fastidious, individualistic customer with more taste than money. The Haute Couture, catering to the group called by one leading magazine the beautiful people, meaning the very very rich has gradually become aware of the vast buying public whose yearly fashion budget is a small fraction of the cost of one couture model. In Paris, these customers usually patronize the little dressmaker, whose identity is a well-kept secret. But lately, mass production has emerged in Europe with the usual results. A tour of the Galeries Lafayette in Paris shows a startling resemblance to any good Canadian departmental store. Racks of dresses are sorted by size and price, just as at home. Sweaters are folded and nested in the same type of bar arrangements as are used in Canada and sportswear is displayed by color. I can remember feeling a little disappointed when I first noted all this happening in Paris.

Apparently, North American merchandising methods do not satisfy all French customers, who are used to the expert fit that only a good dressmaker can give to even the most inexpensive dress or suit. Now, something new has been added to the Galeries Lafayette — a department of semi-finished fashions, ready to be fitted to the individual customer.

Collars, pockets, buttonholes, bindings and trimmings are finished, but hems, shoulderlines waistlines, hiplines, sleeves and skirt lengths are left in an unfinished state. The whole garment has generous hem allowance so that adjustments are easy. The customer selects the style she likes, then an experienced fitter adjusts the garment to her figure. The dress or suit can either be finished at the store or the customer can finish it herself. These fashions come in three basic sizes, thus eliminating the necessity for a large stock.

MILLINERY DEPARTMENT

. have often admired the millinery department in Macy's New York store because of the large selection of unfinished and untrimmed hats. Close by, is a large counter with flowers, veilings, and braids. Usually this section of the department is swarming with women intent on creating, at least partially, their own individual fashion look.

Many of the customers at Galeries Lafayette prefer to finish their own dresses, and Macy's home milliners obviously enjoy being creative. I wonder if that need to be creative is the reason for the success of these two very different enterprises.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

On Thursday night the Women of the Moose held their last meeting of the month with Sr. Regent Gladys Ritch presiding.

The next meeting is to be nominations for officers for the new year.

A draw donated by Olive VanNorman was won by Hilda Whittaker.

The feature is to be held in Moose Hall on Thursday night, April 30th.

After the meeting closed lunch was served by Ida Lake and her committee.

Thinks Women Live Longer Because They Never Retire

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP)—White House Physician Dr. Janet Travell thinks women live longer than men nowadays because "a woman never retires."

"She keeps on doing the things she's been accustomed to doing all her life," Dr. Travell notes.

The ever-present chores of housekeeping, the dusting and the cleaning up, may be what's behind the longevity of the ladies, Dr. Travell said. "In the older age groups," she added, "women keep much more active than men."

Grey-haired Dr. Travell, an ex-New Yorker, came to the White House in 1961 at the request of President John F. Kennedy, who had been her patient for years for treatment of his back ailment. She was the first woman ever to hold such a job.

She recently joined Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson on a trip to Cleveland to study how low-cost public housing development for the elderly.

Dr. Travell had just a bit of advice, too:

"Never lose your enthusiasm and your drive."

Bitter Feelings at Root Of Sister's Cruel Tongue

DEAR DORIS — I have developed a chronic anxiety state through years of an older sister's domination and vicious tongue. The joint care of an elderly father in our home (we are both married and have families) caused a break in our relationship.

My father has since died, and my sister would like to become friendly again. My husband says no, but my minister says, give her another try. We are both nearing our sixties, and I could not stand any more trouble at this age, and feel that she will not be long telling me the old cruel things of before.

My sister is lame and has few friends, otherwise I would never have taken things as long as I did before. — BOTHERED AND ANXIOUS

DORIS CLARK

DEAR BOTHERED — If you still dread her domination, heed your husband. At the same time, your sister's present state should convince you that her bitter feelings of inadequacy are at the root of her vicious tongue.

If, in the intervening period, you have grown in emotional poise, weigh pros and cons in the balance; family ties count for something, provided you could demand, and get, a new kind of courtesy from her.

Boy's Parents Must Accept Share of Rule-Making

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our 16-year-old son is going with a lovely girl who is 15. She is a refined, intelligent person and popular with both students and faculty. The problem is her parents' peculiar idea of discipline.

ANN LANDERS

The girl can accept one date a week, either on Friday or Saturday night. She must be at home by 12:30 a.m. Her parents are usually in bed by the time she gets home but she must knock on their bedroom door and announce that she is home.

Then — and this is what baffles us, Ann — she may entertain her date as late as she wishes.

Last night our son got home from her place at 4:30 a.m. We don't think this is right. Would it be proper for my husband to call the girl's father and ask him to please send the boy home by 1:00 o'clock? Or should we stay out of it and let the boy use his own judgment? — OVER A BARREL.

* * *

DEAR BARRELS — You have been letting your son use his own judgment and it's terrible.

It's shocking that so many parents of boys feel the girl's parents should make all the rules.

Your son is a minor and you are responsible for him. Insist that he is at home by 1:15. This hour allows plenty of time for fond farewells.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — For Christmas my husband's ex-wife left a gift for him under our tree. It was a half dozen boxer-type shorts and a half-dozen undershirts.

I suggested to Ellis that he return the gift because it was too personal. To make the point, I asked him how he'd like it if another man gave me a panty and bra set for Christmas. He said I was out of my cotton-pickin' mind and that it was not the same thing.

We've been arguing about the shirts and shorts since December and he still refuses to see it my way. Please settle this before July because Ellis has a birthday coming up and she might do the same thing again. — JANE.

* * *

DEAR JANE. — Sorry, Doll, but I think you're making a whale out of a minnow. Men's shorts and undershirts are not in the same category as women's lingerie.

Granted, this was not the most tasteful gift in the whole wide world, but it was practical. It certainly isn't worth five months' debate. Talk about something else.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a college girl who lives with my brother and his wife. I am deeply concerned about my brother's tyrannical attitude toward his children.

He is very strict with his sons, which is all right, but it is heartbreaking the way he picks on the middle boy during supper and then forces him to eat.

Rickey is only seven. He is not as bright as his older brother, nor as cute as his younger brother. In addition to his other problems he must wear thick glasses and he has a hearing problem.

Rickey doesn't have as big an appetite as his brothers but his father insists that he clean his plate. Every night there's a battle. My heart aches for the boy.

Will you say something in your column about forcing children to eat? — GUEST IN THE HOUSE.

* * *

DEAR GUEST — No person (regardless of age) should be forced to eat at any time, for any reason. The stomach is not prepared to receive food when a person is emotionally upset. Children who are forced to clean their plates sometimes develop stomach trouble which can plague them far the rest of their lives.

Women's Institutes

CARMEL WOMENS INSTITUTE

The annual meeting of the Carmel Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. J. Lee with a good attendance.

The meeting was opened by the president Mrs. J. Lucas after which treasurer's reports and correspondence were read. Delegates were chosen for the district annual to be held at Foxboro on May 29th. Mrs. Russel Ritz and Mrs. Clayton Sullivan were appointed auditors for next year. The two new members for next year are Mrs. G. Orr ham historical research and Mrs. Charles Brintnell, Tweedmuir history curator. The May meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Percy Reynolds on Tuesday evening, May 19th.

Mrs. Charles Brintnell conducted a contest on the number of articles in each ladies purse with Mrs. Arthur Treverton, the winner.

PATRICIA LEWIS

Question: I'm in the midst of deciding who, among my closest friends, should be asked to be bridesmaids at my wedding. One of the girls is married and I'd like to ask her to be in the wedding party, but I've been told that her husband then should be asked to be an usher. Since my fiance already has decided on his attendants and does not know my friend's husband well, I'm afraid this would not be possible. May I still ask her to participate, even though her husband cannot be in the wedding party? — F. O., Roanoke, Va.

Answer: When a married woman is asked to be a bridesmaid, it's not necessary to include her husband in the wedding party. Naturally, though, he is invited to the wedding as a guest.

TUESDAY

Topnotch Beef Pie (see Mon. day); Generous Tossed Salad; Baked Spy Apples; Pouring Cream; Tea.

My niece Beverley (the ophthalmologist) is accompanying her husband Geoffrey (the orthopedic surgeon) to Vancouver on the first leg of his journey to Australia, his homeland — his first visit in seven years. On their way they will stop off in Calgary to visit Marianne and Herbie — whom they have not seen since they were all in England together in 1961.

Beverley is making room in her luggage for a tin box of my cookies (see below) and a can of George Pollock's 1964 maple syrup for Marianne's family. I have a clear image of Gary's, Davey's, Susan's and Danny's heads bending over and selecting a cookie from that box from Grandma.

CRUNCHY FRUIT DROPS:

½ cup shortening, (room temperature), 1¼ cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1-3 cup table molasses, 1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 cups quick-cooking rolled oats, ½ cup chopped walnuts, ½ cup raisins, ½ cup mixed peel (or chopped dates or additional raisins), ¼ cup chopped drained maraschino cherries.

Cream together in electric beater or with rotary beater the shortening and sugar until very light. Beat in eggs. Add molasses. Sift flour, soda, salt and spices together. Stir them in, then add the rolled oats, fruits and nuts (see note below). Drop by teaspoonfuls 2" apart on buttered cookie sheets and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 8 to 10 minutes. Watch carefully. Do not let one of them burn. Makes 80 cookies. Remove from pans at once and let cool on racks. You will have 4 cookie sheets full.

NOTE:

Dads Now Baby Care Specialists

Dad no longer is a displaced person in the baby household. Prospective fathers today go to baby care classes and often have a diploma before they have an heir.

Community groups, child care centres, churches, even department stores conduct courses, or at least a special class for fathers - to - be. They practice bathing changing, bubbling and feeding a baby, usually working with a large-size doll.

Soon the students progress from the "all thumbs" stage to proud complacency, and are ready to help in the first difficult days when mother and baby return from the hospital.

Often, dad takes over on mother's day out or during some unpredictable emergency. Not only does he shine in the bath department, but he has a way with the small one when it comes to eating and sleeping.

A mighty dividend for dad in this occasional take - over is a wonderful new bond with Tiny, who looks upon him as a combination friend, baby sitter and hero.

REQUEST DENIED

BATH, England (CP)—A request by firemen and ambulance men for a licensed bar at their social club has been turned down. A spokesman for the city's watch committee said: "The station is not the place for one."

The Baby Bath Story: Oil to Sponge to Tub

To paraphrase a famous quotation, a bath is a bath is a bath. But when we are talking about babies, it's an oil bath, a sponge bath or a tub bath.

Most babies go through these three stages of bathing in their first few weeks.

The oil bath, is usually a babies first bath, given before the baby is 24 hours old. Most hospitals continue to bathe babies with oil for the first few days, and oil often is prescribed until the baby is about ten days old when the navel cord is normally dry.

Sponge baths may be started after the first few days and continued as long as a mother wishes to bathe the baby this way.

For tub baths, there is only one timing regulation—wait until the navel is fully healed.

Whatever the method, there are some basic rules to follow:

1. Bathe the baby about the same time every day. A bath is best before a feeding, and the 10 a.m. feeding is the one most mothers find convenient.

2. Have the room comfortably warm, from 75 to 80 degrees. It should not be drafty.

3. Place all the needed toilet articles, towels and fresh clothing in a handy spot where mother can reach them and baby cannot.

4. Make sure the tub is on a solid support. If you are sponge bathing, cover a sturdy table with a clean towel.

5. If you use an enamel or metal basin or sink, line the bottom with a towel or piece of toweling to keep baby from slipping.

6. Always support neck and back of a young baby when he is not lying flat.

7. Have water comfortably warm, about 100 degrees. Test it with your elbow. It should feel neither hot nor cold. Oil should be warmed slightly also.

8. Remember that babies are slippery when soapy and wet.

9. Never leave a young baby alone in a tub.

When giving baby an oil bath, pour a small quantity of warm oil into a clean shallow dish. Lightly moisten a clean piece of cotton with the oil and start with the baby's head and work your way down. Dry the baby with clean cotton as you go along. Change the cotton frequently, and discard any oil that is left in the dish.

Sponge bathing is often the easiest for novice mothers until they develop confidence in handling the baby. It is a fairly simple operation when babies are still young enough to stay put. Since baby is washed by area, there is always a dry spot to hold him.

Using a mild soap and soft washcloth, start with baby's face and head, and rinse and dry each area thoroughly as you go along, doing the diaper area last. Before dressing baby, apply a baby oil or lotion to all tiny creases. It helps to keep the skin free from irritations.

Baby's first trip in the tub should be a shallow one — about three inches of water will do until baby and mother get the knack of things. As baby grows, tub bathing gets to be one of the happiest times of the day for baby and mother.

It's one of the first places a baby can assert his personality, and if he is cute enough, he can often demand a little extra tub time and attention from mother.

Give a New Baby Half a Chance; He'll Sleep Away Most of the Day

Shh, baby's asleep, and you can expect him to sleep up to 20 hours a day during the first few weeks of life. Normal household sounds won't awaken him, but watch those sudden, jarring noises.

Though many a young mother finds it hard to believe, small babies do love to sleep, and if baby is given half a chance, he will snooze away the better part of each day.

While only weeks old, most babies spend up to 20 hours a day sleeping. At about three months of age, baby usually has cut his sleep time down to 16 to 18 hours, and he will average 14 to 16 hours when he reaches six months. By the time baby celebrates his first birthday, he'll most probably be content with sleeping away just about half of the hours in the day.

If mother is reasonably firm in sticking to regular nap and bedtime hours, baby should easily develop good sleeping habits. There are a few simple rules that a mother should observe:

Be sure that baby is always warm and dry. He should be well protected from drafts and any strong light which might shine in his eyes.

Baby should become used to a normal amount of household sounds, but he should be protected from sudden jarring noises, extra-loud voices and commotion.

Fresh air is good for baby. If there is an available porch or fairly well sheltered outdoor corner where his carriage may be placed during naptime, take advantage of it, but use good judgment and don't overdo these airings in cold weather.

On low temperature days, be sure that baby is adequately covered during his naptime or bedtime.

Be extremely careful about the placement of blankets in the small baby's crib. If the blankets are too loose, he may have the tendency to pull them over his face, but if they are pulled too tight, he will not have the freedom of movement he needs for comfortable sleep.

The important thing for mother to keep in mind in forming regular sleep habits for her child is that from the moment of birth each baby is an individual. Many are so-called "light sleepers" while others are able to sleep through the noise of a thunderstorm.

Some babies, just like adults, require more sleep than others. Some babies crave sleep right after a meal, while others are most sociable when their stomachs are full. A mother will make her baby happy by taking his individuality into account while helping him to establish the sleep pattern that suits his own special needs.

50.4 Per Cent of Deaths Attributed to Heart Disease Foundation Branch Is Sold

By HARRY MULHALL

Ostensibly, they met to raise money in their community — with a prime concern for the fact their community was already being closely canvassed for worthy causes.

They openly expressed their awareness of the fact — but the statistic of 50.4 per cent was inescapable.

The event was a meeting of the Belleville branch of the Ontario Heart Fund.

The statistic is the share of those persons claimed by heart disease who are all other diseases in the year.

The meeting — in the Mutual Life Assurance offices — was a quietly serious event, attended by local committee members with representatives from the Ontario offices.

It had the same atmosphere as the branch's initial campaigning in the last two years.

Treasurer Norman Moore told the meeting last night some 56 letters were received in reply, netting a return of about $500.

The ratio of replies to requests, said Mr. Moore was around 15 per cent.

The members felt it was imperative upon them to raise the statistic. They also inclined to the view their hometown of Belleville was already being regularly solicited.

FUND NOT CHARITY

There are difficulties to their appeal.

What they must seek funds for is not a charity — neither the charity that draws on compassion for the underprivileged nor the kind sets donations from an effort of will for a social community project.

The money will be spent for an intangible called research — which carries no warranty of positive results.

Yet, the money must be raised, across the country in every community, including Belleville.

And first things first, the Belleville committee decided last night.

Their decision called for an educational program on the crucial message they feel obliged to put forth.

That it seems implicit for them to do is heavily underlined by that inevitable statistic — 50.4 per cent.

It implies — although the committee may not have realized it and certainly there was no mention of it — a stark truth:

Conceivably half of those whom they reach in coming months may be jeopardized — at some time or another, to some degree or another — by heart trouble. Unless something is done about it.

It is no sinister allegation that 50.4 per cent is purely a fact of modern life.

OFFICERS NAMED

Accused Showed No Emotion Says Officers

OTTAWA (CP)—Five policemen testified Monday under defence cross - examination that Reginald Binette showed no emotion of any kind when he was arrested at the scene of a four-death shooting inside an Ottawa church rectory.

Binette, 18, is on trial for capital murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Paul Mercier, 24, last Dec. 22. The other victims were two women and Binette's brother Roger, 22, who shot himself after the other three were cut down.

The crown wound up its case against Binette Monday.

Defence counsel Louis Assaly questioned each policeman at length about Binette's reactions. One of them told how the youth walked past the sprawled bodies of the four victims without any sign of emotion.

SHOT DURING ROBBERY

The shootings broke out during a robbery attempt at the rectory of Christ the King Roman Catholic Church in central Ottawa. Mass was being said in the church at the time.

Earlier Mr. Justice Sam Hughes of Ontario Supreme Court ruled that a series of verbal and written statements attributed to Binette was admissible as evidence.

Detective Tom Flanagan, who arrested Binette, quoted him as saying: "I shot a man downstairs with his hat and clothes and glasses because I got afraid and didn't know what I was doing."

A written statement by Binette read:

"Few days ago we planned this attack, got ready and attack I went crazy and wild. I don't really know what happened. . . ."

United Nations "feels this action is not strictly in line with the Security Council resolution" setting up the peace force.

He pointed to Article II, which asked the government ". . . to take all additional measures to stop violence and bloodshed on Cyprus."

The general—whose car was stoned by Turkish - Cypriots Sunday in the belief he favored the Greek side—issued a general appeal for peace.

He said he was assured by President Archbishop Makarios and the Turkish leader, Dr. Fazil Kuchuk, that both want "peace and normality" restored and an eventual political solution of the crisis.

Greek - Cypriot officers said the Turkish defenders rejected a surrender ultimatum relayed by Canadian UN troops.

CANADIANS PATROL

Below the steep mountain sides, Canadian soldiers patrolled the Turkish villages of Phileri, Krini and Aghirda to protect inhabitants. Most Turkish families had fled.

Canadian troops also set up roadblocks on the Kyrenia highway east and north of the castle. A UN spokesman said their aim was to observe military movements and control other traffic into the fighting area.

"There are certain types of fighting we cannot stop," the spokesman said. "If the fighting is of such a nature that interposing yourself between the sides means you are blasted by both sides, that is of no value. . . ."

The UN reported gun fights in at least five other localities during the night.

At Ayior Theodoros, scene of fighting for the last five days, shots were reported during the night and two armed Greek parties were seen outside the village. A tenuous cease-fire arranged by the UN there Monday called for the armed Greek squads to withdraw from hills outside the town.

Incidents were reported at Arsos, west of Limassol; at Xeros, north of the Paphos district, and in Nicosia, where shots and a grenade blast were heard near the truce line dividing Greek and Turkish quarters.

At Mamonia northeast of Phaphos, UN troops reported 100 shots fired during the night and were investigating.

In Athens, UN Mediator Sakkari S. Tuomioja completed talks with the Greek government. Sources said he found the Greek and Turkish views far apart. The Finnish diplomat planned to go to Paris today to report to UN Secretary - General U Thant.

The Greek government announced that it would not participate in an exercise of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) to be held in Turkish Thrace in September.

It is understood the Canadian ministers likely will sound out U.S. reaction to such a move at this week's meeting emphasizing the political situation faced by the minority Liberal government in the Commons.

Meteor owners use their garages for storing tools, ladders, baby buggies, bicycles, toboggans, etc.

(Well, you wouldn't hide a beautiful car like this in a garage, would you?)

Beautiful—yet every inch is practical. For instance, push that button on the dash. Look in the rear view mirror. Meteor's Breezeway rear window is gliding down. Lower it just a little to counteract misting. Lower it the whole way for lots of fresh air—without that wind-tunnel effect. And because the rear window slants inward, weather can't get at it . . . can't obscure your rear vision, summer or winter.

Meteor's size is beautifully right, too. It's a full 215.5 inches long (take six giant steps.) It's wide (two giant steps.) You enjoy a smoother, more stable ride, and far easier handling. And the interior is as big as the feeling you get when you drive a Meteor.

Think of this long, beautiful car in your driveway. (And think of all the stuff you'll be able to store in your garage!) Now go and see your Mercury dealer.

Neutralist Concept of Govt. For Laos as Solution to Problems Faces Collapse

VIENTIANE (AP) — Neutralism in Southeast Asia is losing an important test on the provoking ground of Laos.

The coup in this tiny landlocked kingdom last week resolve the political ills facing whether the neutralist coalition of Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma, which has failed to resolve the political ills facing the country, can continue its efforts for any length of time.

Dissatisfied with the bickering that has gone on among the neutralist, right-wing and pro-Communist Pathet Lao factions of the Souvanna government, a group of right-wing militarists decided it was time for a change.

They seized control of the administrative capital of Vientiane. Souvanna was told he would have to reorganize and enlarge his government. The revolutionary committee said it wanted to participate in naming the persons taken into the new organization.

Souvanna accepted the conditions. But the Pathet Lao, with veto power in the coalition, say they will have no dealings with the cou leaders, Gen. Kouprasith Abhay and Gen. Sino Lanphouthacoul.

HANDS ARE TIED

If the Pathet Lao maintains its position, Souvanna's hands are tied. There also is no indication that the revolutionary committee is ready to back down.

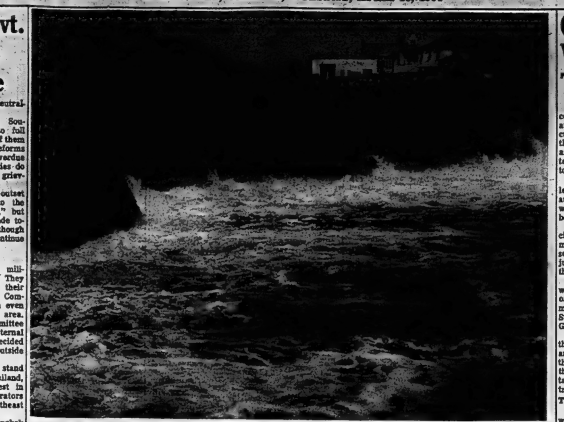
It means that the neutralist concept of government for Laos, as a solution to this strategic country's problems, faces the danger of collapse.

World powers, including the United States, Russia, Britain, France, Australia and India, have disowned the coup because it violates the 1962 Geneva records guaranteeing the neutrality of Laos.

These countries want Souvanna to be restored to full power even though some of them are ready to admit that reforms in his government are overdue and that the revolutionaries do have some legitimate grievances.

Some observers at the outset of the coup referred to the leaders as "stupid fools," but have changed their attitude toward the key men even though they (the observers) continue to disavow the action.

LEADERS MILITANT



The coup leaders are militantly anti - Communist. They feel those who oppose their efforts are coddling the Communists" and creating an even greater danger to this area.

The revolutionary committee contends that this is an internal problem that should be decided by Laotians and not by outside powers.

Strong support to this stand has been given by Thailand, which has a vital interest in Laos. Communist infiltrators threaten Thailand's northeast frontier.

Some observers in Bangkok in Thailand is ready to take any steps necessary to keep Laos from going Communist—even without the support of the major powers which it has joined in alliances.

France has proposed the neutrality of Southeast Asia. There seems nothing in the Laos experiment to give hope that neutrality is the answers. If the revolutionary committee stands firm in Vientiane, it could well mean a reorientation of thinking by the major powers in this country. But even with compromise, the future of neutrality in Laos is bleak.

Coffin Inquiry Hears More Witnesses Who Did Not Testify at Murder Trial

MONTREAL (CP)—Attention continues to focus on Montreal author Jacques Hebert's PAc cuse los Assassins de Coffin as the Coffin inquiry hears more and more witnesses who did not testify at the Gaspe prosecutor's murder trial.

Mr. Justice Roger Ouimet levelled sharp criticism at the author and publisher Monday when he questioned Mr. Hebert's good faith.

In turn, Mr. Hebert has criticized the commission's methods, saying the inquiry was set up to investigate possible injustices in the Coffin trial rather than to judge his book.

The Quebec royal commission was set up following publication of the book in 1956 for the 1953 murder of one of three United States bear hunters killed in the Gaspe Peninsula.

The book puts forward the theory that Quebec government and police railroaded Coffin to the gallows as a scapegoat for the killings in a move to maintain the Quebec tourist industry's appeal for U.S. residents.

THREE SAW JEEP

In Monday's testimony, three witnesses who did not appear at the Coffin trial testified they saw a jeep, not yet accounted for in testimony, in the Gaspe area at the time of the 1953 killings.

Moncton N.B., merchant Gerald Tapp said he was in Gaspe and met a U.S. bear hunter from Pennsylvania and his guide, both dressed in U.S. Army khaki, before they both left in a jeep.

He forgot about the incident until reading that Coffin mentioned seeing a jeep bearing Pennsylvania licence plates with khaki - clad occupants at the scene of the crime. Mr. Tapp said he then telephoned the information to the QPP in Gaspe but never heard from them again so he thought the meeting was irrelevant to the case.

On reading of a Toronto doctor's 1953 report of seeing a similar jeep at the time, he gave the information in an affidavit to Coffin's lawyer who unsuccessfully sought a new trial.

Logging contractor Abbey McCallum and one of his drivers, Gerald Quirion, testified they saw a similar jeep. Mr. Quirion said he had been told by unidentified persons the jeep occupants were looking for three U.S. hunters.

DENIES STATEMENT

Mr. McCallum denied a statement in Mr. Hebert's book that he had "holsted a few" with the jeep's occupants.

Mr. Justice Brossard remarked at the start of the hearing that many of the 60 witnesses heard during the nine-week-old inquiry led him to believe Mr. Hebert "had not always acted and spoken in good faith."

He said he hoped his impression would change by the end of the inquiry and told the author "I hope so for your sake."

Mr. Hebert had questioned the "good faith" of QPP officers doing the investigation for the inquiry. He said he could not see how they could be disinterested, and called for independent investigators. The request was turned down.

"I wonder when the commission is going to start its real mandate," Mr. Hebert said objecting to constant questioning of the accuracy of his book by the inquiry.

"Those who have made false declarations will have to pay the consequences," Mr. Justice Brossard said. "Anyway, it is not I who will judge on the consequences."

Patrol and Observation Posts of Canadian Army In Cyprus Reported Safe

NICOSIA (CP) — Canadian patrols and observation posts were reported safe Monday as the heaviest firing to date was exchanged between Greek- and Turkish-pyriots in the Kyrenis Pas area.

Senior officers of the Canadian contingent of the United Nations force spent the day trying to negotiate with leaders of both sides to end the fight which now has lasted several days.

The Canadians included Lt.-Col. Andrew Woodcock of Sarnia, commander of the Royal 22nd Regiment, Maj. John Bessment of Ottawa, commander of the squadron of Royal Canadian Dragoons attached to the Canadian contingent, Maj. Patrick Tremblay of Chicoutimi, Que., a Royal—22nd company commander, and Capt. Daniel Kay, the Royal 22nd's intelligence officer.

Greek-Cypriots fired at least 50 mortar shells at St. Hilarion Castle during Monday afternoon and machine-gun fire was continuous.

Four Dragoons' armored cars were patrolling around the castle Monday — two behind Greek-Cypriot outposts and the other two behind the Turkish-Cypriots holding the castle.

LEADS PATROL

Sgt. - Maj. Georges Ouellette of Levis, Que., led three Royal 22nd Reconnaissance vehicles along the southern flank of the Kyrenia Mountains, west of Kyrenis Pass.

The Canadian patrols learned that Greek-Cypriots are massing arms and troops in the mountains a few miles west of St. Hilarion Castle.

The Greek-Cypriots made it known Monday that if the Turks withdrew from the castle before noon they would not be attacked. When there apparently was no reply from the Turkish-Cypriots, the Greeks launched their onslaught at 12:30 p.m.

Canadians patrolling in the castle area said the castle, more than 1,000 years old and a great tourist and historic attraction had not been damaged by mortar shells.

They said the Turks were well protected by the castle's thick stone walls.

The 4 in a dian observation posts were safe from the fire of the two opposing sides. They are located west of the Kyrenia Pass in an area described as strategic for both the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

The Canadians are merely observers of the battle, their role being to send out information and protect the civil population.

HAVE NEW RULES

OTTAWA (CP) — New procedures have been worked out for educational institutions to apply for refunds of the eight-per-cent sales tax on building materials, Acting Revenue Minister McIlraith said Monday.

Receding Waterlines Can Be Seen Along River Downtown

The Moira has many moods on a fine spring day — like yesterday for instance — almost all within the restrictions of Belleville city limits.

Just outside town, the stream now is cascading over Canniffon dam, boiling furiously at the foot of it, as though offended at the bad manners of the interruption. Then, composing itself, it begins a leisurely wending of downtown to the city.

There's another bit of an uproar as it hits the broken stumps of Lazier's dam, then the pace seems to quicken slightly as it approaches downtown.

Here is where unhealthy signs begin to show — as the stream widens at its mouth north of the CPR bridge.

So shallow has it become that bars of sand and shale are well above the surface and appear to be growing daily.

What happens when the seasonal summer low drops the Moira's levels even further, when the cascade over the Canniffon dam is sapped of its present thrust?

Only a spit in the ocean into which it inevitably drains, the Moira is also an important tributary of the Bay of Quinte. And the bay can ill afford to lose any more sources of supply from present indications. Receding waterlines can be seen in several points along the Belleville shore, notably along the Bay Bridge Road and Zwick's Island.

Even on a fine day in spring there can be disquieting thoughts, appreciably, down by the water's edge.

Ontario Intelligencer SPORTS

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Softball, baseball, harness racing and other summer sports may have their ups and downs this year, but the picture looks exceptionally bright for the Ontario angler.

The Department of Lands and Forests in a summary of the provincial situation says all indications point to one of the best fishing seasons in years.

Rainbow trout populations in the tributary streams of the Great Lakes have been increasing steadily in strength and distribution of Bass populations are healthy and are augmented by the particularly strong year classes of 1959 and 1963.

Pickerel or walleyes, says the department report, are plentiful in most waters and a few problem areas should continue to show improvement in 1964 as more young fish enter the fishery.

Normal angling success is predicted for the lovers of the musky and pike lunkers. Some interesting introductions of rainbow and brook trout have been made to spring-fed lakes and ponds in various parts. Fishing for these will improve as the populations become established.

Lake trout continue to hold their own and angling success depends almost entirely on the fishermen's ability and experience.

The fish re-stocking program of the department continues at full intensity and special efforts are being made to ensure that hatchery fish contribute directly to the angler's creel.

Fishing regulations have been liberalized in keeping with the reproductive potential of the various fish species and anglers are enjoying a new-found freedom.

Department officials remind us that fishing regulations are ever with us and while special attention is given to clarity, it is simply not possible to establish biologically sound regulations over a large area without exceptions.

A new line was established this year across the province to delineate the two opening dates for pickerel angling. Beginning at Pembroke in the east, the line follows Highways 41, 512 and 60 west to Huntsville, south of Highway 11 to Gravenhurst, north on Highway 69 to the northerly boundary of Muskoka district and thence westerly to Georgian Bay.

South of this line the walleye season opens May 9th and north of the line, May 16. As is well known the season for the Bay of Quinte and adjoining lakes and bays and river mouths opens Friday, May 1st.

Throughout most of Southern Ontario, the pike season opens on May 15th, except for the Bay of Quinte, where there is no closed season. The musky season gets under way June 20th.

The lake trout season is already open, except in Algonquin Park and the general season on brook or speckled trout, rainbows and browns opens May 1st with the exception of parts of Hastings County eastward where it will less effect February 29th.

The Belleville Fish and Game Club and the Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring pickerel derbies beginning opening day (Friday) through Sunday afternoon.

The Fish and Game Derby is limited to club members only while the Prince Edward affair is wide open to everybody who cares to enter. You can fish any waters in the Bay of Quinte or East or West Lake. In the city race, the bay and mouth of the Moira are the hunting grounds.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Dodgers Crippled But Not Dead Yet

Says Softball President

Six Entries Assured

The Commercial Softball League appears confident of six definite starters for the 1964 season, according to league president Don Smith following last night's meeting.

The official entry deadline has been set for next Monday, May 4, but four teams represented last night said they were definitely "in," a fifth is waiting for final official word from its sponsor (expected today) and the sixth also claims to be a sure thing despite being absent from last night's meeting.

Barriage Landscapers, Lightfoot Construction, Belleville Jaycees and City Hotel are the four clubs named and prepared to go. Stewart Warner has also let it be known, according to league officials, that they are definite starters. The sixth team, yet unnamed, attended last night's meeting but requested that the name be withheld until the sponsor is confirmed.

"We are positive of six entries now but it is just a matter of being made official," said Smith, "and that should be looked after by Monday's entry deadline.

With six teams, the loop plans to play a 20-game schedule, opening on Tuesday, May 19. With the opener just three weeks from today, reports are that several clubs have held practices already and others are getting under way this week.

Another league meeting has been scheduled for this Thursday night when it is hoped that final plans can be made and any minor difficulties ironed out well in advance of the opening games.

The meeting has been set for eight o'clock at the City Hotel and Smith has asked that all teams have representation. Plans also call for an election of officers for the 1964 season if enough interested persons turn out. Last year's executive has handled all league business so far this spring.

DON DRYSDALE

Don Drysdale, the last healthy member of Los Angeles' big four, has given the Dodgers' beleaguered pitching staff its most impressive streak since putting together three consecutive injuries.

Taking over where Phil Ortega left off Sunday, Drysdale pitched the Dodgers' second straight shutout Monday night, winning his first game in four starts by limiting Houston Colts to six hits in a 6-0 victory built on a three-homer salvo.

Only one other game was scheduled in either league. In that Washington Senators whipped Los Angeles Angels 6-2.

Drysdale's performance and home runs by Frank Howard, Ron Fairly and Willie Davis—the Dodgers had collected only eight homers in 12 previous games—topped off a heartening day for manager Walt Alston.

Possibly the most important piece of news came from Los Angeles, where Sandy Koufax has been undergoing treatment for a muscle strain in his left arm. Dr. Robert Kerlan reported Koufax might be given permission to throw on the sidelines this weekend.

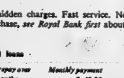
STAFF DEPLETED

Besides Koufax, the Dodger staff has been depleted by injuries to Johnny Podres and relief specialist Ron Perranoski while the attack has lost the services of two - time batting champion Tommy Davis. Nevertheless Alston said the Dodgers' poor start could not simply be traced to injuries.

"The injuries have hurt us," he said. "But the team was not playing up to par before anyone got hurt.

"What we've got to do is win as many as we can while we're crippled, then move when we get all the injured men back. There is nothing wrong with the morale of this team right now that a couple of good wins and some base hits won't cure."

Howard and Fairly took care of the base hits. Each hit a two-run homer and also collected two singles. Willie Davis added a solo homer and a fine run saving catch that preserved Drysdale's shutout.



Howard's homer was his sixth and his 'knee hits lifted his batting average to .365. He is runner-up to Willie Mays in both homers and runs batted in in the National League. Mays has hit seven homers and driven in 18 runs to 11 for the Dodger slugger.

Two - run singles by Mike Brumley and Don Zimmer gave the Senators four runs in the fourth inning off Angels starter Ken McMicks. Fred Valentine drove in the other two tallies, one with his first major league homer.

The victory went to Buster Narum, who went 6 1-3 innings in his first major league start before needing relief help from Marshall Bridges.

Maple Leafs Honored By Small Crowd

—Newcomers Thrilled

TORONTO (CP) — Dull, rainy weather Monday kept crowds to a bare minimum as Toronto Maple Leafs, 1963-64 Stanley Cup champions, were honored at a civic reception at city hall.

Fewer than 8,000 persons, mostly younger children and teen-agers, proved no crowd problem to a force of 500 police and a dozen horses.

City clerk Edgar Norris said the reception was held at the dinner hour to enable school children to attend.

Mayor Philip Givens, Leaf captain George Armstrong and manager-coach George (Punch) Imlach made speeches almost identical to those made in 1962 and 1963.

"We have the greatest hockey team in the world," said the mayor.

"We have the greatest fans in the world," came the reply from Armstrong and Imlach.

Leaf players with the exception of newcomers Andy Bathgate and Jim Pappin, were quite reserved throughout the reception. For most of the others it was the third reception in a row.

Last year about 100,000 persons attended a noon reception in the civic square while in 1962, the first year of the triple string, there were 100,000 on hand.

Mayor Givens made the official presentation to Armstrong, an engraved silver bowl. The rest of the team will have to wait for their boxes as the final series was so doubtful that the city didn't order the gifts until the last moment.

Dave Keon, Frank Mahovlich and Eddie Shack drew the most cheers when introduced. Shack sported an elaborate mouse on his right eye and four stitches he picked up when hit by a puck in the final game of the series against Detroit Red Wings.

Four players missed the reception. Red Kelly was already back in Ottawa to resume his duties as a member of Parliament. Dog McKenney flew to Boston to see his wife who gave birth to a daughter Saturday. Bob Baun reinjured his broken leg when he slipped trying to get into a car at Maple Leaf Gardens, and Don Simmons was absent with no explanation.

Fifth Place Money

Baseball Have-Nots' Goal

NEW YORK (AP)—The have-nots of baseball have a new goal—fifth place money.

The first division clubs always have shared in the World Series loot. When the major leagues expanded to 10 clubs, they didn't change the ground rules.

Commissioner Ford Frick announced Monday that the players voted 478-88 to extend the share-the-wealth program down to fifth place. He said approval by the majors at their joint meeting this summer would be a mere formality.

If this plan had been in effect last year each of the Cincinnati Reds and Cleveland Indians would be approximately $508 richer.

As the fifth - place money will be made available by extracting two per cent off the top of the player pool, there will be a little less for the boys who play the series as well as the second, third and fourth place teams.

Last year's New York Yankee-Los Angeles Dodger player pool was a record $1,017,546.63.

The two per cent off the top would have been $20,350.92 or $10,175.46 for each fifth - place team.

Pre-Olympic Hockey Tour

Russian Official Rebukes Criticisms

OTTAWA (CP) — Criticisms of the way the Canadian Olympic hockey team was treated in Moscow during its pre-Olympic tour last winter have been labelled "biased and entirely false" by a Russian hockey official.

Art Potter, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, made the criticisms in an interview at Innsbruck, Austria, during the Olympics. He said the Canadians received bad publicity in the Moscow press and were unable to rest before their first exhibition game with the Russian Olympic team. The Russians won 9-1.

Vladimir Yegorov, trainer of the Russian B team, replied to Mr. Potter in an interview carried by Novosti press agency and distributed here by the Soviet embassy.

Yegorov said he met Potter at a reception for the Canadians.

"He made no comment then about the reception for the tourists," Yegorov is quoted. "It's true that they had no time to rest before coming out on the ice to face our Olympic team. This question was discussed with the Canadian team officials and suggested that the first game be held a day later, but they declined the offer."

The Russian trainer said it was duly reported in the Moscow newspapers that the Canadians had been unable to show their best because of the short interval between their arrival and the start of the game.

He noted that Potter had offered no comments about the second game in Moscow two days later, won by the Russians 2-1.

Potter also had said the Russians did not play as clean as the Canadians.

Yegorov pointed out that the Canadians had five penalties in the second game while the Russians drew three.

Get Dates Changed

Oil Kings Doubt Marlboros

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Oil Kings and Toronto Marlboros will probably meet in the Memorial Cup final, but the Oil Kings seem to have some doubts about their Eastern opponents.

They requested, and got, change in dates for the best-of-seven final when they lodged a protest Monday.

The Edmonton juniors are all set for the series, but the Marlies still have to win two more games in their best-of-five affair against Montreal NDG Monarchs. If, as the experts predict, the Marlies wind up the series three straight, there would have been no trouble.

And the Marlies didn't have much trouble taking a 7-2 verdict in the series opener Sunday at Montreal.

But Edmonton didn't want to wind up in Toronto for the series and have to wait a couple days in case the Toronto - Montreal series went more than three games.

GAME POSTPONED

So the first game of the final has been postponed from Friday to Sunday to allow for extra games, should they prove necessary.

If Marlboros win the first five games will be in Toronto, with any others scheduled for Leaside. If the Monarchs upset the OHA Junior A champs, all games will be in Montreal.

Perhaps one of the reasons for Edmonton doubts was the Toronto team's schedule for Monday. Instead of holding a workout, they took a leaf from Sid Abel's book and went to the horse races in Montreal.

And although Abel's Detroit Red Wings may have done well at the track during the Stanley Cup playoffs, they didn't do enough on the ice as they lost the series 4-3 to Toronto Maple Leafs.

Steve Allen Develops New Twist to His TV Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Steve Allen has developed a new twist in the Question Man portion of his syndicated television show.

Allen with a wobbly mustache and dressed in cut-away and gates - ajar collar puts funny questions to answers allegedly submitted by viewers. (Recent sample: "A viewer wants to know the question to Y and Z.") Allen: "Blame two relatives of Malcolm X.")

The device not only gives new life to radio's old "answer man" idea, but opens up a broad new area for the reuse of old jokes.

Meanwhile, back on radio, a five - minute CBS network program is providing that a large segment of the listening audience still likes the old question and answer format.

"Ask Miss Fickett," on the air only two months, is receiving around 700 letters a week. This amount of mail would be welcomed by producers of some big evening television shows.

The format is traditional and simple. Actress Mary Fickett answers—or invites guest experts to answer—questions sent in by listeners.

Favorite query, as far as Miss Fickett and the show's producers are concerned, was what happens to the cherries that follow the famous Washington blossoms?

Also starred in the Columbia release are George C. Scott, Sterling Hayden, Keenan Wynn and Slim Pickens.

It Took 15 Years, But—'Luke' Gets Movie Lead

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Fifteen years ago, Fox studios let Richard Cromna's option lapse because he "wasn't leading-man material."

Did the young actor fret over the injustice of it all? Not for a minute.

"They were absolutely right," he now reasons. "I had a hunch nothing would happen to me in movies until I was 35. I photographed too young, and there aren't many good parts for young men. Anyway, female stars don't like to play opposite someone who looks like a kid."

The kicker to the story is that Dick Cromna is now back at Fox playing the title role in John Goldfarb, Please Come Home! opposite Shirley Maclaine. Cromna now is 37, which makes him two years late on his prediction. He might have made it sooner, but he's been busy.

As a matter of fact, he's been busy since age 11. That's when he started as a radio actor, and one of the series he performed on was Our Miss Brooks. When the show converted to television, Dick had just been dropped by Fox and he signed on.

He played the daffy high school student for four profitable years, finally graduating at age 37.

Were the studios ready for him then? Obviously not. So he signed on for six years as Luke in The Real McCoys. He emerged a rich, unhurried man.

Dick turned down 25 or 30 proposals for comedy series before committing himself to an hour drama out of the Big Crosby stable, Slattery's People. He plays the minority leader in a legislature, representing an unstated party in an unspecified state. CBS snapped it up.

Then Fox started romancing. "You know those things happen," Dick said realistically. "A studio starts out casting by asking Jack Lemmon, Rock Hudson and 10 other big stars. They're unavailable, so the studio keeps going down the list of actors. Finally they came to me."

CBS let him show the Slattery's People pilot to director W. Lee Thompson who was impressed. But the acid test was Shirley Maclaine's reaction. She was flitting about Africa or someplace, and Dick's deadline for starting the series was approaching.

"Everybody was worried but me," he recalled. "I wanted to do the picture, but my first allegiance was to the series. I was fatalistic about the whole thing."

Shirley finally returned, saw the film and liked it. CBS and Crosby consented to set back the starting date of the series, so Dick found himself back at his onetime alma mater playing a Jewish U-2 pilot who crash-lands in an Arab Kingdom.

Now persons employed in every walk of life are making application for a Social Insurance Number!

Your government is issuing Social Insurance Number Cards in place of the unemployment insurance numbers that most employed people have had until now. The new numbers will help government to use modern office methods for greater efficiency in handling unemployment insurance, and also other social benefits such as proposed pension plans.

For these reasons, you are invited to apply for a Social Insurance Number, even if you are not a contributor to the unemployment insurance plan. Here's what you do—

IF YOU ARE AN EMPLOYEE: Your employer will give you an application form for a Social Insurance Number. You can help most by completing it promptly and accurately and returning the form to your employer. He will send it to the nearest office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

IF YOU ARE UNEMPLOYED: If you are receiving unemployment insurance benefit you will complete an application form for a Social Insurance Number when you report to the U.I.C. in person or by mail.

IF YOU ARE AN EMPLOYER: If you are an employer registered with the Unemployment Insurance Commission—you will automatically receive application forms. You are asked to distribute them to your employees, have them completed and signed by each employee and returned promptly together, not individually, to the local office of the Commission.

If you are an employer who is not registered with the Unemployment Insurance Commission—please get in touch with your local Unemployment Insurance Commission office and inform them how many employees you have. The Unemployment Insurance Commission office will then send you application forms for each of your employees to complete. When all forms have been completed, you will return them to the Unemployment Insurance Commission. Your employees' Social Insurance Number Cards will be sent to you for distribution to them.

Your government asks for your co-operation in introducing the new numbers as quickly as possible. Apply for your SOCIAL INSURANCE NUMBER NOW.

W. Rosebush Found Dead In Gutted Home
Dead is William Rosebush, 100 Bridge Street.
He was living alone at the time—his mother, Mrs. G. Rosebush is currently patient in Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital.
Cause of the fire is not known.
It was discovered about 12.30 a.m. when volunteer fireman Leonard Tripp—who lives within 100 yards of the scene, turned in the alarm.
He then ran a full block to the rear of the house nearest hydrant and firefighters had water on the blaze within minutes of the alarm.
Afterwards coroner Dr. C. R. Richmond was called when Rosebush's body was found. He formally pronounced the victim dead.

'Wait for the Showdown'

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—An English colt that won't run in the morning and a French horse that crossed the channel on a passport are among the leading choices for Wednesday's 2,000 Guinness first of the season's classic races.

The English hope is Mrs. David Prenn's Showdown, long the form-book fancy. He goes like a bomb in the afternoon but won't raise a gallop in his morning workouts. So the touts are telling everybody to "wait for the showdown."

The passport deal results from a new system whereby the French Jockey Club issues passport - style credentials facilitating equine travel to other countries.

EXPECT UP TO 22

Up to 22 horses are expected to go to the post in the one-mile gallop, worth about $40,000 (but your bedding is only $10.95 a single bedding here).

The favorite will be either Showdown or Port Merion, a handsome steel - grey colt by Abernant that just missed a "two thousand" in his own racing days. Port Merion, winner of the seven-furlong Free Handicap in storming fashion, is trained by Sir Gordon Richards, former champion jockey whose son Peter trains in Canada.

Decision Reserved On 'Lip'

MIDDLEBURY, Vt. (AP)—Decision was reserved Monday on a motion calling for Los Angeles Dodgers coach Leo Durocher to return to Vermont in connection with a $150,000 alienations of affections suit brought against him by a Middlebury bricklayer.

Judge Rudolph Daley told attorneys for Durocher and Rene Morin of Middlebury and Swanton, who brought the suit, that he would probably make a decision this week.

Morin charges Durocher with stealing the affections of his wife, Anna, 51.

Durocher has denied the charges, calling them "asinine." He said he was a close friend of the Morin couple's daughter, Carolyn, 23.

Mrs. Morin and her four daughters, including Carolyn, have denied the allegations made by Morin.

Bookie's Death Linked With Soccer Scandal

LONDON (AP) — A bookmaker's body was pulled out of a reservoir Monday and police immediately linked his death with the soccer scandal of alleged fixed matches in England.

The bookie was 52-year-old Bernard Hancock. Nottingham police said he had been interviewed a year ago about alleged bribery of players and once again only a few days ago.

Hancock's body was found in a reservoir in Derbyshire. Police did not say whether foul play was suspected.

A British Sunday newspaper, The People, has alleged over the last three weeks that many players have been bribed to throw matches in the English soccer league.

You hear a lot about the quality of British Cars.

Read what a British expert thinks about the quality of a Canadian car

Recently, famous British motoring journalist, Michael Kemp, put a Canadian-built Rambler Classic through a stiff "Family Test." Read what he enthusiastically reported about the Rambler Classic in the London Daily Sketch, February 15, 1964.

"By British standards it is large, powerful and bristling with one-up-manship from tip to tail ... Top speed is more than 100 m.p.h.—cruising speed, with complete freedom from wind noise, more than 90 m.p.h. ... A soft, typically American ride but with reassuring roadholding. Hard to fault."

Kemp's wife drove the Classic for 50 miles and made out a personal "score-card." Her marks, out of ten, were: "Looks, 8; Comfort, 9; Gimmicks, 9." Her comments: "Effortless motoring. Interior trim's fluorescent colouring is superb—a lesson to some British firms."

Coming from the traditionally reserved British, praise like that means a lot. Why don't you discover for yourself why Michael Kemp was so impressed with the Rambler Classic? Visit your nearby Rambler Dealer and put a Rambler Classic 6 or V8 through its paces. It's a jolly good car.

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

4/28/64

Astrological Forecasts

BY SYDNEY OMARR

For April 29

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Avoid misunderstanding due to unclear communications. Includes correspondence, letter writing. Be specific, plain — simple. Subtle or "sophisticated" methods not advocated today.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Good now to use your intuition. Resist tendency to be lazy. Time to get up and go! Exercise independence of thought, action. Lucky position highlights use of hidden talents.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): You can gain more now with honey than with vinegar. Means being charming outweighs being indigent. Face facts. Deal with them in thoughtful manner. Don't look for trouble. Avoid "direct attack."

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Obtain hint from Gemini message. Where the signs all read stop — you should go. But only if your tactics are "different." Originality is no luxury today. It's vital!

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 22): Now is time to check into routine affairs. There is money-saving idea just "around the corner." Do some searching to find it. Creative activity encouraged. Get it down on paper!

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Quick solutions, changes appear to be order of the day. Be prepared. You could find yourself centre of full-scale controversy. Maintain dignity, sense of fair play.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Be willing to experiment. Pay no attention to warnings from the timid. Your sense of diplomacy may prove its value today. You are able to see "right" people. Do so!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): If you attended to family affairs yesterday — you are on right track. Today, examine "secret" possibilities. Reach out into left field for unorthodox methods. You can add to income by so doing!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Offers due to be made. Some of them are merely "feelers." Hold out for quality. Lunar cycle at peak. But there are some premature, uncertainties. Be steadfast — stick to principles.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Fatal what you start. Help one less fortunate. Good to share knowledge. Throw off any secret fears — knowledge chases gloom. Consider expanding sources of income.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): If you want to keep friends . . . be neither a borrower nor a lender. Don't attempt to "use" friendships. But don't permit yourself to be used, either! Bolls down to a question of money. Hold tight.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Follow example of Gemini individual. Numerous slight pressures evident. Rise above petty differences. By showing understanding of situations you will make wonderful impression. Good to share knowledge.

If today is your birthday . . . you are determined, inventive, possess much personal magnetism . . . and soon you get started you go right to the top. Trick is getting you started!

MEDIEVAL CASTLE IN CYPRUS BATTLING — This is a view of the 11th Century St. Hilarion Castle in northern Cyprus which today is a military fortress, a focal point in the struggle between Turkish and Greek Cypriots. When communal fighting broke out last December on the island Turkish Cypriots living in nearby mountain villages rushed in and took over the castle from the Greek Cypriot caretaker. Greek-Cypriots Hold Their Fire As UN Denounces Fight for Pass

NICOSIA (AP)—Greek - Cypriots held their fire today after the United Nations peace-force commander announced their drive to hurl the Turks from the strategic Kyrenia Pass.

There was no indication how long the lull, which set in Tuesday, would last. But UN observers reported relative quiet throughout the island.

The commander of the Greek-Cypriot forces besieging St. Hilarion Castle said he had halted his drive to consolidate his position. The medieval fortress is a key to the Turkish-held Kyrenia Pass and the highway through it, which connects Nicosia with the north coast of Cyprus.

In Nicosia, where sporadic shooting between the Greek and Turkish-Cypriot quarters is routine, only four shots were heard during night.

In the Parliament Tuesday night Opposition Leader Dinsbaker protested that UN troops on Cyprus were mere "vulnerable spectators." He demanded to know whether the peace force had the authority to disarm Cypriot fighters.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin replied that the former prime minister's questions were "indeserving" that could add to the difficulties of the UN force.

Canadian troops of the UN contingent in Cyprus came under fire for the second day in a row Tuesday as they patrolled positions around St. Hilarion Castle.

"We were shot up again this morning by Turks both when we were coming up the mountain and when we were coming down," said Sgt. Bert Diveto of Oromocto, N.B.

Diveto said that the shots struck the Canadian armored cars "though they came close enough."

One shot also was fired at Pte. Andre Dejeunais of the Royal 22nd Regiment on duty with the all-Turkish-Cypriot village of Aghirda. The Montreal soldier said the bullet struck two feet away.

Indian Lt.-Gen. Prem Singh Gyani, the UN commander, declared the Greek offensive to gain control of the main Nicosia-Kyrenia highway had swept aside his proposals for a cease-fire on the island and had "seriously jeopardized" the role of its month-old force.

Gyani said he had sent UN Secretary-General U Thant a full report on the offensive, which he said had come "as a

Astronomer Sent to View Ground Where Policemen Saw Odd Craft

SOCORRO, N.M. (AP) — An astronomer from the Dearborn Observatory at Northwestern University was here today to examine the secluded hill where a Socorro policeman reported seeing a mysterious, egg - shaped flying object.

Dr. J. Allen Hynek was sent

Today's Chuckle

The rich may not live longer, but it certainly seems like it to their poor relations.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A low pressure area centred over southern Michigan this morning and drifting slowly eastward promises unsettled weather conditions for most parts of Ontario during the next two days. Cloudy skies scattered showers and a few thunderstorms are forecast for southern Ontario, generally cloudy weather and a few widely scattered showers in central and northern sections of the province. Temperatures are expected to remain in the mid-60s in both southern and Northern Ontario today and Thursday.

to New Mexico after a rash of reports that unidentified flying objects had been seen in the state.

Policeman Lonnie Zamora said the object he saw Friday was brilliant white. He said there was a red marking on it like an upside down v with three lines across the top through the middle and at the bottom. He said that from a distance there appeared to be two figures in white coveralls outside the object. It flew off with a roar when he approached, he said.

Since Zamora's experience at least six reports have been made to authorities including one from a youth who said he fired several shots at something about 100 feet in the air near Moriarty.

Dr. Hynek said his investigation in Socorro would determine whether he would visit Roswell, where State Police Capt. Martin Vigil found the ground still smouldering 20 hours after a reported sighting.

One Third Budget Schooling

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Davis said Tuesday many economic problems created by the coming of automation could be solved by his department's newly-created youth branch.

The minister, in presenting the 1964-65 department budget, touched on topics ranging from proposed changes in school examinations to Ontario's centennial project.

More than $400,000,000—about one - third of the provincial budget—was allotted to educational purposes.

Mr. Davis said the "veritable youth explosion" being experienced by the province will heighten the problems of education to be incurred by the youth department.

In addition, he said, "rumors of an increase in the obsolescence of certain jobs are not helping our young people to develop courage and drive."

RECOMMENDS PLAN

Robert F. (Bob - Scarlett), an ex-teacher and the Liberal party's education critic, recommended a plan to put university graduates to work as teachers without putting them through a teacher training course.

He said men and women with bachelor's degrees should be sent to school as interne teachers to gain experience as they work.

Mr. Nixon also urged the government to commission a new history of Canada that would explain the Indians' viewpoints. He said that many French-speaking persons feel their part in the growth of Ontario is not adequately recognized.

Education Minister Davis said most school principals agree that "we should look into the whole question of history as it is taught in our schools."

The teaching of French to English-speaking students is becoming increasingly common in Ontario schools, the minister said. A total of 104,306 elementary school pupils were taught French last year.

One factor holding back French instruction was a shortage of teachers who were fluent in the language. Mr. Davis said the government is sponsoring summer courses in French for teachers.

Mr. Davis told the legislature

Economic Policies On Line

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal government's fiscal and economic policies were being fired upon from all corners of the opposition benches Tuesday, and a speech by U.S. State Undersecretary George Ball was caught, and shredded, in the cross-fire.

Mr. Ball delivered his now-famous speech in Harriman, N.Y., Saturday. It has earned some publicity in the Commons more than any American document since the U.S. state department issued a "clarification" of Canadian-U.S. nuclear negotiations 15 months ago.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker mentioned the two papers in the same breath Tuesday as he tried to get Finance Minister Gordon to comment on Mr. Ball's speech.

"I do not think we have ever got a more complete rejection from the administration of the United States on what Canada should do than Mr. Ball gave vent to the other day."

Would Mr. Gordon share the "irksome terms" of criticism that he and his associates used during the controversy over the state department release of Mr. Diefenbaker wordcred.

WILL DISCUSS SPEECH

Mr. Gordon told the House Monday that the government intended to discuss with U.S. cabinet members the reformation of Canadian government economic policy by Mr. Ball. They were to meet here today for the opening of the Canada-U.S. joint cabinet committee on trade and economic affairs.

In his speech Mr. Ball said that immediate repercussions would flow from any changes in "existing ground rules" in economic and trade policies between the two countries.

New Democratic Leader Douglas said last night that this would indicate "a certain point has been reached." In order for Canada to get out of the existing problem, he said, there must be a gradual change from foreign policy control to foreign loan capital.

Mr. Ball's statements indicated a "tougher" attitude than to this end would invite restrictions or retaliations from the U.S. "tough" and we have become an economic satellite and are as naive as all."

All the debate on this question came as the Common continued consideration of income tax amendments to implement tax changes announced in the March 16 budget.

WOULD CANCEL INCREASE

The particular clause at issue would cancel a scheduled increase in the withholding tax paid to foreign shareholders of outside companies controlled by that don't offer 25 - per - cent equity participation to Canadians.

Mr. Douglas said there were only "trifling provisions" in any year and he would not look for them. The point was that the government had "apparently completely capitulated on this question" of foreign control.

Mr. Diefenbaker's criticisms of government economic and fiscal policy were much more jagged-edged.

Countries everywhere wanted to invest in Canada, he said, but the "tinkering" of the finance minister and the "uncertain, irregular, ill - conceived policies" of the government is driving foreign capital away.

He said that in the last three months of 1962, and the first three months of 1963, U.S. investment in Canada expanded by $400,000,000. In the last quarter of 1963, he said, the figure dropped to $50,000,000. The "tinkering and economic nonsense" had caused it.

SAYS INVESTMENT DOWN

"Since they have been in investment has gone down and down and now this one minister has gone on television in Washington in order to . . . implore, as it were, an increase in the amount of investment."

Mr. Gordon didn't make any detailed reply to either Mr. Diefenbaker or Mr. Douglas as the amendments finally worked through the resolution stage and were given first reading.

Meanwhile, criticism and advice on the country's economic

ROYAL COUPLE IN ROME FOR WEDDING — Princess Irene of the Netherlands and Spanish Prince Don Carlos Bourbon - Parma wave to friends on arriving at airport in Rome from Paris. They were married today in the Basilica of St. Mary Major in the Italian capital.

Spanish Pretender Is Wed In Rome to Dutch Princess

ROME (AP)—Princess Irene of The Netherlands and Prince Carlos of Bourbon-Parma were married today in wedding boycotted by the Dutch royal family, opposed by the Dutch government and ignored by Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Spanish regime.

The headstrong Dutch princess and the Carlist pretender to the Spanish throne exchanged vows in the Borghese Chapel of Rome's Basilica of St. Mary Major before Paolo Cardinal Giobbe, the former papal nuncio to The Netherlands.

The chapel was filled with 4,000 guests, supporters of the Carlist cause and Dutch visitors in Rome. But no ruling member of a royal house was present, and Franco sent no representative.

Irene's parents, Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard, and her three sisters remained in Holland because the Dutch government did not want the royal family involved in the contest for the Spanish throne.

But the queen was not estranged from her second daughter. Three hours before the ceremony she received a telephone call from Irene and talked to her for nine minutes. And Irene's wedding dress of white silk, trimmed with Bruges lace that has been a Dutch royal heirloom for generations, reportedly was a gift from Juliana.

Despite the furor caused in The Netherlands by Irene's public espousal of the Carlist cause and her conversion to Roman Catholicism, editorials in Dutch newspapers wished her luck.

"Let us hope that the ties with her family and The Netherlands soon can be restored," said the Catholic newspaper Volkskrant.

They were followed by his parents, Prince Xavier and Princess Magdalena of Bourbon-Parma; the Portuguese pretender, the Duke of Braganza; Prince and Princess Edouard de Lobkowicz of Austria; Prince Maria Terresa, Cecilia, and Maria de las Nieves, his sisters, and others.

When the procession entered the basilica, the organ boomed out the Wilhelmus, the Dutch national anthem. Scores of Dutch priests and many tourists from Holland cried out "leve Prinses Irene"—long live Princess Irene.

Govt. Urged to Make Greater Taxing, Spending Power Use

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's post-war governments have relied too heavily at times on changing credit conditions to influence the economy in one direction or another.

This, plus the fact that such monetary policy has had only limited success in combatting unemployment, has been the major shortcoming of the post-war period.

These were the comments made by the economic commission on banking and finance.

Its report urges the government to make greater use of its taxing and spending power. Developments in the past had not been used "vigorously or extensively" in the post-war period.

However, the commission also noted that even the federal government is limited in what it can do. There has been a lack of co - ordination with provincial and municipal governments.

The two junior governments spend 1¼ times as much as Ottawa on goods and services. Their combined capital outlays are three times as high.

The commission also stressed that it was not suggesting any encroachment by Ottawa on the responsibilities of the other governments.

"Indeed, we believe that progress in the concerting of policies can only come about through agreements about the objectives and limits of co-ordination."

The commission said it realizes that such a step would be politically and administratively difficult.

But it added:

"We have found in our enquiries sufficient interest in such co-ordination among provincial governments to lead us to believe that significant progress can be made, though persistence and patience will be required."

Meanwhile, the federal government was exhorted by the commission to be bolder in its attempts at economic stabilization.

"Appropriate fiscal deficits or surpluses incurred in sensible ways for sensible purposes are after all, not national disasters but the acts of prudent economic management."

There has been only limited acceptance by governments of this view, the report said.

The commission noted that annually the public there is a good deal of misunderstanding about the federal debt and "exaggerated fears over the consequences of a string of federal deficits.

"For its part, the commission said there may be circumstances where federal deficits or surpluses may need to be "considerably larger" than they have been in the past.

Will Leave Hospital

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — British actor Peter Sellers was to leave hospital today after three and one - half weeks confinement following a severe heart attack.

Sellers, 38, probably will spend three to four weeks convalescing in his rented hillside home in nearby Beverly Hills.

Mounties Catch Soviet Reporter Offering Bribe

Tried to Buy Secret Industrial Information

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is waiting hourly for confirmation from the Soviet Embassy that Russian reporter Vasily Tarasov has been sent out of the country.

External Affairs Minister Martin announced late Tuesday that the reporter for the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia was caught red-handed Monday when he tried to bribe secret industrial information out of a civil servant.

The government employee, whom officials won't identify, tipped the RCMP when he realized Tarasov was befriending him with a view to offering him the bribe.

Tarasov's non-immigrant visa was cancelled, he was turned over to Russian embassy authorities, and Soviet Ambassador Ivan Shpedko was told Tarasov must leave the country immediately.

One government source indicated that the external affairs department had received word of the Russian embassy's intention to arrange advance notification of his departure was expected. Another source said Tarasov probably will be carried out "right away," without the formality of notification.

WIFE IN OTTAWA

Tarasov, a genial, blonde crew-cut man of 35, whose wife and six-year-old daughter lived here with him for the last year, had been in Australia, New Zealand, and Pakistan before coming to Ottawa.

Alexander Zhiguley, reporter for the Russian news agency Tass, was expelled from Australia widely throughout Canada whereas Zhiguley concentrated his work in Ottawa. Zhiguley hadn't seen Tarasov for several days and knew nothing about the Monday evening bribe attempt until late Tuesday when the news broke.

According to Mr. Martin's statement in the Commons, Tarasov sought secret information on Canadian industrial processes, but because of the advance tip-off by the RCMP, did not obtain them. He was taken into custody Monday night soon after he obtained some documents—apparently at a Soviet plant — and questioned before being turned over to the embassy.

An external affairs department spokesman said he did not know what considerations went into a government decision that Tarasov should be ordered out of the country instead of being charged with espionage and tried in the Canadian courts.

On the basis of experience in earlier cases, however, Tarasov apparently was regarded as a single agent and not one operat-

Will Probe Charges In Committee

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons privileges committee received the job Tuesday of inquiring into an opposition MP's charge that he was offered a fat campaign fund to switch allegiance to the Liberal party in the Commons.

With the blessing of Prime Minister Pearson and the support of the opposition MP—Gerard Girouard (PC—Labelle) —a motion to hold the inquiry proposed by Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) was accepted.

The action climaxed a day in which the Liberals' national organizer, Keith Davey, denied there was any discussion of campaign funds or money in his conversation with Mr. Girouard.

Mr. Girouard moved from the Social Credit party to the Progressive Conservatives last week.

It was following this step that Mr. Girouard levelled charges which Mr. Knowles said Tuesday amounted to an accusation of attempted bribery and therefore constituted an insult to Parliament.

CITES RULE

Mr. Knowles cited a Commons privileges rule in a "high crime" so offer money or other advantage to an MP in relation to his duties in the Commons. He also said the Criminal Code provides a maximum penalty of 14 years for anyone who gives or offers corruptly" money to an MP to do something in the MP's official capacity.

"If this has happened I say it is an insult not just to the honorable member for Labelle but it is an insult to this House," Mr. Knowles said.

However, he added, Mr. Girouard also had said Monday that Prime Minister Pearson stopped the negotiation between Mr. Davey and Mr. Girouard "not because these activities were wrong but because they would be embarrassing to Mr. Pearson's) efforts to retain the (voting) support of the Social Credit party for the minority Liberal government.

"I imagine that such a remark, unless it can be substantiated, is an insult and a calumny against the prime minister."

Mr. Pearson supported Mr. Knowles' proposal in view of Mr. Girouard's charges, which "the flat denial of those allegations" and report in the press that the prime minister had

Most U.S. Cigarette Smokers Getting Over the Cancer Scare

NEW YORK (AP) — "Most smokers seem to be getting over the cancer care. After all, most people don't worry about the atom bomb" says Denver distributor of tobacco products.

Cigarette consumption figures he won't be the one to get cancer" —an Atlanta druggist.

"I see more worry about cancer and they say it's for the younger ones to stop smoking. The older people say 'I'm old anyway' — a Hollywood saleslady.

Cigarette smoking in the U.S. is back in vogue and these are some of the reasons smokers are giving.

The turnaround began last year, continued through April, a bare three months since a U.S. government report linked cigarette smoking to cancer.

The change has caused the price of cigarette company stocks to increase, and brightened the sales outlook for manufacturers, whose revenue lagged in the first quarter.

And the report also has brought new emphasis on charcoal filtered brands and what promises to be an entirely new approach to cigarette advertising.

Most experts had expected the report would fail to knock out cigarettes, asserting since past "health scares" have had only temporary effects. But few expected so many smokers to be abandon so quickly their intentions to quit or cut down smoking.

A Louisville tobacco retailer, quoting customer came, typified with another reason why many regulars resumed smoking so quickly: "We were gaining too much weight."

On Jan. 11 an advisory committee to the surgeon general of the United States branded cigarette smoking as the major cause of lung cancer and a contributing factor to other serious diseases.

A U.S.-wide survey by The Associated Press determined that cigarette sales are back to normal or near normal in most major cities.

Location of Water Control Dams to Be Made by Survey

The Conservation Authorities Branch of the Ontario Department of Resources will be asked to make an engineering survey to determine the most suitable location for water control dams on the west branch of the Moira river system.

The Moira Authority now operates control dams at Lingham Lake on the upper reaches of the Black Creek contributory of the Moira and also at Stoodacmitta Lake on the Stoodacmitta River, but there is no such dam on the upper reaches of the Moira. The one exception is a dam near Delora.

When the original survey of the Moira River Valley was conducted late in the 1940's the Big Bend site west of Moira Lake was recommended as the location of a water reservoir location.

The project was never proceeded with, however, as construction of two large dams costing considerable money, would have been entailed.

The Authority request to the Conservation Authorities Branch would be to conduct an engineering survey to determine what other suitable locations might be available for water control dams and reservoirs.

Identical Bids For Asphalt Disturb Council

Assertion that "there must be collusion somewhere," was heard at city council Monday when tenders for the year's supply of emulsified asphalt were read to council members.

Three tenders for the supply of the asphalt were received — the price $30. 40 per 100 gallons.

"I'm perturbed about these identical bids," stated Alderman Jack Allin. "There must be collusion somewhere."

He moved that the matter be reported to Ottawa.

Council accepted the recommendation of city purchasing agent A. L. Dobey, that city requirements be purchased equally from the Bitumuls Company and Flintkote Co. of Canada Ltd.

The tender of the third firm was disqualified because no deposit was enclosed.

Animal Shot Identified as Hybrid Breed

Even wolves aren't what they used to be!

For the second time in recent months a wild canine has been killed in the Belleville area and authorities believe both were hybrid wolves.

The latest killing occurred yesterday when a woman on Sidney township's sixth concession phoned provincial police to report a marauding animal around the chicken house of a neighbor, Alton Sine.

OPP constable Gord Oliver hurried to the scene but the animal had been shot by Mr. Sine by the time he arrived.

Suspecting it was a wolf, the officer phoned the carcass to Tweed Department of Lands and Forests' offices.

Game wardens identified it as a hybrid breed — the crossing of wolf and domestic canine strains. It was sent to experimental laboratories in Toronto for tests.

Several months ago a similar specimen was run over by an automobile and killed near Foxboro, provincial police said.

Illegal Catches Of Pickerel Down This Year

TRENTON — Game Warden George Warner with the Lands and Forests Department at Stirling, said today that convictions for illegal catches of pickerel during the spawning season this year had been relatively few as compared to other years.

Mr. Warner explained this by saying that when the fish began their "run", the river rose, and said that this happy co-incidence had frustrated many of the would-be poachers.

He said, however, that there had been some apprehension, and that these persons would appear in court later.

The members of the Lower Trent Valley Fish and Game Protective Association assisted Lands and Forest officials in patrolling the river at No. 1 Dam each evening during the pickerel spawning season.

Meanwhile, reports from Prince Edward County indicates that the smelts are running in great numbers in North Bay. Nocturnal fishermen .... and women, too ... are reported taking the tasty little fish from the bay in basket baskets.

There are no limits on smelt fishing, with the exception of one ... anyone wishing to use a Seine net more than six feet long, must first obtain a dollar license, and these may be obtained at sports' stores in Trenton or Belleville.

Ireland Adds Further Items To Hydro Stock

Ireland's liquidation sale of Belleville Utilities appliances is still going strong and they are now offering many items from their regular stock — such as television and furniture — at sale prices.

Ireland's decision to add their own merchandise to the sale was to make room for a gigantic furniture promotion in the near future. In co-operation with Beverly Furniture, Ireland's will offer some extraordinary furniture bargains to the shoppers of the Quinte area.

Very soon now a direct mail folder will be going out to Belleville and district homes. However, friends and customers of Ireland's may pick up their advance copy at the store, 210 Front Street.

John W. Fisher Urges Everyone To Mark Canada's Centennial

With much enthusiasm and showmanship Mr. John W. Fisher, Commissioner of the National Centennial Administration urged everyone, including service clubs, organizations, church groups, schools and individuals to get behind the effort to mark Canada's 100th birthday in 1967, when he addressed the Canadian Club of Belleville and district at their annual business meeting held last evening in Queen Elizabeth School.

The auditorium was filled to capacity to hear Mr. Fisher present a number of suggestions for promoting the celebration of Canada's centennial. Previous to the introduction of the speaker by past president Mrs. J. H. Forrester a number of items of business were discussed including the adoption of the revision of the constitution as proposed by Mr. L. A. Kells. A report from the nominating committee was given by Mrs. R. A. Bowerman on behalf of Mrs. D. I. McKinnon who was unavoidably detained. Mrs R. Arnold also was a member of this committee.

NEW OFFICERS

Members of the executive for the next year are as follows: past president — Mrs. J. For rester; president — Mrs. J. Denness; 1st vice-president — Mr. John Lennox; 2nd vice-president — Mrs. A. Lee; 3rd vice-president — Mr. George Maybee; treasurer — Mrs. D. Maddock; secretary — Mrs. H. Parker; assistant secretary — Mrs. G. R. Loclin. Retiring in 1965 Mrs. Goldie Livingstone, Mrs. H. Graham, Mrs. Mervin Jones; retiring in 1966, Mrs. K. David, Mr. L. Kells, Mr. W. Hurst; retiring in 1967, Mr. R. D. Arnott, Mrs. J. Stock and Mr. V. White. The new president Mrs. J. Dennens spoke briefly and hoped that she might carry on as well as her predecessors who have done an excellent job.

Mr. Fisher is a native of Sackville, New Brunswick with a forefather Mr. Charles Fisher, one of the fathers of Confederation, is conversant with the two official languages of Canada. He has had a most varied career as lawyer, journalist, commentator on radio and television, author and lecturer and was appointed to his present position as commissioner of the Centennial Administration on January 15, 1963. He urged his audience not to be dull about the celebration, as the confederation in 1867 was not dull.

He referred to the fact that the centennial commission was set up by the Federal Government as an agency to promote plans and set up programs for the centennial year. It will have a confederation train with highly skilled artists portraying the Fathers of Confederation carrying the story of Canada from coast to coast and of the impact of this upon the children, 18 and under way; also featured would be war figures, perhaps of famous explorers including Champlain, Cartier, MacKenzie and many others with prerecorded tape recorders prepared to answer a varied number of historical questions by the pressing of a button. These, all to impress the young people of Canada with the tremendous courage of its forebearers and of their magnificent heritage. The speaker noted that in this area the pride of the loyalists could be uplifted with their historical background promoted. Caravans will also be used, the speaker stated, with historic models, where trains do not pass, there will be movies and great splurges of centennial activities.

YOUTH PROGRAM

A youth program whereby 1500 young people could be transported back and forth from one coast to the other is planned, and this it is hoped will cross the ethnic lines of prejudices and will be an opportunity of a life time for these boys and girls. "Prejudices are minimized by contact," Mr. Fisher emphasized.

Many other ideas in promotion of the celebration included travelling choirs, special photographs, perhaps a military tattoo to be staged across the country all within easy access to the average sized communities with no hogging by the larger cities, but events to be held in places comparable in size to Belleville. All these plans have to be thrashed out by the government and then turned back to the Centennial Administration to be put forth. "This program will be tremendous" commented the speaker "with an estimated spending of 100 million dollars."

Canada is a land full of lore, glamour and folk tales with thousands of possibilities to mark this event. There are many things yet to be done and the Centennial might just be the prod which is needed for a number of projects to be undertaken with several suggestions such as special landscaping jobs, prizes for trips in Canada, decoration of school grounds, planting trees or dedicating new buildings.

NEED FOR IMAGINATION

The speaker stressed the need for imagination in planning for the centennial and explained that there will be something different for every one. Some gimmicks are necessary in addition to the cultural and more serious aspects of the celebration.

The commissioner concluded his interesting talk by asking "What is being done in Belleville in respect to the Centennial?" and hoped that everyone would take advantage of this great event to preserve more of something which will leave a mark in history perhaps 100 to 500 years from now. "Great decisions will be made, to excellence will be awarded to Canadians rather than to any other better, for a successful celebration," he stated.

Mr. Fisher who was most exuberant in his planning of the Centennial celebration interspersed his talk with many humorous incidents which have occurred in this respect.

An interesting question and answer period followed, after which Mr. Enos David expressed the thanks on behalf of the members for the enthusiastic talk of a "wonderful birthday party to come." Mrs. Forrester also extended her personal thanks to the speaker.

Mrs. K. Bird provided piano accompaniment for the opening and closing numbers and refreshments were served by Mrs. H. Parker and her committee at the close of the meeting.

Extra Week Tacked on Time in Jail

A 21-year-old Belleville youth was given an extra seven days in jail today for common assault after a restaurant fight.

Howard Radway, arrested two weeks ago on the charge, sought trial by another magistrate when he came first before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

This morning he was convicted by Magistrate Phillips who tacked on the extra week to the time Radway already has been in jail.

The magistrate reduced the charge to common assault from one causing bodily harm to James Lorrimer of Charles Street, because, he said, the charge was too serious under the circumstances.

Radway, the court was told, assaulted Lorrimer in Jim's Lunch, April 1, after a girl friend of the accused had been dancing to a juke box.

Radway, handcuffed to an officer throughout the hearing, confessed to losing his temper when Lorrimer remarked to the woman "Shake it — don't break it" and patted her rump.

Witnesses testified Radway kicked the man while he was on the ground, although the accused denied this.

"I would suggest, Mr. Radway, that your conduct in the future be a little more circumspect," the magistrate remonstrated as he passed sentence.

Elks Picnic Given Green Light by Lodge

At Tuesday's General Meeting of the Elks Lodge of Belleville it was decided to go ahead with plans for the second annual picnic. Due to the heavy financial loss suffered by the Elks in their first attempt at an annual picnic last June it has been very doubtful whether a second attempt would be risked.

Plans for the picnic are at this stage all tentative but are certain to include a picnic Queen, entertainment, sports and rides. All age groups will be catered to even though it is primarily a day out for the children.

Brother Maurice Sine will be chairman of this year's picnic assisted by co-chairmen, Brothers Ken Clarke and Al Whitney.

Entrants and sponsors for the picnic Queen contest are urgently required. Anyone interested in participating in this contest or wish to take part in any of the picnic program are asked to contact Brother Sine at WO 2-2790.

Glaring Statistics Are Bared On Mentally Ill in Talk Opening Health Week

DONALD SINCLAIR

The mentally ill are the leper-s of contemporary society.

Although he didn't exactly use those words that was the remarkable of opinion rendered by an expert to the Belleville Mental Health Association last night.

"Stigma" was the essential word used by Donald Sinclair, executive director of the Canadian Mental Health Association's Ontario Division in his address.

We stigmatize the mentally ill simply because we believe that mental illness is something that happens to other people" he charged.

"This cozy kind of unrealistic thinking still seems to obtain in great numbers. We know the facts, but we don't like to face up to the facts."

Mr. Sinclair's visit was one of the local highlights marking Mental Health Week. Among other events the Belleville association has organized a regular run of movies on the topic at the Belleville Library each night at 7:15 and 8:45.

Mr. Sinclair's visit was one of the local highlights marking Mental Health Week. Among other events the Belleville association has organized a regular run of movies on the topic at the Belleville Library each night at 7:15 and 8:45.

Some facts and figures he gave:

One of every ten children born this year will require some kind of psychiatric treatment before he or she dies."

More immediately obvious are:

TERRIFIC LOSS

The total productive loss to society occasioned by the combined individual problem is figured at $600 million dollars, said Mr. Sinclair.

"It has been said if we had as many people physically ill as we have mentally ill — and they received the same kind of treatment as the mentally ill — then we would have to declare a national emergency. I think this is true."

And, he stressed, the personal ramifications for those suffering physical illness cannot be equated with those of the mentally ill.

"We cannot say that, unfortunately, about the mentally ill. We still stigmatize them."

One of the more pertinent personal examples he cited was that of the former mental patient who thereafter is regarded with suspicion by friends, employers and society generally.

FAILING DUTY CLAIM

"We, the community," warned Mr. Sinclair, "are failing when we will not accept the ex-mentally ill patient back into our homes, our social background, into our community groups. This is the kind of thing our association is trying to check."

Before he had concluded his remarks, Mr. Sinclair left the local membership with one more statistic — and a stark one. "It has been estimated — and it is a conservative estimate —

Suburbia's Problem

Arnold Simcoe says that there is something wrong with Don Mills. He should know, for he was one of the first settlers in that dream suburbia designed to fill the utopian dreams of Toronto's middle-income group.

The problem at Don Mills, he says, is that there are no longer any problems. As a result, the wives who are left to inhabit this worry-free community during the daylight hours fall prey to boredom and loneliness. Meanwhile their husbands, the inconsiderate wretches, are happily immersed in the soul-healing worries of bread-winning and mortgage-paying. As Lil' Abner would say, any fool can plainly see that the whole arrangement is most unfair.

Mr. Simcoe seems to place some of the blame on lack of sufficient material possessions. "For the wife, stuck at home without a car, there is nothing to do and nowhere to go," he is reported to have said. Apparently a second car would enable her to go out in search of a few worries to make life interesting.

This, though, seems to be dodging the issue, which is not one restricted to Don Mills, but, to a greater or lesser degree, affects all communities. This is the fact that, while other problems may bring people together, the existence of boredom and lonely people is generally ignored and, where it is known, efforts to remedy the situation are seldom effective.

The difficulty, of course, is that the cure for boredom and loneliness, in all but a few exceptional cases, must come from within the afflicted group, rather than from outside. Mr. Simcoe made his criticism of Don Mills at a conference whose theme was "Living in the City." The trouble is that, no matter what their geographical locations, communities like Don Mills are not really of, as well as in, the city. They do not partake of that pulsing life which is the common denominator of all big cities, no matter where they are located or the stage of development of the civilization of which they are a part. It is possible to be bored and lonely in the heart of the biggest city, but the remedy is much easier to discover than in suburbia.

It has long been recognized that those who live in the country need greater inner resources than the city dweller if they are to enjoy a lively intellectual life. The rural dweller who lacks such inner resources may still be saved from becoming a clod by his constant communion with nature, even though he be unaware of this ever-present influence. But Don Mills and similar suburbs are neither flesh nor good red herring—to avoid boredom and loneliness there a lively and continuing interest in something outside the inhabitant's own affairs is essential. This is a problem which is likely to face more and more of us as our physical needs are satisfied by our increasingly efficient machinery of production.

The Marvellous Goldberg

At 81 he has retired as a cartoonist—in order to start a new career as a sculptor.

We do not know whether the creator of Boob McNutt will be able to achieve distinction in this new field, this is certain—that when the public will not judge by results. The mere fact that this old and wealthy man should have the urge to branch out into a new field of endeavor warms one's heart. Here is concrete proof that life, even at 81, can be wonderful.

One wonders, though, what kind of sculpture he will produce. Will he be an impressionist? If so, he may establish a new school. In his cartoons he combined a series of logical incidents into a ridiculous whole. Can he now take a ridiculous whole, which is what impressionist art appears to most people, and break it down into a number of logical components?

His cartoons? Well, here is an example, quoted by the Associated Press. "A typical gobe (cartoon) depicted how to sip a woman's dress. A bird on shelf pecks a bird-seed on the tip of a match, setting fire to a box of matches, which falls on the tail of a turtle sitting on the edge of a bathtub. The turtle jumps into the tub and a string tied around his neck tightens on a pulley. The other end of the string is attached to the zipper and, as the turtle sinks, the zipper is pulled up."...

It is no good spending half our time dolling up the beauties of our heritage if the other half is spent constructing dull, drab architecture and manufacturing outdated designs.—Lord Snowdon.

Paul Bunyan Cut Ironwood

Saint John Telegraph-Journal

In answer to the question asked in regard to the first man who used the double-bitted axe, it has been learned, from a good authority, that the first man to use such an axe was Paul Bunyan. Since Paul Bunyan was a New Brunswicker—despite claims that he was an American—this makes the invention of the double-bitted axe all the more interesting.

It all first came about when Paul was lumbering the ironwood trees along the Tobique River. Now ironwood, ironwood was so hard that the cutting, using single-bitted axes, had to be done by chopping their axes after each blow. Naturally, this slowed down operations to the point where Paul, who was a turning grindstone, then were chopping in the woods. Indeed, many of the axes he had been knocked unconscious by the rebound of their axes as they struck the ironwood trees, and it began to look as if they would have to abandon operations. It was then, however, that Paul Bunyan, walking beside Babe, his blue ox, appeared on the scene. The baffled lumbermen appealed to Paul for help.

With the genius that made him the peer among lumbermen that he was, Paul had rightly earned the title King of the Axe Blade, but now the answer to his problem. Under his instructions, the local blacksmith forged a double-bitted axe, and Paul went to work on the ironwood trees. As before, each stroke dulled one bit, but this time the second spectator saw that with each backward swing of the axe, the dull bit was whetted against the whetstone free to hold him. As he did this with each stroke, it meant that each blade of the whetstone was resharpened in turn, and thus Paul struck the tree each time with a keen blade. The axe he caught on so fast that in two seasons the ironwood trees of the Tobique were all cleared, and, down, and since they did not reseed themselves, the species is now extinct.

That's the story of the double-bitted axe. It may have happened in the summer of the big cornuts in Carleton County. That year Babe grew an ear larger that Paul travelled the country with Babe, using the blue ox as a hand fed cornuts to the ground. As a bit of further information, Babe was 36 axe handles between the eyes of chewing tobacco between the horns. She fell into a boiling lake in Maine and was parboiled, making vegetables into one of Paul's camps, and Babe, together with Paul, consumed the boiled up into a giant mulligan stew that fed the people around the lake for three years.

Divorce Law Is Asinine

Toronto Telegram

The sheer fatuity and stupidity of marriage and divorce law in Canada has been more than apparent than in the case of Cecil Earl Smith, of Weston.

He married an English girl, came to Canada after the war, but later returned to England. She divorced him there in 1922. But the divorce is not recognized in Ontario because the husband was not domiciled in England at the time of the action.

Note that it is not the usual morality that deprives this divorce of legal sanction; it is not a question of the grounds on which the divorce was granted. Rather, it's a matter of geography—to wit: the domicile of the male.

Just to illustrate the outrageous asinity of this Ontario law a little more explicitly, let's repeat the story with slight alterations.

She married an Englishman during World War I. He came to Canada after the war, but later returned to England. He divorced her there in 1922. The divorce is recognized in Ontario because the husband was domiciled in England at the time of the action.

Would anything be easier to correct, without offending morality? It's a simple matter of recognizing a divorce in another jurisdiction, regardless of which partner is domiciled there.

Mr. Smith is not the only victim of this nonsensical bit of legal actiquity. Let our legislators do something for all the Cecil Earl Smiths; change the law.

In the presence of a congregation that filled the church seats, diocesan and gallery, on Sunday, eighty - nine young persons were welcomed into Bridge Street United Church. Sixty-five joined on profession of faith including thirty - four boys and girls from the church school and eighteen from the O.S.D. The remainder were received by transfer. Following the sermon and reception of the new members, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was held with 229 persons participating, a record in the history of the church.

The traditionally beautiful apostolic ritual of "laying-on-of-hands" was conducted in Ashley-church churches of the city on Sunday when 116 candidates for confirmation were presented to the Rt. Rev. Kenneth C. Evans, D.D., Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Toronto. Capacity congregations greeted Bishop Evans at the morning service at St. Thomas' Church, and at Christ Church in the evening. Beautiful Easter lilies decorated the altars. Choirs offered special music. The Rev. G. Cantrell acted as bishop's chaplain.

Thirty - two candidates were presented at St. Thomas' Church, by the Rev. W. J. Robertson, rector. Eighty candidates were presented at Christ Church by Archdeacon the Ven. J. D. Cowgan, with an additional four candidates presented by Flight Lieutenant C. H. White, Brighton at No. 6 Repair Depot, R.C.A.F., Trenton.

Ookpik Syndrome

Toronto Telegram

Doug Fisher, MP, thinks Canadian politicians are among the most solemn of that solemn breed. Premier Roberts, he says, wouldn't let Ookpik, the Eskimo creation that bids fair to replace the maple and the Mountie as a national symbol.

Mr. Fisher also nominates Premiers Robarts, Manning, Smallwood and Stanfield as candidates for the sombre Ookpik club. He has been making comparative photographic study of the Ookpik and the premiers.

Has he looked at his own photograph lately — especially the one that appears with his column in The Telegram? Now there's a study in sobriety. Should anyone call Ookpik blink his owl-eyes with envy.

This picture of Doug isn't necessarily, or doubtful or even rueful. Certainly not funereal or apocalyptic. Absolutely not dismal or dreary. It's acrid. That's the word, a first cousin to acrimonious.

Does it reflect the real Fisher? Not on your life. He is gay and convivial. What's that bit about "full of the milk of human kindness"?

The moral of all this is that you shouldn't judge politicians by their looks, just as it is insecurity to judge the nature of the Ookpik by his furry solemnity.

You can't expect premiers to wear saturnalian countenances these days. Not Mr. Robarts, Premier of Ont. Nor Mr. Robin, as he contemplates the on-again-off-again separate school question. Not Mr. Lloyd, with medicare. Not Mr. Lesage with the pension plan blues. Not Mr. Manning fed up with oil royalties. And not Mr. Stanfield with dour Nova Scotland for a backlash.

Have a heart, Doug. They're all really laughing but with tears in their eyes.

They Provide Big Incentive

Edmonton Journal

Three prominent New York men, a judge, a professor and a clergyman, have hit upon a novel way to strengthen their will to stop smoking.

According to the New Yorker magazine, they have each made out a cheque for $500 and given it to the Health Society, signed it, placed it in an addressed envelope, and vowed to mail it if they smoke another cigarette.

It's becoming the fashion to thought of helping this group of dangerous crackpots will have all their willpower needs to quit cigarettes.

Surely this idea is too good to stop there. Canadians wishing to stop smoking and fearing their will is not strong enough might try a similar plan. They could make out a cheque for a substantial amount in favor of La Feuille Pour l'Independance de Le Parti Republicain du Quebec.

Education Not the Same As Erudition

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Following a recent lecture in a philosophy class at the University of Utah, I was asked by a student if I could define in a sentence or two what I meant by an "educated person."

I was tempted to dismiss this difficult question by saying that it would take a whole lecture, and that any terse definition would be misleading and superficial.

Then, from somewhere in the roots of my homespun past, came the words I had not heard before, or consciously thought about, for many years, defining: "An educated person is one who understands the implications of his beliefs."

As we discussed this definition for nearly an hour, it seemed more and more to me that being "educated" is not the same as being erudite, or scholarly, or filled with facts and knowledge and information. It is not a state, but a process — and that process is to relate freely from premises to consequences.

Sometimes how college students evaluate their teachers. They respect and enjoy those teachers who "think out loud" before a class, who show them how to combine and rearrange ideas in different forms.

It is not the teacher who knows the most, in a technical sense, who does the best with students. It is, rather, the one who makes the students think their own beliefs and forces them on (through the sheer beauty of his method) to discover the implications of these beliefs.

Of course, we need a body of knowledge to work with, but the information itself is only a base, a springboard, from which to launch the flight of mind itself. To know any subject is nearly useless until we know its relation to other subjects, and how all of them together form a coherent and meaningful pattern of existence.

In the modern world, for instance, doctors are rarely educated persons, although they have a high degree of technical skill. Until a century or so ago, the doctor was one of the most educated men in the community, and as his training became more packed and more specialized, he became more and more cut off from connection between one discipline and another. It is a great loss to communication.

Most people have certain religious beliefs that bear little relation to their behavior in the area; they do not understand the social and psychological implications of their own principles. This is a fundamental fact of human nature, and it explains in part the grave hypocrisies in our behavior. Society is a fabric in which each man sings his own part, and few are capable of hearing the melody as a whole.

Seals Need Protection

Montreal Gazette

Two Montreal cameramen have brought back a chilling story of the slaughter of Greenland Seals by greedy hunters in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The estimated 180,000 seals will be extinct in about three years, unless measures are taken to regulate the hunters who are exterminating them. Obviously, these regulations cannot be voluntary. They must be made and enforced by the Government.

The slaughter of wildlife to the point of extinction is nothing new in the human race. Modern civilization has brought extinction in its wake. Even when Government have taken measures of conservation, these have frequently been too little and too late.

The story of the slaughter of the buffalo herds that once roamed the North American continent is known to everyone. But this is only one of many examples.

It has been possible in the past, usually at the last moment, to take protective measures in regard to some important sea mammals. At the last International Convention for the Regulation of Whaling was signed in London. And for many years, there has been an agreement between Canada, Japan, Russia and the United States to limit the hunting of seals in the North Pacific.

It seems time for similar, effective measures to be taken to protect the seals in the Greenland Seals in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Bed Patients Can Fall Victim to Osteoporosis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have had a backache on several occasions and recently had X-rays taken. This showed a bone thinning. How does it occur and what treatment is there? — Mrs. C. M.

This is a term which can be applied to osteoporosis, and it seems that to be the case here. In ordinary health, calcium is constantly being removed from the bones and immediately replaced.

But sometimes our metabolism is disturbed, and the calcium is not replaced quite as rapidly as it is being withdrawn.

The bones become less dense and solid. Likewise the marrow portion can become larger as the walls become somewhat thinner.

This is discovered more often in women well past menopause, and it is due to changes occurring in the hormones.

As the bones become less dense they are more subject to being altered by pressure. There is, naturally, less resistance to fractures, too.

While osteoporosis can affect all of the bones, it is most noticeable by produce symptoms in the back, the spine being such a closely-fitted series of bones.

Treatment consists of hormones to bring the endocrine system back into balance, and a diet high in protein and Vitamin C. A reasonable amount of exercise also is important, for bones (like other parts of the body) are healthier when they are made to work.

As a matter of fact, osteoporosis can occur in patients who require prolonged bed rest. The sheer lack of use lets them weaken.

Dear Dr. Molner: When I met my husband's grandfather, he related that he had been in a tuberculosis sanatorium twice, and both times he had left without the doctor's permission.

I was mildly horrified and quietly wondered about the danger he was subjecting his family to. Nobody seemed alarmed, though, so I kept my silence.

Now we have a child and we shall soon have a chance to visit the grandfather, as my husband is anxious to show off the baby, but I am terrified.

I've told my husband I don't want to take our baby to see him at this, but he believes I can make too much of it. Please advise us as to whether or not we are wrong to endanger the baby's health. — Mrs. G. W.

You are right. I'm horrified, too, but not so mildly.

That's how tuberculosis is still "known" mostly by people who have the disease but don't. Know it. And sometimes (a terrible thought) by people who are selfish.

I would not take a baby into such a household myself. You are sure that not only the grandfather but everyone else in the family is not in the infectious stage.

I suppose the old man will assure you that he's "cured" that he isn't carrying the germ. He doesn't know. He can't know. For if he was well enough to leave the sanatorium the first time, why did he have to go in a second time? Stick to your guns for the baby's sake and insist on medical proof of freedom from T.B.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 22 and have had a tattoo on my arm since I was about 11. It was a foolish thing to do. Is it possible it can be removed or covered some way? — S. W.

Counter-tattooing (cover) is still considered tattooing) if possible. Or plastic surgery. Most tattooing is regretted later and it remains as a horrible reminder of one's folly. Disease can be transmitted by the process, too.

Note to Miss R. L.: That growth at the side of the genitals is probably a sebaceous cyst. At 16 cancer is very unlikely, but these simple cysts are fairly common. Tell your mother to have your doctor treat it, and don't be frightened.

Admen Revise Techniques

Christian Science Monitor

Every once in a while we turn from the news to the advertising-pages, just to keep tabs on what today's civilization is really like.

Someone must have some luxury money. Look at the salesman's variations on what used to be called snob appeal, trying to shame us out of those few extra pennies that could make all the difference between okay and elegant.

There's a new sensitivity to minorities. Look at the ads with stereotyped Negroes in them, enough to make Uncle Remus Mayor Robert Wagner's Committee on Job Advancement ask for reports on "the racial revolution in advertising." It's part of an effort in the Negro's words, "to correct America's image of itself."

Meanwhile, advertising men are giving the country a new image of themselves. Apparently it is not only reduced expense accounts and skinny cases are restraining the flamboyance of entertainment for customers. The businessman visiting Manhattan today "is usually vastly more sophisticated than the traveler of half his predecessor of even a decade ago, according to an agency executive quoted in Time. "Dinner parties and perhaps an occasional night of theatre," wrote a reporter on the scene.

And in the West the San Francisco Advertising Club heard a warning from David C. Stewart, president of Kenyon & Eckhardt. He cited studies showing that the average ads tend to be only half as effective with the college - educated as with those having "high school or less" education. He called the ads' tendency "explosion" the "most under - estimated, under - researched, under - understood factor in the advertising today." Many time honored advertising techniques will "become more" as our audiences grows in understanding and maturity." Advertising can "no longer assume that people can be treated as "mere numerical blobs."

Word feeling less like a blob already.

League of Mercy Members Aiding Indians Near Hearst

PICTON (Staff) — Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Cook, 20 Spring Street, Picton, members of the League of Mercy, have been very busy this past winter, and with the coming of spring, their work does not seem to let up.

The League of Mercy, in affiliation with the Salvation Army, organized the receiving of clothes, dolls, and anything of value for re-shipping to Indian reservations throughout Canada.

The clothing, according to these fine people, is badly needed for some of the Indians are indeed almost destitute.

At present they are working for the benefit of the Calstock Reserve, which is near Hearst, up in Northern Ontario, and on Tuesday they shipped out 29 cartons weighing 1,500 pounds, via CN express.

These 29 boxes contain nothing but clothing, men's suits and coats, ladies' dresses and coats and children's wear of every description.

Each garment is checked and if minor repairs can be made they are done by this industrious couple, but it must be pointed out that they don't clean any of the items, they depend on the people who donate things, to see that they are clean when received.

They are in dire need of more clothing, and will accept anything in the apparel line, children's clothes are especially needed, as, like your child and mine, they go through their clothes much faster than adults.

A phone call to Mr. and Mrs. Cook, at Greenwood 6-2365 if you have anything to offer, and if you cannot get it to them, they will have it picked up.

Police Probing Two Break-ins

PICTON — Ontario Provincial Police at Picton are investigating two break-ins which occurred on the Demorestville-Crofton road area recently. The summer cottage of Mrs. Everett Wilson, 53 Everett Street, Belleville, was entered and entry gained by smashing a window. Several items were removed from the cottage.

During daylight thieves broke into the permanent residence of Mrs. Margaret Redway, two miles east of the Demorestville-Crofton road — and made off with wood tools, hand and power, valued at $350, Mrs. Redway is employed in Belleville during the day.

British Firm Offers Workers Jobs for Life

LONDON (AP) — A British engineering company has offered its employes a job for life—said to be the first such guaranteed life-job contract in the world.

By life, the company means an employee's working life, in this case through the worker's 65th birthday.

In return for a guaranteed job for life, the company expects its union employees to ease union restrictions and make the company more efficient and less liable to strikes.

The company is Richard Saxlilfe. It makes mechanical merchandise handling equipment and other machinery.

Two unions are involved, the Boilermaker's Union, and the Amalgamated Engineering Union.

The company employs between 800 and 1,000 men.

The unions now are considering the offer.

More than 300 stamp issues have been printed in the Soviet Union commemorating various dates and events from the life of Vladimir Lenin.

Unique Answer To Family Car Problem

More and more families with working wives are finding that one car is not adequate for their transportation needs. While two cars might solve the problem, this is expensive — especially when teen-age members of the family are driving as well.

The ideal solution is the Honda Motor Scooter. For as little as $3 a week any family can have the advantage of a second car. For example: dad may drive the Honda to work while mom drives the family car to her job or goes shopping. In fact; it is not uncommon to see women going to the grocery store with the handy Honda.

Teen-agers are finding the Honda Motor Scooter a dependable means of transportation at low cost (up to 254 miles per gallon.) For dad, this is less expensive than letting son use the family car.

To learn more about these wonderful machines, drop in to Booth Radio and Television Limited, 370 Front Street. They'll be pleased to show you all the wonderful advantages of driving a Honda.

MOTHEATEN IDEAS

The most interesting people are those who keep the windows of their minds open where the fresh breezes of ideas, feelings and opinions can flow freely. Even though the hour glass of time shows it is late in their lives, that is no reason to let the mind cavity.

Like a closed house the closed mind becomes stale and musty if it is not thoroughly aired occasionally. Old habits of thought, old prejudices, ideas that are threadbare and worn out, need to be discarded once in a while, and to be replaced with ideas based on changing mores and knowledge.

Some ideas age well and need to be preserved, but with too many of us our opinions are solidified early in life and rather than admit that we could be wrong we cling to them with stubborn insistence, refusing to be parted from them, or to allow a fresh current of thought to divert us from our chosen course.

Thus we find people who were born into a family of certain political persuasions who will die with the same ideas, not because they have any political convictions, or have chosen this party because they have studied the political philosophies of all parties, but solely for the reason that their father supported that party, because his father supported that party, and so on ad infinitum.

This is not to say that we should be swayed by every new ism that comes our way. On the contrary ideas that are worthy need to be cherished and passed on to the next generation. But the next generation needs to examine them, turn them inside out to see if they are coming apart at the seams, hold them up to the strong light of reason and logic to see if they are motheaten, and then decide whether or not they should be discarded or if there is some value to them.

GREEN THUMB

Good news for the home gardener is a discovery that means earlier tomatoes, bigger strawberries, more corn on the cob, and no weeds.

It is a sheet of black polythene film developed by Canadian Industries Limited. Commercial fruit and vegetable growers have been using the plastic film as a mulch for some years, but home gardeners are just catching on to the trick.

It works this way:

Black mulch film, a yard wide is spread over the prepared soil and weighted down with stones or earth. Then slits about a foot long are made in the film. Through the slits, the gardener sets out his plants or sows his seed. The plants grow up sturdily through the openings and the weeds, cut off from light by the black covering, never have a chance to develop. It's a lazy gardener's dream.

Fruits and vegetables thrive even in dry weather, because the plastic covering keeps moisture in the soil. When it rains, the water runs down through the slits and stays there; planting is possible to grow a garden with much less water than normally.

Another advantage is that garden produce is kept off the ground. Strawberries, cucumbers and tomatoes can rest on the smooth film without harm.

It can be taken up in the fall and is sturdy enough to last for several years.

It is claimed that commercial gardeners have increased their yield by as much as 50 per cent, and their crops have been ready for market two or three weeks earlier. But the appeal to the home gardener is that he can give the hoe a rest.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

TWO COUPLES MAY HAVE SUCCESSFUL VACATION TRIP

Friendships may be true and blue, but can they survive when two couples go, for instance, take a trip or vacation together?

We say they can, as long as everyone involved puts his best foot forward.

Doubling up on a trip, even if it's just for a weekend, has its advantages. If one couple has a car, travelling expenses are cut in half for each couple. The fun of seeing the sights is twice as enjoyable when you're with a pleasant company and you're more adventurous about trying new foods and new routes!

To get the most out of the trip, though, it's best to do some thoughtful pre-planning. There's the matter of expenses to be worked out, and it's usually better to plan the itinery so that each couple will be sure to include points of interest they want to investigate.

The budget can be worked out in either of two ways. Some couples prefer putting so much per couple in the kitty — for buying gasoline, servicing the car, and paying hotel bills along the way.

Others might prefer the system whereby one couple is responsible for all car expenses — "gas," and the other couple pays operating costs on the way back. Hotel bills are taken care of separately and food checks are split after each meal.

The main thing is to determine in advance how expenses are to be handled, so the trip won't hit a snag along the way. It's also a wise idea to pool driving time if the same way, so one person won't be behind the wheel for too long a turn. Map out your trip so stops are fairly frequent, to provide ample time out from the monotony of driving.

SEPARATE PURSUITS

Possible, when you reach your destination, each couple would prefer to follow separate pursuits at times, and it's a good idea to avoid overexposure. It's not necessary, as far as courtesy is concerned, to feel that the whole group must stick together simply because they're travelling together. Meals usually are shared, but it's permissible for one couple to go shopping and one couple to investigate a historic ruin if that is the individual preference. This should be taken into account when planning your trip, so no one will feel trapped and possibly display some ill-humor if forced to feel he has to go along with the crowd despite inclinations to the contrary.

Consider all the problems that might arise, and take steps to iron them out before you start. With tact, courtesy and consideration, travelling in a group can be rewarding and needn't put even the slightest strain on a well-established friendship.

Successful Living

Mother Blames Newspaper For Hurting Her Children

DEAR DORIS — I am the wife of an alcoholic. Recently he was convicted of his second offence of impaired driving, and went to jail for two weeks. He also lost his licence for a year, and will lose his job.

DORIS CLARK

I tried to maintain a calm exterior for the sake of the children. But then there was a most vicious report in the paper of his case. He was held up to ridicule and called (in innuendo) a liar.

But Doris, I'm not disclaiming my husband's guilt. The point is that the article in the paper left my children wide open to hurt and ridicule from their playmates. The job of teaching my children is made so much harder by these thoughtless people.

— ALANONER.

DEAR ALANONER — Maintaining a calm exterior is one thing; keeping the truth from your children is quite another, whether or not there's a police report. For better for you to tell them: "Yes, your father did tell some things that were not true. This is part of his alcoholism, an illness which comes of his drinking too much." Armed with the facts, his children are better prepared to stand up to taunts.

This will help him, too. Covering up for him will only delay his recovery. He has it in his own two hands to lay hold on salvation; even as a diabetic has considerable say in whether he shall live long; or a heart patient; or a consumptive!

(There's a science of human behavior. When you understand why people do things you have a good start on Successful Living. Ask Doris about it.)

The W.A. to the Hastings and Prince Edward Medical Society recently held its April meeting in Edgcotton Hall at the Belleville General Hospital. Each member brought a guest.

President Mrs. A. Roto conducted a short business meeting.

The guest speakers for the evening, Dr. J. Birchard, Dr. A. Roto, and Miss Matilda Peck, were introduced by Mrs. S. Morphy.

Dr. Birchard, Chief of Obstetrics at Belleville General Hospital, showed a film entitled "Time and Two Women" which dealt with the symptoms, diagnosis and treatment of cancer of the cervix, and pointed out very poignantly the necessity of early diagnosis to ensure a complete recovery.

Dr. Roto, Chief of Pathology, briefly explained the function of the Cytology Laboratory set up on an experimental basis in the hospital in 1951, and officially opened in 1952. Cytology is the study by microscopic examination of cells to determine whether these cells are normal or diseased, and as such, plays a major role in early diagnosis of malignant cancer of the cervix.

Miss Peck, laboratory technician working with Dr. Roto, invited each person to view two microscopic slides — one containing healthy benign cells, the other having been invaded by malignant cells.

The speakers were thanked by Mrs. J. Hartt, and refreshments were served.

Mr., Mrs. Milton Fargey, Roslin, Wed 50 Years

Following a family dinner party Sunday, at the home of their son, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Fargey of Roslin, are 'at home' today (Wednesday) on their 50th wedding anniversary.

Twenty-three family members attended Sunday's dinner party at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Fargey. Today's "at home" is also being held at the son's home.

Well known in the Roslin area where the family has operated the general store and postoffice for half a century, the 50-year couple received many congratulatory messages from a wide circle of friends.

Messages have also been received from Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, Ontario Premier John Robarts and local parliamentary representatives.

MANY GIFTS RECEIVED

Anniversary gifts included an occasional chair from the family; a lamp from the Roslin United Church; a handsome pole tri-lamp, and mirror from the community, and gifts from the Women's Institute and the United Church Women.

Mr. Fargey is a life resident of the Roslin area, having been born on a farm a mile south of the village. Mrs. Fargey, the former Leona Campbell, was born on the 7th of Tyendinaga township. Both are 75.

The eldest of a family of six, Mr. Fargey decided to pass up the farm and about the time of his marriage purchased the Roslin general store.

Merchandising was a new role for him, but he banked on the help of his young bride who already had experience in her father's store.

The Roslin store is now operated by the son, but Mr. Fargey still keeps his hand in "it gives me something to do," he says.

NOT CHANGED MUCH

The exterior of the Fargey store is still much the same, but the operation has seen big changes in the past 50 years.

When the Fargey's took over back in 1914, coal oil lamps, the pot-bellied wood stove, and bulk commodities were still in vogue.

"Everything came in barrels — oatmeal, vinegar, molasses and soda biscuits," said Mr. Fargey.

Farmers brought their eggs to the store and took goods home in trade. The price paid for eggs was 10 to 12 cents per dozen.

And all store requirements had to be hauled by team and wagon or sleigh from Belleville. The weekly trip to Belleville made a full day for Mr. Fargey. He would get up at 4:00 to feed the horses and then after business in the city would not get to bed until midnight.

But long hours were nothing unusual. The store remained open until near 11:00 each night and on Friday and Saturday it was midnight or later.

Today the store closes much earlier and Wednesday afternoon is a holiday.

But in spite of long store hours Mrs. Fargey always found time for church work and other activities. She is past-president of both the Roslin W.I. and the East Hastings W.I. and at one time played the church organ.

Mr. Fargey said the store took up too much of his time to be active in other interests.

Besides their son John who now operates the store, Mr. and Mrs. Fargey have a daughter, Mrs. T. E. (Marion) Gooch of Sacramento, California, who flew home for her parents' anniversary. There are five grandchildren.

The April meetings of Xi Alpha Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi were held at the home of Mrs. John Lennox. Before the first meeting, the members enjoyed a luncheon at the Tops Motel. Mrs. S. Womscott entertained those present on both occasions, with slides of her trip to the British Isles and the continent. Her many and varied pictures, along with descriptions of each, proved interesting and informative.

The president, Mrs. G. Badgley gave details of the Founder's Day dinner for all the Belleville chapters which is to be held at the Yacht Club at the end of April.

"Underwater" was the theme at the Keyette Spring Tea on Saturday at Quinte Secondary School cafeteria. The idea was excellently portrayed with mermaids, sea chests, fish nets and seaweed decorating the walls. Each of the tables for four arranged around the room had an underwater centrepiece.

Focal point of the tea was the head table covered with a white linen cloth and a centrepiece of green and white 'mums flanked by candles. The Keyettes looked pretty wearing hats and gloves with their afternoon frocks.

The novelty and bake tables were a great success and everything was sold. The Keyette club made a profit of over $100 which will be donated to some charity.

The door prize of a cut glass candy dish was won by Miss Heather Ogilvie. The Keyettes expressed appreciation to Mrs. N. Grant, Mrs. Dickens and Mrs. Miller who assisted with the tea.

Study Guild Hears Talk On Preserving City's Beauty

Designs of early buildings in Belleville were compared and contrasted with those in New Hampshire and New York State by Mr. Roger Greig, guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Women's Study Guild held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. A. D. Archibald, DuFerin Ave.

The members saw many familiar old buildings in a new light, as shown by Mr. Greig's fine slides and interpreted architecturally by one who has made this both a study and a pleasure.

Though new to Belleville, the Planning Committee has been well accepted here and considerable interest aroused in preserving natural beauty as well as good samples of early architecture.

POPULATION IDEAL

A population of 30,000 is considered by planners as ideal.

Education is needed to make it fashionable to live "down town". It is folly to keep building more sub-divisions and let the centre of a city rot. As well as slides a drawing by Mr. Wiegand was shown.

Mrs. Ralph Ellis, president of the Guild was in charge of this brief business meeting. Mrs. Lennie Williamson, responsible for the program introduced Mr. Greig and at the close he was thanked by Mrs. J. C. Murdoch.

In the devotional program Mrs. H. C. Sexton read appropriate passages. "They shall build the old waste places — shall raise up the foundations of many generations" and "They shall repair the waste cities, the desolations of many generations." Then she read the parable of the houses built on rock and on sand. This image applied to homes as well as houses and pointed out a Christian vision to rebuild devastated lives.

While Mrs. Jack Buchanan and Mrs. M. P. Rock, hostesses for the evening, were serving delicious refreshments, Mr. Greig continued to talk informally on his interesting topic.

and fiscal questions poured in from all sides of the House.

Steve Otto (L—York, East) said Canadians "are being asked to invest, and while Canadians were kind, considerate, ad brave, they don't like gambling. "We are therefore going to require some incentive if we are going to gamble."

Among the suggested incentives: An education program so Canadians will know more about investments; additional social security so that losses won't mean personal ruin; a clean-up of stock markets so that not so much equity money is used in promotional sales.

Howard Crafley (PC—Brome - Missisquoi) said too much emphasis has been placed on negative actions so far as foreign investment is concerned. The long-term answer lay in positive action to get more Canadian money into the picture, and he suggested the government waste no time in implementing recommendations of the royal commission on banking and finance.

Creditiste Leader Caouette said the central bank should make more credit available to exhibit more secondary industries.

ARE OUTNUMBERED

KITCHENER (CP) — Eric Timmins, head of the federal immigration office in Waterloo, said Tuesday that German-Canadians, until recently the predominant group in Waterloo County, now are outnumbered by those of British background. Persons of British ancestry now number 71,000 or 36 per cent of the county's 197,000 people. Germans total 69,877 or 37.3 per cent while the French-Canadian population stands at 6,685 or 3.7 per cent.

IN ONLY ARREST
When asked earlier Tuesday by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker whether further arrests were expected, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons: "Not to my knowledge."

The Russian embassy had no comment on the case Tuesday. At first reporters were told that if Ambassador Shpedko had anything to say, he would call a press conference. Later they were told the embassy was closed for the day.

Tarasov came to Canada on a non-immigrant visa without special diplomatic status, but he was treated by the Canadian government as a Russian government employee, working for the state-owned newspaper.

While Tass has long had representatives in the Parliamentary Press Gallery, levantin correspondents were only admitted in the early 1960s after pressing appeals by the Russian government.

Mr. Martin said Tarasov's espionage activities were "wholly incompatible" with his entry as a newspaperman.

Peter Dempson, Toronto Telegram reporter and president of the Press Gallery, said Tarasov's membership in the gallery lapses automatically with his expulsion. The gallery will decide on its merits how any new investig correspondent's application will be handled, he said.

Popular Cabbage Rolls Repeated

By MARY MOORE

The time has come for a "repeat" of Cabbage Rolls. Requests constantly arrive for this all-time favorite recipe which we gave here three years ago.

ELEANOR'S CABBAGE ROLLS (serves 8 generously):

1 very large head cabbage, 2 lbs. ground beef (hamburg), ½ lb. ground veal, ½ lb. ground pork, 2 eggs, ¾ cup raw long-grain rice, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons parsley flakes, ¼ cup finely minced onion, 9½ cups tomato juice (one 48-oz. tin plus one 28-oz. tin), 1 finely chopped garlic clove.

NOTE:

At some meat counters you can buy what is called combinations meat-loaf mixture. If you would prefer to buy three pounds of this instead of the separate meats, Eleanor used, it would be fine.

Remove the hard core from the cabbage. Turn the cabbage upside down under the cold water faucet and let water run through the leaves to help separate them. Do not discard the clean outside leaves. Carefully separate leaves and trim off thick part of centre rib. Pour boiling water over them and let them stand in it for 3 minutes. Drain well. Mix well all remaining ingredients except tomato juice and garlic. Spoon about 3 or 4 tablespoons of the meat mixture about 3" from base of each leaf. Start rolling from base, then fold in side edges of cabbage leaf and continue rolling to enclose stuffing securely. Line bottom of heavy kettle or preserving kettle with a few of the dark green outer leaves you have withheld for this purpose. Place cabbage rolls, open side down, in kettle, after all have been filled and rolled, piling them in neat layers. Pour over tomato juice and sprinkle chopped garlic over top. Cover and simmer. Now the time of cooking varies according to the cook. The longer they simmer the better they are. They will be cooked in 2 hours, but Eleanor simmered hers for 8 hours. So use your own judgment and experience. Cabbage Rolls may be baked, covered, at 300 deg. Fahr. 3 or 4 hrs.

These should be served with French fried potatoes or Ukrainian deep fried potato balls. Eleanor added a tossed green salad, rye bread, dill pickles. Dessert was Dutch apple pie and cheese. A memorable dinner.

Mother's Helper

NAGGING about manners can make mealtime unpleasant for everyone at the table. Have a talk with your youngster before you sit down, and try to let him alone while he's eating. Teaching by example is best, during the actual meal. Unpleasant subjects of any kind shouldn't have a place at the family table.

Church Groups

ST. MARGARET'S EVENING GUILD

The first meeting of the month was held April 6th. The president, Mrs. R. Rueston, welcomed the guests, friends of the Guild and members of the Women's Auxiliary.

After a short business meeting, the group enjoyed an interesting and informative evening with Mrs. John Parrott as special guest. Mrs. Parrott showed beautiful colored slides of her recent visit to Moscow in the U.S.S.R. Her commentary and the impressive pictures gave a clear insight into a way of living and working which is quite different from Canada's.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. D. Allen and her group.

On April 20th St. Margaret's Evening Guild met in the church hall. During the business portion of the evening, the members voted to subscribe to 'Horizons,' a church missionary pamphlet. A donation to Camp Hyanta, the church camp at Lyndhurst Lake, was approved. Final plans for the bridge parties and rummage sale were discussed by the convenors.

Mrs. J. Ritchie introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. G. W. Salter, Mrs. Salter chose 'mysticism' as her thought provoking subject and outlined the forms of mysticism from mild to fanatical in the different religions of the world. Many of the people who have had a great impact and influence in their respective faiths have been mystics with mysticism being the practice of uniting oneself with the Deity (or other principle of life).

Mrs. D. Allen thanked Mrs. Salter and her group served a delicious lunch.

The Experts Say

The Wedding Cake Still Is a Job for Craftsmen

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—Some brides may be pleased to learn that they haven't automated all the sentiment out of the wedding cake.

The decorative roses, for example, are still turned out by hand by craftsmen with a dexterity home cooks would envy.

The icing is pushed through a pastry tube on to a small hand held base that looks like a golf tee. The rose is usually started on a bud of marzipan, the chef turning the tee back and forth as he squirts layer after layer of icing petals on it.

Mr. Sinister is one of three men at the Toronto headquarters of General Food Products who do nothing but decorate cakes. In the wedding season, June through September, they do several hundred a week.

Even in their expert hands an average two-to-four-tier cake takes an hour just to decorate after a base icing has been put on. With top icing time included, it takes about two hours.

PREFER FRUIT CAKE

In Canada almost all wedding cakes are fruit cakes, Mr. Sinister says. In his native Holland and other European countries, pound cakes with marzipan icings are favored. White cakes are popular in the United States.

The biggest wedding cake he has decorated was a 35-layer cake 10 feet high. The most expensive special - occasion one was an eight-tiered $800 anniversary cake. And the most famous confections he has turned out were the petit fours he decorated for Queen Juliana's wedding.

J. M. Smillie, production manager, explained that fruit cakes are matured for a month or two, then given a coating of almond paste and a base icing.

The specialists take over to apply a top icing—called a royal icing—and the decorations. The royal icing used to be made of egg whites and cut through, so a softer icing has been developed.

Mr. Smillie says the bakers are no longer asked to bury things, such as wedding rings, in the cakes. They are sometimes asked, however, to match the icing to the color of flowers on bridesmaids' dresses, a switch from the days when all wedding cakes were iced in white.

KEEP FOR YEARS

As a sentimental touch, brides sometimes ask that ornaments from their mothers' or grandmothers' wedding cakes be used.

And they often still keep the top tier of their cakes to be eaten at the first christening.

Mr. Smillie says the cakes will keep for years in airtight containers, at low temperatures, or in freezers.

Bakeries have a few tricks to keep the cake looking attractive. They will pre-cut the ceremonial slice and set it back in the cake. Then it can easily be lifted out with no danger of disturbing the rest of the cake.

They are also prepared to supply "kitchen cakes" to be cut and served so the ceremonial one can be left untouched.

Most wedding cakes are ordered from a catalogue of standard designs, but they can be made to order, and people sometimes bring in pictures of cakes that they want copied.

Most popular is a three-tier cake weighing about 16 pounds that serves about 120 without the top tier. One of the more expensive standards is a four-tier that weighs about 60 pounds, serves 240 and costs $90. A two-tier, 11½-pound cake costs about $18. The company figures about 10 pieces of cake to the pound.

Girl Guides Sponsor Hydro Showtime

CAMPBELLFORD — Trent district Girl Guides under District Commissioner Mrs. A. C. Newman sponsored a show "Hydro Showtime" in the auditorium of the High School Tuesday evening.

The demonstration was under the direction of Campbellford Public Utilities. The appliance display was contributed by H. A. MacArthur, two other displays were contributed by C. Ber-

SEE THE NEW HOOVER
Washer-Spin Dryer

These are The Facts!

ABOUT THE IDEA . . .
HOOVER combined a new pulsator principle of washing action with a completely new concept of the spin-dry methods and combined them into one compact, powerful unit that offers faster, more efficient and service-free operation at less cost and in less space than any other washer-dryer combination. It has been market-tested and thoroughly proved by Hoover and it's backed by their guarantee and warranty, FACTORY SERVICED FOR ONE FULL YEAR.

ABOUT THE WASHER . . .

★ EXCLUSIVE PULSATOR PRINCIPLE
Not an agitator or tumbler, but a smooth, contoured pulsator that turns at a fantastic 540 r.p.m.

★ CRISS—CROSS CLEANING ACTION
Pulsator sends water and suds through the clothes and propels the clothes through the water. Safely removes more dirt faster than any other cleaning action.

★ UP TO 25% MORE USABLE TUB SPACE
No agitator or post taking up room. Entire tub is free for washing action. You can actually wash a shag-rug or a full size blanket or bedspread.

★ SMOOTH STAINLESS STEEL TUB

★ FILLER HOSE . . . AUTOMATIC PUMP
Fill it from the tap through filler hose provided. Fast pump empties the tub completely in minutes.

ABOUT THE SPIN DRYER . . .

★ JETS WATER OUT OF YOUR CLOTHES

★ RINSES RIGHT IN THE DRYER
No messy hauling from one tub to another. Spins out the suds and soapy water, add water through the filler hose and pump out the rinse water into the sink. Your clothes come out clean, rinsed and ready to iron.

★ EXCLUSIVE MONEY-SAVING SUDS SAVER
Spins water and suds out of your wash. Returns the suds and water to the washer. No waste of water, soap or time.

★ HAS ITS OWN AUTOMATIC PUMP

ABOUT BOTH UNITS . . .

★ GIANT-SIZE PERFORMANCE
— Use it right in the kitchen or laundry area. No special plumbing or installation required. SPIN DRY ONE LOAD — WASH THE NEXT. Has two independent motors and two separate pumps.

★ VIBRATIONLESS . . . WHISPER-QUIET
Silent, efficient, compact.

★ SAVES WATER — SAVES SOAP

★ FULLY PORTABLE . . . WEIGHS ONLY 100 LBS.
Rolls easily on rubber casters. Roll it to a storage area or leave it in the kitchen or laundry. Top lid covers entire unit and serves as extra counter space.

★ SAVES ON REPAIRS AND SERVICES
No gear boxes or transmissions to cause trouble. No costly repairs, no oil leaks. Virtually trouble free. Even the pumps have hard rubber impellers so there is no chance of rust or corrosion.

ONE YEAR FACTORY SERVICE GUARANTEE

Here's what I saw:
I actually saw a miracle in action right before my very eyes. I thought the man was crazy when he handed me that bright, new, white towel and told me to take it out into the street and get it as dirty as I could. I did it because it was his towel, but I certainly wouldn't do that to one of mine. In the meantime, he had filled the stainless steel washer part of the machine with cold water, added a low-suds detergent, set the washing cycle for one minute — just one minute, mind you, and that was cold water — and popped in the towel along with an armful of other things he had. I was fascinated by the criss-cross washing action and before I knew it, he was putting the things in the spin-dryer basket, the suds and soapy water were streaming back into the washer part. He put the pump hose into the sink and rinsed those things right in the basket with clean water from the tap, and I watched the rinse water disappear down the drain until it became clear. Out came the clothing. The towel I had dirtied was snowy white and it had so little moisture left that I could have ironed it up right there and then — and all this in less than three minutes. I think it's the biggest favor anyone has done for housewives since nylon stockings — and it's built by HOOVER. Besides, it's fun — so I bought one. It's so light . . . rolls right up to the sink so easily . . . and doubles up as extra counter space when I'm not using it. I can't keep the kids away from it — it's so much fun to watch. Why don't you take a look? At Booth's today! Bring your husband.

SAID ESSENTIAL

"In view of all these things, I think it is not only desirable but essential now, that this question be sent to the committee so that the facts can be examined."

Mr. Girouard beat Mr. Pearson to the punch by seconding Mr. Knowles' motion, an action which Mr. Pearson said he had intended to take.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Davey issued a statement admitting he held a conversation with Mr. Girouard but denying there was any discussion of campaign funds or money.

"I completely deny this allegation," he said.

He also said Mr. Girouard erred in suggesting the reason why his bid to join the Liberal party was rejected." He welcomed a Commons committee inquiry.

Reports that Mr. Davey called Mr. Girouard a "Liberal reject" prompted Mr. Girouard's allegations in the Commons Monday.

FOUR WERE PRESENT

Outside the Commons, Mr. Girouard said Tuesday four Liberal MPs he did not name them — were present at the meeting between him and Mr. Davey in February. He had earlier indicated he was prepared to reveal their names and said Tuesday he feels "sorry for those guys who were my friends."

He had said Monday in the Commons that he went to the meeting only to please the unnamed friends whom he had informed of his intention to switch to the Conservatives from the Social Credit party.

He said Mr. Davey tried to induce him to join the Liberals instead. He denied ever asking to join the Liberals.

"The benefits: A party in power and a fat electoral fund for the next election," he said.

CALLED HALT?

"A week later, a Liberal MP belonging to that same group (which arranged the meeting) approached me to tell me that he was very sorry but the prime minister has asked his chief organizer to cease all pressure because he, the prime minister, was sure to lose the regular support of the Social Credit party if he ever stole members from that party."

One Liberal informant said the question of Mr. Girouard joining the Liberals wasn't carried further because Mr. Girouard was unacceptable to the Quebec Liberals and Mr. Girouard could not be guaranteed the Liberal nomination in his riding at the next election.

Meanwhile, it was reported here that Mr. Girouard's Progressive Conservative opponent at the last election, Gerard Vermette, has resigned from the Conservative party over the acceptance of Mr. Girouard as a Progressive Conservative MP.

Police Hunting Kidnapped Baby

CHICAGO (AP)—Police and FBI agents continued their search in a south side neighborhood today for a three-day-old boy who was kidnapped from his mother Monday in a hospital.

Lee A. Kelsey, 34, a taxicab driver, told police he drove the baby boy, Paul Joseph Franzak and a woman from Michael Reese Hospital shortly after the infant was kidnapped, to a nearby south side neighborhood. Police said other witnesses corroborated Kelsey's story.

A woman, posing as a nurse, took the infant from his mother's arms, saying the child had to be returned to the nursery.

he has appointed a committee to study the feasibility of constructing a museum of science and industry as the province's centennial project.

It was originally intended to be a project of the education department alone, he said, but the six-man cabinet centennial committee favors the idea as the province's birthday present in 1967.

In other business, Premier Robarts said the introduction of a province-wide public pension plan has brought about a repeal of legislation requiring employers of more than 15 persons to set up pension plans.

Private plans have become unnecessary because "the discussions between federal and provincial governments . . . make it appear we will have a universal pension system with uniform benefits and contributions right across the country," he said.

Labor department sources said outside the legislature the government will set up a minimum wage plan for the entire province this year.

WILL BE EXTENDED

The 51-an-hour minimum is effect in the Oshawa-Toronto-Hamilton area will be extended to other industrial centres, while 50 cents an hour will be the low for the rest of Ontario, sources said.

Stephen Lewis (NDP - Scarborough) threatened the legislature with a filibuster next year if the provincial government does not take action on what he called a shortage of public housing in Toronto.

He said previous government plans in this direction have amounted to nothing.

Reginald Gisbern (NDP - enworth East) said that inspectors in a Hamilton public housing project are using Communist tactics on the tenants.

He told the legislature that many tenants were evicted after their incomes rose slightly over the $4,800 and $5,100 ceilings in two sections of the project.

He recommended the rental ceiling be lifted and replaced by a sliding scale of rents geared to income.

Highways Minister Charles S. MacNaughton said that an experimental commuter service between Burlington and Ajax may be part of a proposed study of the Toronto region's transportation needs.

Mr. MacNaughton, speaking as chairman of the executive committee of the Metropolitan Toronto and Region Transportation Study, said researchers will sound out opinions in a door-to-door canvas on the following points:

1. Whether the people want the Burlington-Ajax service and how much it would cost;

2. What kind of transportation system is needed in a region extending southwest to Hamilton, west to Guelph, north to Barrie, and east to Bowmanville; how many residents of the area would ride the public transit, and what fares they would be willing to pay.

Provincial Treasurer Allan announced the traditional once-a-year payday for members of the legislature will be changed to once a month for those who want it.

Henceforth, members will be allowed to draw up to $600 a month against their $7,000 annual salary—$5,000 sessional indemnity plus $2,000 expenses, Mr. Allan said.

To provide for the monthly payday, Mr. Allan had to introduce a bill in the house to amend the Legislative Assembly Act.

Financial Wizards Gather In Geneva in Hopes of Conjuring up Free Trade

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The financial wizards of the West gather in Geneva Monday in the hopes of conjuring up an elusive spirit known as free trade.

The famed Kennedy round of negotiations within the 70-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade was conceived by the late American president as a planning conference for an eventual common market of the Atlantic communities.

In anticipation of reciprocal agreements, he wrung permission from the United States Congress for a 50-per-cent cut in tariffs across the board.

On the eve of the talks, however, it is clear that the major powers concerned—Britain, the U.S. and the six Common Market countries — have prepared precious little common ground on which to go to work.

WIDE SPLIT SHOWN

The United Nations trade conference, running concurrently in Geneva, has shown how wide the differences are on the tricky problem of the underdeveloped countries.

The U.S. opposes the British plan to extend the Commonwealth preference system to all developing countries. But both the U.S. and Britain are against the French scheme for managed commodity markets.

On agriculture, too, preparatory work has progressed little beyond the stage of defining differences.

These and other difficulties might be smoothed over, however, if the negotiators could produce a workable formula for solving the fundamental issue—the question of tariff disparities in the industrial sector.

The Anglo-American experts are convinced that the magic password to unleash the flow of international trade is simply to breach as many tariff dikes as widely as is possible.

FEAR FLOOD

But the Common Market countries, particularly France, are afraid the foundations of their post - war industrial economy will be washed away in the flood.

Negotiators for the six Common Market countries advance valiervative proposals claiming a total of some 700 disparities in the U.S. and British tariff lists.

Attempts to reach agreements on these disparities could reduce the whole Kennedy round to a monotonous series of bilateral bargainings over individual items. This is a far cry from the clean sweep originally envisaged.

Spokesmen for the Common Market commission in Brussels take a hopeful view of the apparent deadlock. They claim that under the Common Market's flexible levy system the disparities will naturally disappear during the next three or four years.

This, even if true, means the wizards at Geneva will be trying to evoke a spirit that is still in the far-off future.

Liberals Win But Poll Fewer Votes

REGINA (CP)—On the basis of the unofficial election-night count, the Liberals won last Wednesday's Saskatchewan election with fewer votes than were obtained by the defeated CCF.

Returns from all 2,874 polls showed the Liberals, with 253,631 votes, had 2,758 fewer than the CCF. This may be changed May 13 when an estimated 25,000 advance- and hospital-poll votes are counted and officially reported. There likely will be some official recounts.

The Liberals won 31 of the 59 seats on the basis of election-night returns. The CCF got 25 and one went to the Progressive Conservatives.

The unofficial count gave the Liberals 60.1 per cent of the vote. They had 32.7 in the 1960 election. The CCF got 40.6 per cent, compared with 40.8 in 1960. The Progressive Conservatives received 18.9 per cent, up from 14.6.

Other candidates received .4 per cent of the total vote. In 1960, they got 12.5 per cent. Two Social Credit candidates ran this year. In 1960, there were Social Credit candidates in all the 55 seats then at stake.

Following is the unofficial party vote from all 2,874 polls compared with vote by parties in the last election (percentages bracketed):

Lib	253,241 (40)	222,066 (33)
CCF	258,387 (41)	276,896 (41)
PC	120,640 (19)	94,713 (14)

Greek-Cypriot Irregulars Persuaded to Abandon Posts Near Nicosia by Canadians

By GERARD ALARIE

NICOSIA (CP) — Canadian forces persuaded Greek-Cypriot irregulars Tuesday to abandon positions overlooking the ceasefire line in Tathonas, a suburb of Nicosia.

Lieut. Yvon Blanchard of Montreal said the Greek-Cypriots were threatening Canadian positions on a hill known to British troops as Pork Chop Hill and christened Cote Sale (dirty hill) by French-speaking soldiers of Quebec's Royal 22nd Regiment.

A spokesman for the Canadian Cyprus contingent said the United Nations has authorized its peace-keeping forces to open fire on Greek- or Turkish-Cypriots "who seek, in an act of aggression, to cross the green (cease-fire) line."

"Building combat positions opposite Canadian positions could be interpreted as an act of aggression," the spokesman said.

"We had recourse to threats to stop this work by the Greek-Cypriots."

It was felt in the Canadian camp that Greek - Cypriots might have been planning to seize Cote Sale.

ARE DIGGING IN

In the mountains west of the strategic Kyrenia Pass, Canadian patrols reported that Greek- and Turkish - Cypriots alike were concentrating on consolidating their positions.

Turkish-Cypriots were moving up men and ammunition in preparation for an anticipated attack on their medieval stronghold, St. Hilarion Castle, but all was quiet.

The 11th century stone castle near Kyrenia Pass is a focal point in the struggle between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

Meanwhile, the opening today of a Canadian brigade headquarters commanded by Brig. A. James Tedlie of Montreal was announced.

Brig. Tedlie will assume responsibility for UN military operations in Nicosia itself and surrounding north - central Cyprus, which includes the Kyrenia Pass.

DIRECTS TROOPS

Brigade headquarters comprising 23 officers and 133 men, will direct two British units and the Finnish UN contingent as well as the first battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, and a squadron of Royal Canadian Dragoons.

Twenty-eight Canadians received 48-hour leaves Tuesday and left by bus for the beaches of Famagusta, 35 miles east of the capital. It was anticipated that each soldier would receive one 48-hour leave every month.

Reporter Stops Man Escaping From Police

A Belleville man now charged with theft bolted from two city police officers yesterday and was recaptured after being transferred from a police cruiser to the city police station, about 5:40 p.m. yesterday.

60 A Dundas St. E., is charged with the theft of two overcoats from Eaton's. He was being transferred from a police cruiser to the city police station, about 5:40 p.m. yesterday when he broke loose and ran across Market Square and McAnnany St., headed for a laneway beside The Ontario Intelligencer's parking lot.

At the end of the laneway at McAnnany St., he ran into the Ontario Intelligencer reporter, Andy Turnbull, tripped, and was recaptured. The reporter's camera was slightly damaged when he dropped it.

Ball Speech Raises Question Of Whether He Offered Limited Customs Union

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—Has U.S. Undersecretary of State George W. Ball in effect offered Canada some form of limited customs union or selective free trade—that is, involving only certain industries?

This possibility, as a radical as it seems, was not discounted Tuesday as government circles here burned with conjecture over the Ball speech last Saturday. Officials were reading and rereading the text.

The speech could not have escaped notice here. It came almost on the eve of today's opening of a two-day meeting of the Canada-U.S. cabinet committee on trade and economic affairs.

Ball stressed in his speech to the American Assembly in Harriman, N.Y., Saturday night that he was not expressing government policy.

Canadian officials accepted that. But still they regard Mr. Ball as a chief spokesman of the American group in today's talks—a group that also includes Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon, Interior Secretary Stewart Udall, Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman and Commerce Secretary Luther Hodges. State Secretary Dean Rusk will sit in on the meetings Thursday, and then only briefly.

ONE MARKET BEST

This was the drift of Mr. Ball's remarks.

He said there is no doubt that both countries could use their resources more efficiently by developing the continent as a single great market.

The trends were all toward this "greater economic interdependence."

"Left to natural market forces, these trends should lead us to a progressively higher degree of economic involvement between our two countries and the rest of the world. Canada will become increasingly important to the United States and the United States to Canada."

SUGGESTS COURSE

Mr. Ball then suggested that Canada-U.S. efforts be aimed at allowing "the normal and healthy development of our economies toward and increasing economic interdependence that is viewed not so much in bilateral terms as in terms of its relation to an expanding world economy."

Canadian government officials were busy even late Tuesday in trying to interpret the speech. Some saw it as a thinly - disguised suggestion that some system of selective free trade would benefit both sides.

This is not a new idea.

John J. Deutsch, the Queen's University economist, among others, has advocated such a step — this, however, before his appointment as chairman of the Economic Council of Canada last year.

COULD DOUBLE SALES

TORONTO (CP)—The CBC, currently carrying fewer commercials than its mandate allows, could possibly double its sales volume of $20,000,000 a year, CBC President Alphonse Ouimet said Tuesday, "but if it did it would go out of business because it could no longer provide the complete and basically Canadian national service it was set up to give," he told Canadian advertising executives.

LEAVES HIS MARK — Robert Carmichael will be remembered for some time after graduating from Carleton University in Ottawa this spring. He's working on a bas-relief carving of the official crest of the Carleton University reserve army contingent. The carving, which will hang in a student lounge at the university, is on a slab of pure mahogany, 17 by 21 inches in size. A native of Sault Ste. Marie, Robert eventually plans to devote all his time to art.

He Studies Stuffing!

HALIFAX (CP)—A man with more than a modding acquaintance with tigers, lions and elephants has been visiting Nova Scotia to study modern methods of stuffing animals.

S. Misbah H. Bilgrami, a taxidermist on the staff of the Pakistani zoological survey department, arrived here recently under a Colombo Plan exchange.

While in Canada, he will study modern taxidermy in the museums of natural history and science here and at Toronto, Regina and Ottawa.

He says the text books he has been using in Pakistan advocate methods used 100 years ago.

The first taxidermist in Pakistan, Mr. Bilgrami's work requires him to be something of a hunter too. He collects as well as preserves specimens from both East and West Pakistan.

In some of the densest jungle in the world sprawling across the mouth of the Ganges River, he stalks Bengal tigers.

One of his most exciting moments was in 1954 when he sighted a pangolion, or scaly anteater. It was supposed to be extinct, known only in legend.

The pangolion lives underground close to ant colonies. It is the color of brown paper, heavily scaled with retracted claws, and rarely emerges into the outside world.

The method of taxidermy Mr. Bilgrami has been studying here can hardly be called stuffing anymore. The animal is skinned and the carcass is staked in the desired position in a deep-freeze refrigerator.

When it's frozen, the carcass is covered with a plaster of paris cast that forms a mould from which a fibreglass replica of the carcass is made. This is covered with the disinfected fur coat.

Artist Will Be Remembered After Leaving University

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—When Robert Carmichael graduates from Carleton University this spring, he'll leave behind something more tangible than a set of final exams.

He is working on a bas-relief carving that will hang in the student lounge at the university.

The plaque is a copy of the official crest of the Carleton University reserve army contingent. It features the coming-at's emblem, a phoenix, under a crown. Done by a government designer, it hes royal approval.

The carving is being done on a slab of two-inch-thick mahogany 17 by 21 inches. It involves a lot of painstaking work but this doesn't bother Bob, who feels good art has its basis in good draftsmanship.

A graduate of the drawing and painting course of the Ontario College of Art, the 25-year-old native of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., spent two years at Pickering College near Toronto, first as a tutor and later as head of the arts and crafts department.

MAJORS IN HISTORY

In 1961 he became interested in doing work of a more academic nature and came to Carleton to major in history.

"I was interested in history because it is objective—you get the facts," he says. "I feel the same way about good art. There are certain absolutes. It is an objective thing."

Bob says he feels many contemporary artists have placed too much emphasis on pure subjectivity in painting — "they don't place enough stress on the mechanics of art."

Although he has experimented with abstract forms, he says he prefers representational art best. "I like to have some object, something concrete to work with."

Along with the carving, he has made two other contributions to Carleton—special covers designed for two university publications including the 1963 yearbook.

The two book covers and the crest all depict birds, as does a six-foot wood carving he completed at home in Sault Ste. Marie last fall.

WANTS IT BIG

"I wanted to do something big for a change. I've been working on it since 1962."

Carmichael submitted two of his paintings, an oil and a water color, to the Young Contemporaries Exhibition in London, Ont., earlier this year.

For eight summers he has worked in the noisy surroundings of the Algoma steel mill at the Sault, which helps explain why he just wants to paint "quietly" now.

Next fall he hopes to teach arts and crafts, as well as academic subjects, in Montreal, and eventually plans to devote all his time to painting.

To celebrate the occasion firm owner Don Williams is throwing a grand opening party featuring a used car promotion sale, a free trip for some lucky winner to New York, door prizes and a country hoe-down dance in the showroom on Saturday night.

Aside from brand new quarters and the latest in service facilities, Stirling Motors' new location stands at custom car parking space — something which has been lacking at the present location.

Facilities at the new location include a four-vehicle show room, parts department, a 16 bay service garage and service station, along with a separate used car lot.

A former garage operator at Camilton, Mr. Williams has headed Stirling Motors for the past eight years and now boasts that firm is Eastern Ontario's largest country dealer.

In fact sales growth has been spectacular and the firm has a larger volume than many urban dealers. Over 700 new and used cars were sold last year.

The firm has a staff of 23, including six salesmen, eight mechanics and five body-shop employees.

The modern new showroom and service garage was planned by Watson and Wiegand of Belleville with Stirling district builder Wiegen DeJohn as the general contractor.

War on Poverty May Be Underpinning U.S. Economy

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Aside from its political implications, President Johnson's war on poverty eventually may turn out to be an essential underpinning of the U.S. economy during what he predicts as an era of growing international peace and declining military outlays.

The decisions made in the U.S. to offset the economic impact of reduced defence production will have an important bearing on the Canadian economy, too, for history has shown Canada cannot hope to remain buoyant while the U.S. is in a slump.

For the next year or two, there may be small dips but no major slash in U.S. defence spending of some $50,000,000,000 a year. Nevertheless, closing of bases and gradual tapering off of some defence production has led to unemployment and declining revenues in particular regions.

Statemen often dream of launching giant undertakings for the welfare of man if only world turmoil would cease, allowing national income to be applied to more fruitful peacetime pruuits. But, as experience has indicated, inertia often leads these dreams into the quagmire of depression.

ANTI-POVERTY DRIVE

Johnson has appealed to Congress for annual outlays of about $1,000,000,000 to attack poverty, particularly in the coal regions of the Appalachians. His anti-poverty campaign in this election year has been interpreted by his opponents as electioneering. And Indeed Johnson is well aware of the political potency of his drive. What opponent would hope to garner votes by saying he is opposed to an anti - poverty campaign?

Yet the experts also conclude that aside from the political motivation, the drive must be pursued intensively as one means of assuring the buoyancy of the economy in a period of declining external military pressures.

The combination of a reduction in military production and increased industrial automation coming at a time when the U.S. and other countries are at the threshold of a population explosion could aggravate national unemployment. Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz says America's youth faces the harshest unemployment problem since the depression of the 1930s.

Professor John Kenneth Galbraith, Canadian-born Harvard economist and former U.S. ambassador to India, feels the proposed federal spending of $1,000,000,000 annually should be increased to about $3,000,000,000 in three or four years. He places heavy emphasis on education, so that future generations would be better able to handle a job.

But the most important point of Galbraith's view, as given in an interview with the U.S. News and World Report magazine, is that poverty can be conquered and that an end to poverty in the U.S. is inevitable.

Pinch Hitting

By Garry Alexander

The summer sports program for this area appears to be shaping up nicely, despite earlier indications that all might not be so well on the Bay of Quinte front.

Most of the district's organizations are either prepared for the opening gun, or are in the midst of doing so at the present time. Some, such as the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club, the Quinte Trap and Gun Club, and others have been operating full tilt for a week or more.

Baseball, softball and soccer are well into the planning and "practice" stage, and the local boys in blue, sometimes referred to as blind men and on occasions even "umpires," will be calling "play ball" before you realize that May 12 has rolled around. That will mark opening week for most of the city and district's ball loops.

Meanwhile, closer at hand are the likes of harrier races, bowling tournaments, fishing derbies, track and field meets and hydroplane races.

Doug Storey, one of the key figures who gave the way for the pay-per-use parking meters that are now around Bay of Quinte waters, has called an important meeting of the Quinte Hydroplane Racing Club for tomorrow night. The meeting is slated for the Sea Cadet barracks, at 7.30 sharp, and all interested persons are invited. It's said there are big plans ahead for the club this summer.

Meanwhile, turning to softball, Commercial loop president Don Smith says he hopes to see the loop clean up all its pre-season problems at tomorrow night's meeting. It's slated for City Hotel, at 8.00 p.m. Six clubs are expected to commence play on May 19 and all representatives are asked to turn out tomorrow night and wrap up all loose ends.

And the Belleville and District Softball League will also hold such a meeting at Club Canara this Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. After almost folding for lack of entries, the league has come up with what could turn out to be a strong grouping, with Belleville Juniors, Trudeau Motors, Tweed Lumbering and Trenton Commercial Printers taking part. With Blane Healey firing his shafts in a Tweed uniform and the other Joyce Realty and Robert players splitting up among the other clubs, there could be plenty of rivalry and good, fast ball. The schedule opens Monday, May 18.

Friday and Saturday, also this week, marks the 13th occasion of the annual "Mr. Bowling" tournament at the local Bowl-O-Drome. Top keglers from city and district will be gunning for fine prizes and big cash awards. There's a beautiful watch and a trip for two to the New York World's Fair among the prizes and you can bet the boys will be bearing down. The first block goes at seven o'clock Friday evening, the final at 3.00 p.m. on Saturday.

At least one man's baseball league is assured of operation, that being the old standby, South Hastings League, while unconfirmed rumors here in the city persist that there will be a Belleville senior team, in Lakeshore action once again. The South Hastings loop has at least half a dozen teams "in," possibly more, and will swing into action on the holiday week of May 16.

As far as the Kenmore and senior baseball goes, 'tis said there will be a club. Period. Kes Soden has offered to lend a hand if needed, but apparently feels he has had enough of toting the heavy end of the burden. Several of last year's players, we understand, are attempting to get things rolling, but is such is the case, the time is getting short.

An entry list is expected from the BCIVS any day now listing a number of district's top distance runners—set to go in the Ken-Calling Memorial cross-country run. It's coming up next Wednesday and as always competition in the high school age bracket is fast and exciting. A Trenton youth was the beautiful victor, described by Cleo Calling, last year, but there are a number of fine runners here in the city and from other district schools gunning for it next Wednesday. The race starts around 4.15, from BCI.

A few differences of opinion have slowed up the harness racing plans here recently, but the "boys in the know" on the corner figure they will see some pretty fine meets at the Fair Grounds here before the spring is too long settled. Some of them are even willing to bet on it, even money yet!

Back to the secondary schools for a moment, the campuses are busy spots these days as both boys and girls prepare for their final athletic events of the season—track and field meets. A number of meets are slated for almost every weekend in May at different area schools and many COSSA records will fall twixt now and June.

"Porch" Collects First Homer ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Stuart's Grand-Slam Beats Orioles

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Charles O. Finley went one up on the American League Tuesday.

The "peasant porch" erected by the owner of Kansas City Athletics collected its first homer as the Athletics thumped Detroit Tigers 5-1.

The new bleacher section Finley had built at Municipal Stadium to shorten the right field to 325 feet—the same distance as at Yankee Stadium—from 339 feet was the target area for a lofty fly ball off the bat of Charles Finley maintains the short right field in Yankee Stadium has helped the New Yorkers dominate the American League through the years.

It was the first blow into Municipal Stadium's bleacher extension in five games.

Elsewhere, Dick Stuart's grand slam homer in the 11th inning gave Boston Red Sox a 6-4 victory over Baltimore Orioles, Jimmie Hall singled with the bases loaded in the 10th as Minnesota Twins outlasted Cleveland Indians 9-8 and Los Angeles Angels defeated Washington Senators 3-1 behind the relief pitching of Don Lee and Dean Chance.

Charles not only christened Finley's porch but also doubled home a run in the third and singled across a run in the fifth as the Athletics struck for three runs off Senator Frank Lary in the mound.

Diego Segui, who walked four batters in the first two innings, settled down and stopped the Tigers on five hits for his first victory.

Bobby Roberts had a four-hit shutout going for Orioles until the last out tied it in the ninth on a run - producing single by Carl Yastrzemski and Stuart's double. Then, after Baltimore scored two runs in the 11th, relievers Stu Miller and Dick Hall collected Gary Bell and loaded the bases on three walks — two intentional. That set the stage for Stuart's heroic blast.

Fleet 'Hill Rise' Wins Derby Prep

Eight In Row

By KELSO STURGEON

LOUISVILLE (AP)—If there were any doubt in jockey Willie Shoemaker's mind about his decision to switch from Canadian-bred Northern Dancer to Hill Rise in Saturday's Kentucky Derby, it's gone.

Hill Rise, with the Shoe aboard for only the second time won his eighth straight race Tuesday by overpowering six others in the $16,050 Derby Trial—the last prep for the run for the roses.

"He's a 10-per-cent better horse than when he was at Keeneland," Shoemaker said. "I believe this race is just what he needed to get him ready for Saturday."

Despite the powerful performance by the El Peco Ranch colt in the one-mile trial, at least 13 horses, and possibly as many as 16, will go to the post Saturday. If 13 start, the Derby will offer a purse of $144,500.

The 1¼-mile classic will be televised by CBS from 5:15 p.m. to 5:45 p.m. EDT.

CONSIDERED DEFINITE

The other 12 horses considered definite starters include Roman Brother, the little Florida-bred colt who finished second to Hill Rise in the trial, and Mr. Moonlight, who finished fourth but was placed third through a disqualification.

Others considered definite starters are Northern Dancer, owned by Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor, Quadrangle, Ishkoodah, Mr. Brick Dandy K., Royal Shuck, Prince Darelle, Wil Rad, Extra Swift and The Scoundrel.

Will Hold 'Umps' Clinic At Trenton

George Barr, 19 years a National Baseball League umpire, will be in charge of the O'Keefe Baseball School and Umpires' Clinic scheduled for the Trenton RCAF station next Monday.

The clinic will be held at 7.30 p.m. Monday, May 4, and anyone interested is asked to contact either Pl. Sgt. J. Beale or Bill Christie, representative of the clinic sponsor.

The clinic, which has been operating successfully for the past four years, especially with minor ball organizations in the Ottawa region, covers umpiring, managing, scoring, the organizing of leagues and other phases of the game.

In Mr. Barr, whose baseball experience extends over a 35-year period, O'Keefe's have a man tops in his field. He has conducted his own umpires' school for over twenty years and has been called on by the United States government to conduct clinics in such places as Japan, Okinawa, the Philippines, Korea and Germany. He is a World Director of the Babe Ruth League and has acted as umpire-in-chief in that league since 1953. Mr. Barr's wit and personality are said to match his knowledge of the game of baseball.

Other appearances of the clinic in Eastern Ontario are scheduled for Kingston on May 5 and Brockville on May 6.

HOW TO APPLY VARNISH

"Fitting Out" is the expression the owners of big yachts use to describe the very pleasant work of getting their boats ready for spring, just around the corner.

But often it's a time of bewilderment for the small outboard owner whose marina is often his own backyard. Here are some of the questions I've been asked this year:

How should varnish be applied?

ANSWER: Do not shake the can. This causes bubbles which ruin the finished job. Use as little brush action as possible to flow the varnish on to the surface. Don't brush back over the covered surface. If the temperature is below 60 degrees use special "chilled" varnish.

What's the best way to sand down a boat hull?

ANSWER: Borrow or rent a belt sander. A good, big powerful one. Then use it along the grain of the wood. Never, never use it cross grain, or the scratches will forever show through your paint or varnish. Vibrating, oscillating or orbital sanders are O.K. to use with very fine sand paper. But the belt is the only thing for the heavy work.

Should I wait for the weather to warm up before putting paint on a boat?

ANSWER: By all means don't rush painting. Wait until the boat is dried and warm. Paint doesn't go on well below 45 degrees. Here's a trick. Warm up the area you are going to paint with a blow torch before applying the brush if the temperature is borderline.

What boats need soaking before spring launching?

ANSWER: Only wooden boats of the lapstrake or—clinker variety, and those made of cedar strips or planks.... generally called carvel-built. These are the only kinds that have seams which need to be closed by having the wood swell up. Generally, plywood boats should be tight when they are put in the water.

Do I need anti-fouling paint for an outboard motor?

ANSWER: If the boat is used in fresh water only, it's not necessary in Canada unless you are going to race. Boats do grow a light fuzz of moss in many Canadian lakes, but usually a swish with a mop will take it off. And anyway, this moss is such a low form of life it doesn't seem to be hurt by some of the imported anti-fouling paints.

What about a spring overhaul for the propeller?

ANSWER: If it has one or more big nicks in it, or you have any reason to suspect it's out of balance, now's the time to take it to a marine dealer and have it refinished and balanced. Believe me, it's worth every nickel you spend.

Short Fences, Light Bats

Cheap Homers, More Whiffs Hurt Game

NEW YORK (AP)—The Association for the Prevention of Cheap Home Runs, headed by Detroit "great" manager Charlie Dressen, has a new member. He is Al Lopez, veteran pilot of Chicago White Sox.

"Players are striking out more than ever before," says Lopez, "and it's largely because of their lust for home runs. The combination of cheap home runs and alarming total of strikeouts is hurting the game."

A trend to parks with short fences and a penchant for light bats are the main causes for the rise in cheap home runs and strikeouts, Lopez substantiates.

I understand the minimum fence in the league parks cannot measure less than 325 feet. They should make the minimum at least 370 feet. New ball parks should be designed to keep the ball in play, rather than out of play. Let's give the outfielders a chance to make a good catch once in a while."

"I'm not opposed to the home run when hit by a legitimate home-run hitter. But when little guys weighing 150 pounds begin knocking them over the fences with regularity, something should be done about it," the Chicagoan says.

Baseball is in 3-1 and knocked out Johnson who now knows what it's like to get a run and lose.

In other National League games Tuesday night, St. Louis Cardinals blanked New York Mets 5-0, Philadelphia Phillies topped Cincinnati Reds 4-3 and Milwaukee Braves outlasted Pittsburgh Pirates 9-8. San Francisco Giants and Chicago Cubs were rained out.

Ray Boyer, and rookie second baseman Phil Gagliano each drove in two runs for the Cardinals as they unleashed a strong hitting attack that brought five New York pitchers parading to the mound. Boyer clouted one homer as St. Louis backed up Ernie Broglio's five-hit pitching.

Rookie Richie Allen belted a homer, a triple and two singles in his five at-bats to lead the Phillies over the Reds. His homer tied it 3-3 in the sixth before the Phillies went ahead to stay in the seventh. Art Mahaffey contributed a double to his winning cause but needed help from Chris Short in the eighth inning.

Milwaukee spotted the Pirates a four-run lead but bounced back. Joe Torre clouted a homer in the Milwaukee second and Dennis Menke hit a fat bases-loaded single in the seventh that drove in two runs.

Leads 1-0 For 13 Innings Then...

Hard-Lucky Jinx Rides Herd On Johnson

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ken Johnson, who lost a no-hitter 1-0 in his last start, now has crossed home plate but he still hasn't scored.

Tracy was Johnson perched on third base in the third inning of what was to become a 3-1 loss to the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday night. He was trailing 1-0 and thinking how nice it would be if Houston Colts would score a run for him. It had been 13 innings and one no-hitter when the drabs since he'd seen some batting support.

Al Spangler lifted a fly ball and Johnson automatically tagged up. It looked like the hard-luck hurler was finally going to get a run and, in addition, he was going to score it himself.

But suddenly the Dodgers were all around umpire Vinnie Smith and he was nodding his head. The appeal had worked. Johnson, in his anxiety to get a run, had left third base too soon and was doubled up.

So the Colt pitcher still trailed 1-0. Dodger starter Joe Moeller protected the slim margin built on Manry Wills' first-inning single and Willie Davis' triple into the seventh inning, when the Colts fatally scored.

Jerry Grote's triple and a squeeze bunt broke the scoreless spell which had stretched 17 innings for Johnson. But the shock of a run on the scoreboard must have proved too much.

Dick Tracewski led off the Dodger eighth with a triple. Tommy Davis battled for Moeller and filed out, then Wills delivered the go-ahead run with a double. Wally Moon's single

Drysdale was even more outspoken.

"Make 'em use heavier bats. Hike the old timers did," he said. "I'll guarantee we'll never see .300 hitters. The trouble with the hitters today is they'd rather hit one out of the park than go four-for-four."

The huge payoff came on the twin double, in which a bettor must couple four winners, and set a world record for that form of wagering.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alfred Lord Tennyson was right about a lot of things but in the spring around these parts many a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of bashing a tackling dummy.

The cause of such an unseasonable preoccupation is the annual spring development camp held here for the last 10 years by British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference to test the home-grown talent.

This April 63 youths, the pick of last fall's crop in 31 high school teams and nine juvenile squads, thawed out their ligaments in 12 days of training and scrimmages under the expert eyes of Lions coaches and scouts from U.S. colleges.

Originally a straight tryout affair for the Lions, the development camp has become a shopping centre for the college scouts as well as a place where Lions brass can mark a potential pro for tracking through his college years.

Many of the 63 turned out with dreams of earning a football scholarship to an American university or college. But by past averages only about eight will find the dream comes true.

SOME MAKE GRADE

Eight scouts came shopping this year, including agents from the universities of Oregon and Colorado.

Among the fortunate few to get the nod or a nibble this year were giant Jordan Hills, six-foot-four and 230 pounds of tackle, and a pair of 200-pound strippings, Rick McHale and Roy Borthwick.

Jordan, one of 11 development campers from outside Vancouver, is a Grade 12 pupil from Penticton who has been crunching enemy halfbacks in the Okanagan - Mainline high school circuit for three years. He hopes to be playing next year for Wenatchee, Wash., Junior College on a football scholarship.

Rick McHale, came here five years ago from London, Ont., and has played junior and senior ball since for Vancouver College, the all - boy Roman Catholic school where he is now in Grade 12.

"I've had an offer from Colorado scouts at the camp and they've offered me a full four-year scholarship if I'll play football for them," says Rick. "The University of Oregon also wants to talk to me and others say they are interested."

ROOKIE MAKES GOOD

Roy Borthwick is a prodigy in demand south of the border after only a single season's football. He excelled at rugger, basketball and track before trying football at Magee High School here. He joined the junior Marsloma's, practised nightly from August to October with a game every Sunday in the Junior Big Four League and was picked for the Lions camp.

"I've had scholarship offers from several universities, including Oregon, and some junior colleges," Roy says. "I plan to become a professional football player after I get a business administration degree."

"They're top prospects and have a reasonable chance of going through college into professional ball," says Lions Coach Dave Skrien of the scholarship candidates.

"It was the best camp I've taken," adds Skrien, now in his fifth year with the Lions. "The calibre of the youngsters shows an improvement in the abilities of high school coaches."

While many of the boys, who average 18 years old, are too light to be regarded as potential pros and even the standouts are "green material," in the words of Assistant Coach Jim Champion, "they have physical ability and what else do you need?"

If memories stay green while talent ripens, the Lions organization can count on future dividends.

Both McHale and Borthwick, grateful for the breaks the development camp created, say they want to return to Vancouver and play for the Lions when they finish college.

For Ontario Open

Stage Qualifying Round

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Golf Association is forced to stage a qualifying round for the first time in the 65-year history of its open golf championship.

The reason — it topped the purse to $2,000.

The top three professionals in the Ontario Open qualify for the world golf championship at Detroit with its prize pool of $200,000.

The Ontario event will have a restricted field of 150 professionals and amateurs. About 70 players will automatically qualify, leaving about 80 vacancies for those competing in the qualifying round June 23.

Amateur Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., and professionals Al Balding and George Knudsen, both of Toronto, have already qualified for the world tournament.

Low Water Levels on Lakes Presenting Grave Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—Low water levels on the Great Lakes, particularly in Lake Huron and Georgian Bay, are presenting "very grave problem," Transport Minister Pickersgill said Tuesday night.

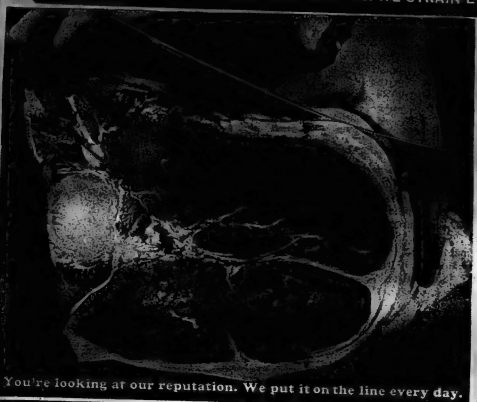
He said during a Commons adjournment debate that the government is tackling the navigation problem by dredging deeper channels, but this is not a cure.

"The water just isn't there."

He spoke after Walter F. Foy (L—Lambton West) said that if water levels decline further on Lake Huron, harbors in the area will become useless. He said Port Sarnia is already on the brink of real trouble.

Mr. Pickersgill said he hoped "some definite action" will emerge from studies under way into the feasibility of constructing a submerged weir in the St. Clair River to help control the level of Lake Huron.

However, the engineering study, proposed by the U.S. government and approved in principle by the previous Conservative government in 1963, will not affect the present emergency in water levels, he added.



Gordon Aiken (PC — Parry Sound-Muskoka) said the low water levels of the lower Great Lakes may be a much longer term problem than cyclical, because of the draining off of water for other purposes. As proof of his contention that there hasn't been a shortage of rainfall, he said the Muskoka Lakes and Lake Nipissing are well filled compared with a year previous.

Mr. Pickersgill said there has been a serious lack of precipitation in the last two or three years, and the problem is compounded by the rate with which water is being used in the densely populated parts of southern Ontario, together with the denuding of forest cover.

"Perhaps we will have to take steps to see one contemplated a few years ago. I'm sure there is no danger of doing too much research."

Brinkley Portrays Boxing As Shabby, Cruel Business

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Boxing, said David Brinkley, Tuesday night, is "a brutish ugly hoodlumsaurus that has somehow survived beyond its time."

And after watching the hour-long NBC special, Boxing's Last Round, one received the impression that, like the brontosaurus, boxing also will disappear.

Brinkley noted that since the Second World War, 227 men have been killed in the ring, including 10 last year. He interviewed the widow of Benny (Kid) Paret. She's raising her children on a monthly $200 social security payment.

He talked to Beau Jack who made $2,500,000 or $3,000,000 fighting and now shines shoes in Miami.

The business of widespread corruption and possible racketeer control was explored and, in some instances, names named.

Now that nominations of Emmy Awards have been made, the 6,000 eligible members of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences must mark their ballots. Chances are a good percentage of them will be voting for programs and performances they haven't seen.

The three major U.S. networks had to find more than 3,000 hours of programming to fill those three and one-half tours of prime time each night. Nobody who also has a job can spend that much time watching TV.

AT THE PARK — Peter Sellers as the President of the United States, right, and George C. Scott as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, star in Stanley Kubrick's "Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb," brought back by popular demand and starting Thursday at the Park Theatre for a three day engagement only. Select short subjects are also shown including a sports picture "Ghose Curling". Two complete shows: 7.00 and 9.15 p.m. Also starred in the Columbia release are Sterling Hayden, Keenan Wynn and Slim Pickens. Tracy Reed is featured as "Miss Foreign Affairs."

MGM's "THE PRIZE" Blends Romance, Suspense and Fun

It's not often that you get a motion picture which is a suspense thriller, a love story and a sophisticated comedy all rolled into one.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Prize", with Paul Newman, Edward G. Robinson and the beautiful European actress Elke Sommer heading an all-star cast, is just such a picture and it spells entertainment with a capital E.

It was produced by Pandro S. Berman and directed by Irving Wallace and filmed in Panavision and Metrocolor against arresting backdrops of Stockholm, Sweden. "The Prize" concerns a young American novelist who comes to Stockholm to accept a Nobel Prize and walks into both a murderous dagger and an unbelievable love affair.

Paul Newman plays the young writer who has one eye for a Martini and the other for a pretty girl. No sooner has he stepped from the plane bringing him from New York than he becomes involved with two glamorous girls. The first, blue-eyed Miss Sommer, plays a member of the Swedish Foreign Office who is assigned to guide Newman during his stay in the Swedish capital. The second, brunette Diane Baker, plays the niece of another Nobel Prize winner, Edward G. Robinson.

Newman's love scenes with the very alluring Elke Sommer, who plays hard-to-get, and the equally attractive Diane Baker, who in the story is hard to get as well as up to some mysterious monkeyshines, will also linger long in memory.

The scenes of Nobel Prize activities, press interviews, cocktail parties, presentation rehearsal, right up to the big event in which the King of Sweden makes the awards - offer a fascinating backdrop to the thrilling action and suspense of "The Prize."

A Pandro S. Berman production, "The Prize" was directed by Mark Robson from a screenplay by Ernest Lehman. Starting at the Belle Theatre today for one solid week, it is a "prize" of a movie in every sense of the word.

Police Holding 17-Year-Old As Witness

HULL, Que. (CP) — Police Chief Maxime Lavigne said Tuesday night that police are holding a 17-year-old youth as a material witness into the stabbing death of a Hull schoolboy.

The body of Rejean St. Denis was found by two of his classmates in a park not far from his home. He had been stabbed eight times in the back and once in the shoulder.

Police said he had been murdered about 10 hours earlier.

Young St. Denis was reported missing by his parents when he failed to come home from play after supper Monday.

Ivon Lacoucier, a foster child taken into the St. Denis home 14 months ago, was reported missing at the same time. But he was found by police Tuesday wandering about Union Station in Ottawa.

AT THE BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN — James Darren and newcomer Cindy Carol have a lovers' quarrel in the new Jerry Bresler production, "Gidget Goes To Rome," the Columbia Pictures release in Eastman Color. Miss Carol plays Gidget, the exuberant teenager who finds Rome is a great place for romance. Jessie Royce Landis, Cesare Danova and Danielle de Metz also star in "Gidget Goes To Rome," opening Tonight at the Belleville Drive-in Theatre. "The Three Stooges go Around the World in a Daze" is the 2nd comedy attraction.

'Rendezvous in Space' Late at World's Fair

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — One exhibit that did not open at the New York world's fair last week was Reaching for the Stars, a production showing how two manned crafts will rendezvous in space.

There are two good reasons why. The building hasn't been completed; the exhibit still is being built in Hollywood.

The man putting it together is Frank Capra, one of the movies' great directors, and also a graduate of the California Institute of Technology, class of '21.

"This job is a challenge—and a helluva lot of work," said Capra. "The show will only run 17 or 18 minutes, but it will take me about five months to do it properly."

"Like a lot of things at the fair, it was started too late," said Capra. "The Martin Marietta Corp. people who are staging the show realized they were too far behind in January. That's when they yelled 'help!' They seemed to think I could help them."

Capra has not only made film classics like Lost Horizon and Mr. Deeds Goes to Town he also has had success in interpreting science to his fellow man.

"I started about 12 years ago," he said. "I was on the board of Caltech and the school asked me to help recruit students. It seems the educational system had been aimed at creating happy citizens, not scientists. So I made a film that pointed out the opportunities that could be had in scientific careers. It was highly successful. Then came Sputnik and the whole situation changed."

Then Bell Telephone wanted him to make some television specials on scientific subjects. "I took five years to make four of them," Capra said. "They not even sure I made back my own expenses. But it was a challenge, and I like to tackle challenging things.

"Most of all, I wanted to show scientists in the universities what they could accomplish by using film."

Capra will use both film and live action for the world's fair exhibit. The show will also feature a pair of spacecraft models which will simulate a rendezvous. Capra expects to deliver the project June 15.

Mom's Forgotten Birthday Upsets Happy Household

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 13-year-old boy who is writing this letter for myself and my two little brothers. We are all very sad and we need your advice.

ANN LANDERS

Today was our mother's birthday. None of us kids remembered the day and daddy forgot it too. It all started during supper when mom got a singing telegram from grandma. We tried to say "Happy Birthday" then, but it was too late. She was real upset and hollered, "I'm just the cook and maid around here. Why should anyone remember my birthday?"

My youngest brother tried to hug her and give her a birthday kiss but she threw him off her lap. Now she is not talking to anybody and daddy is hiding his head behind the newspaper. It is very gloomy around here. please help us cheer up mom. — ASHAMED KIDS.

* * *

DEAR KIDS — Some mothers do not care very much about birthdays. Now that you know your mother does care, track down a 1965 calendar and put a big circle around that special day. It might also be a good idea to remind your daddy a few days ahead, so he can bring flowers or maybe take her out to dinner.

If you kids try to be especially considerate of mom and help her in the house she will sweeten up in a day or so. Mothers get hurt just like everybody else, but they heal quicker.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband retired at 59 because of a back injury. The injury does not prevent Warren from living a normal life, but it does prevent him from doing the work for which he was trained.

When he retired, I thought, "Hooray, now we can travel and see the country." Our first little trip was to see the dam.

What happened? The minute we got on the road Warren gunned the car up to 85 miles an hour. When the speedometer dropped to 70 he said, "Something must be wrong with the spark plugs." When he stopped to eat he swallowed his lunch in one gulp and bellowed, "Quit poking, we gotta get going."

Of course we were home in two days instead of four. No sooner had I put the luggage away when he began complaining about boredom and "nothing to do."

I've suggested all sorts of hobbies but they are too tame. Shall I tie an anchor on his rear bumper? Help. — DONNA.

DEAR DONNA — Your hyper-thyroid husband operates on over-drive and you can't change him.

He needs a hobby that will give him a physical outlet for his energies as well as emotional satisfaction. Maybe your doctor can guide you.

* * *

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

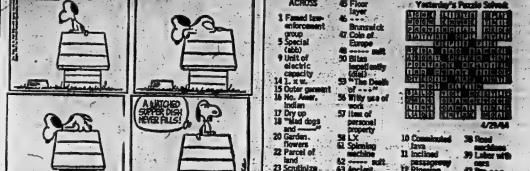
Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

The development of a baby's vision is a gradual thing — just as all phases of physical and mental development. At birth, he can distinguish only light and dark, and his eyes work independently. But along about 3 months of age eye muscles are sufficiently developed to focus both eyes at the same time. By this time, too, vision sharpens and he begins to distinguish shapes, responds happily to familiar faces and bright-coloured objects.

Sight-seeing strategy. Eye muscles need exercise to develop. You can encourage baby to exercise his eyes by providing things that will help him on his sight-seeing excursions. A gay toy swaying mobile over his bright-coloured crib or just a "glitter. A gay toy or two attached to his crib ... a balloon tied to playpen bars. And, if you place the crib where he can follow your comings and goings, he'll get plenty of happy eyeful.

Eye-appeal for a baby meal. We all know that babies react favourably to pleasing flavours but little appetites respond to pleasing colours, too. Gerber Strained Fruit Juices and Strained Egg Yolks have the sunniest colour that ever lighted up a baby's eye. And to that add the dreamy, creamy texture and a delicious fresh-egg flavour and you've a delicacy fit for a little prince or princess. They provide a good dietary source of vitamin A, iron and protein for excellent nutritional benefits.



Juicy story with nutritional overtones. Gerber Strained Fruit Juices make baby sipping pleasure beyond measure and a good source of vitamin C. Refreshing as you please for baby's "juice breaks" ... a wonderful snack time pick-me-up for toddlers on the go. Five delectable varieties to choose from ... all delightfully mild to please little palates. Pasteurized, of course, for your baby's protection ... carefully strained for easy feeding. Gerber Baby Foods, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Challenge in the Himalayas

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP)—All arrangements have been completed for the first Canadian assault on the towering Himalaya Mountains in West Pakistan except the choice of the peak to be scaled.

Dr. E. F. Roots, 41-year-old leader of the first Canadian Himalayan expedition, says the peak the eight-man party will attempt to climb in the mighty Karakorum range will be selected by the Pakistani government.

"We won't know the exact peak we'll be climbing until we assemble as a team at Rawalpindi in West Pakistan May 9," he says.

Dr. Roots says the expedition has asked permission to scale a peak so far not conquered by mountaineers.

"We hope it will be Mahbitting peak which has a height of 24,451 feet, compared with 29,000 for Mount Everest, the highest mountain in the world."

Dr. Roots, co-ordinator of Canada's Polar Continental Shelf Project, says the expedition's gear has been shipped from Vancouver to Karachi from where it will be moved overland to Rawalpindi in the foothills of the Himalayas. Most of this specialized equipment for high altitude climbing was obtained in Europe.

AVERAGE AGE 30

Besides Dr. Roots, the expedition will include deputy leader Robert Donald Lyon, 27, Powell River, B.C., school teacher; Carlisle A. Irwin, 27, Calgary geologist; Hermann P. Jamek, 24, Toronto aircraft engineer; Abdul Momin Khalifa, 34, Montreal physician; Donald M. E. Poole, 26, Courtenay, B.C., engineer; John F. Rickey, 25, Nanaimo, B.C., geologist, and Karl H. Tomm, 25, Montreal physician.

The average age of the climbers is 30 and all are Canadians except Dr. Khalifa, a Pakistani. The only married members of the team are Dr. Roots and Dr. Tomm.

Mr. Irwin and Mr. Rickey now are en route to Rawalpindi from New Zealand where they have been working. Mr. Jamek and Mr. Poole also are on their way from Europe.

Other members of the party leave by air from Montreal May 3 for Karachi and Rawalpindi. After the party has assembled at Rawalpindi it will move 200 miles north to Gilgit from where the assault on the roof of the world will originate.

The expedition has been arranged privately and will cost each member about $3,200 or a total expenditure of about $25,000. Plans have been more than three years in the making.

TRAIN THREE YEARS

All members of the expedition have had long experience in difficult mountain climbing in many parts of the world. During the last three years all members have been training on their own to put them in shape for the most challenging climb of their mountaineering careers.

Dr. Roots, a native of Salmon Arm, B.C., spent his boyhood at the mountaineering centre of Banff, Alta. At 15 he was a veteran climber with a number of first ascents in the Rocky Mountains to his credit.

During his student days at the University of British Columbia he did considerable climbing in the coast and Cascade Mountains of Western Canada and the United States. He worked for the federal government in 1941 as a mountaineer guide in the Canadian Rockies and in 1944 headed a geological survey party which worked in previously unclimbed areas of the Omineca-Cassiar mountains in northern B.C.

In 1949 Dr. Roots was senior geologist for the Norwegian-British-Swedish Antarctic expedition. During the 1950-52 period he scaled more than 100 Antarctic mountain peaks, all first ascents. For this work he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal by King Haakon of Norway and the Polar Medal by Queen Elizabeth.

CLIMBED MT. McKINLEY

Dr. Roots also has had mountain climbing experience in the Mackenzie Mountains of the Yukon and Northwest Territories and in the European Alps.

Vancouver-born Robert Donald Lyon started serious mountaineering in 1957 while at the University of B.C. He soon became one of the most active and best known mountaineers in Western Canada.

In 1950, he took part in the second ascent of the east peak of Mount Logan, highest in Canada at 19,850 feet. He was deputy leader of a party which in 1961 climbed the 20,320-foot north peak of Mount McKinley, highest in North America.

Mr. Irwin has climbed about 50 major peaks in the Canadian Rockies and the New Zealand Alps, some of which have been first ascents of high technical difficulty. He worked on survey parties in the Canadia Rockies for 3½ years and spent two years in the New Zealand Alps in charge of the construction of steel towers for electric transmission lines.

A native of Klagenfurt, Austria, and a naturalized Canadian citizen, Mr. Jamek is a professional ski instructor and photographer as well as an engineer. He spent his boyhood and early manhood in the Austrian Alps where he became an expert climber. During the last four years he has worked as an aircraft engineer on survey operations in the Canadian Arctic.

TWO DOCTORS

Dr. Khalifa, a staff physician at St. Mary's Hospital, Montreal, is a veteran Himalayan mountaineer. He worked with climbing parties in the Himalayas from 1946 to 1949 and was a member of the German-American attempt on Nanga Parbat in 1954.

Mr. Poole has had six years of experience in mountain climbing, two in the Canadian Rockies, two on the Pacific coast, one in the European Alps and one in Norway.

All of Mr. Rickey's work as a geologist has involved mountain climbing, mostly in unexplored or little travelled areas. He spent four seasons in the Canadian Rockies and Pacific coast mountain ranges, and two in Antarctica. Other experience was gained in the New Zealand Alps as a member of the New Zealand Geological Survey.

Dr. Tomm, also a member of the staff of St. Mary's Hospital, Montreal, is an all-round athletic. He's a former RCAF pilot officer and his experience includes climbing in the Canadian Rockies and in Costa Rica.

HEADS MOUNTAIN EXPEDITION — Dr. E. F. Roots, 41, leads a Canadian group which hopes to be the first to scale a peak in the Himalaya Mountains in West Pakistan. Shown checking a map of the area in his Ottawa office, Dr. Roots said his group hope to climb the 24,451-foot Malubiting peak. Selection of the mountain will be made by the Pakistani government. New Scale Will Upgrade About 132,000 Workers

By BOB EXELL

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government announced Wednesday a minimum wage of $1 an hour for men and $1 cents an hour for women will take effect for almost all urban areas of Ontario June 29.

The extension of Ontario's minimum wage laws outward from the Ottawa-Toronto-Hamilton horseshoe will lead to an almost — universal minimum wage of $1 an hour by Dec. 27 1965, Labor Minister Rowntree announced.

He said establishment of the new minimums will upgrade the wages of about 132,000 workers, two-thirds of them women. Only farm laborers and a few other classifications of workers would not be covered.

Waitresses, clerks and store checkout girls probably will benefit most from the new regulations.

For the purposes of the minimum wage extensions, Ontario has been divided into two zones —neither including the horseshoe area, where minimums in law have been in effect since last June, Mr. Rowntree said.

EFFECTS ZONE 1

In zone 1—comprising the industrial areas of all parts of the province — the minimum wage for men will be established at $1 an hour June 29. For construction workers, the minimum will be $2.

Employers of women in zone 1 must pay them at least 85 cents an hour starting June 29, but this figure will rise to 90 cents an hour on Sept. 28, and to 95 cents Dec. 28. It will be set at $1 Dec. 27, 1965.

In zone 2, comprising all of Ontario not covered in zone 1, the minimum wage for men will be 85 cents an hour starting June 29. On Sept. 28 it will become 90 cents an hour and on Dec. 27, 1965, it will reach $1.

Women in zone 2 will have a minimum of 75 cents an hour effective June 29. It will rise to 80 cents Dec. 28, then to $1 on Dec. 27, 1965.

Construction workers in zone 2 will receive a minimum of $1.75 an hour starting June 29. The rate will be increased to $2.25 a year and a half later.

To Deflate RCAF Rank Structure

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Compression of the armed forces command structure through integration will deflate the RCAF rank structure, informed sources said Wednesday.

Defence Minister Hellyer has informed the Commons that there are only nine fewer senior officers in the 31,000-member RCAF now than there were in 1964 when air force strength was 230,000.

There are 164 group captains in the RCAF compared with 160 in May, 1964, 34 air commodores compared with 37 and 13 air vice - marshals compared with 23.

At the Metz, France, headquarters of the 5,700-member RCAF air division in Europe are one air vice-marshal, one air commodore and three group captains. In addition, each of the three RCAF bomber bases in Europe is commanded by a group captain.

By contrast, there is one brigadier in the 6,300-man Canadian Army brigade in West Germany. Brigadier is equivalent to air commodore. The brigade has no major-generals, equivalent to air vice-marshal, nor any colonels, equivalent to group captain.

WILL CUT STAFF

Sources said the Metz headquarters, with an administrative staff of 86, likely will be abolished, but not before next year at the earliest.

Informants said there is no apparent intention of knocking down the ranks of current senior officers. Further positions will be filled by officers of lesser rank as the present officers retire from the service or are eased out by integration.

Eventually, the RCAF, as well as the navy and army, likely will lose its present officer insignia. The air force at one time considered adoption of Canadian Army insignia because the persons outside Belgium and some other Commonwealth countries are acquainted

Dutch Queen Is Warmly Greeted By Crowds On Her 55th Birthday

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—Queen Juliana, looking well and smiling continuously, acknowledged the cheers of crowds today gathered at Soestdijk Palace for her 55th birthday celebration.

The queen stood on the palace terrace acknowledging greetings from all sections of the population as people filed past, placing bouquets of tulips, daffodils and narcissi on the palace steps.

Police expected a record 20,000 persons to demonstrate their loyalty and affection in recognition of Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard endured during the engagement and marriage of their daughter, Princess Irene, and Prince Carlos of Bourbon-Parma.

Irene married Prince Carlos of Spain, son of the Carlist pretender to the Spanish throne Wednesday at a State ceremony boycotted by all reigning European royalty, including Queen Juliana's mother Queen Juliana.

Flags flew throughout Holland today in sharp contrast to Wednesday when hardly anyone flew the Dutch tricolor for the Rome wedding.

The main difficulty between Irene and her family was that Juliana and her advisers were afraid the Carlists would use Irene to further their political aims.

Juliana and Bernhard were also miffed at the Bourbon-Parmas for announcing the time and place of the wedding without consulting the Dutch royal house.

Old Age Tag Not Liked

OTTAWA (CP)—What's in a name?

The elderly would be a lot happier with any other title than "old aged," argued Hazen MacEwan in the Commons Wednesday.

So for an hour the House debated a proposal by the 38-year-old Conservative MP for Pictou, N.S., to find "a more worthy designation" for Canadians over 65 years of age.

His main complaint was the minimum will be 25.

Employers of women in zone 1 must pay them at least 85 cents an hour starting June 29, but this figure will rise to 90 cents an hour on Sept. 28, and to 95 cents Dec. 28. It will be set at $1 Dec. 27, 1965.

Nurses Warn Hospitals Of Poor Working Conditions

TORONTO (CP) — Members of the nursing and medical professions warned Wednesday that hospitals in Metropolitan Toronto face a major crisis because of poor working conditions for nurses.

The warnings came in interviews on the eve of the annual meeting of the 32,000-member Registered Nurses Association of Ontario.

"Nurses are leaving Canada at the rate of 1,400 a year," said Mrs. Ruth Le Roux, chairman of the Committee for the Advancement of Professional Nurses, a militant group within the RNAO.

Said Dr. T. P. Morley, assistant professor of surgery at the University of Toronto and head of the neurosurgical division of Toronto General Hospital:

"This not only reflects a desire for adventure and more money but also suggests that nursing in Canada may not hold out the promise of fulfillment needed to keep the ambitious and talented in this country."

A steady flow of nurses to the United States was cited as a major reason for the lack of talented nurses in Canada.

Dr. Morley said that of those who remain in Canada, 35 per cent do no nursing work, even on a part-time basis.

Mrs. Le Roux said: "Thousands in Ontario, angered by working conditions in our hospitals, prefer to remain at home or take secretarial work. If the drain is not stopped soon, patients will suffer and hospitals in Ontario will gain a worse name for themselves than the mental institutions of 25 years ago."

She added: "Shortages are so great in some hospitals that a single registered nurse on night duty may be responsible for more than 40 patients."

"In such situations," she said "any sort of traditional nursing attention is completely out of the question and this produces despair and disillusion in a young girl who starts her career full of fine ideals."

Recent grievance letters from nurses in Ontario listed low salaries, lack of incentive payments for unpopular shifts, absence of recommendation for changing and storage of clothing, thoughtless in alloting hours which do not consider duties for the personal problems of individual nurses.

Police Arrest 76 Persons In Racial Demonstrations

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Police arrested 76 persons in racial demonstrations at Nashville, Tenn., Wednesday as civil rights leaders pushed efforts to integrate the city's amphitheatre.

Civil rights leader, Rev. C. C. T. Vivian of Atlanta, called the Nashville demonstrations the start of "the long hot summer of discontent," and appealed for support of new demonstrations at a mass meeting Wednesday night.

The arrests came in the third day of demonstrations this week. Demonstrators are mostly Negroes but a few white persons were involved. Among those arrested was John Lewis, chairman of the National Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee. He and Lester McKinnie, another civil rights leader, were charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors by encouraging them to remain out of school and join the demonstrations.

There have been 98 arrests at Nashville this week and a few minor injuries were reported as policemen dragged demonstrators out of a street before a segregated restaurant.

Nashville Mayor Beverly Briley appealed for calmness and said police have been instructed to maintain law and order.

A seven - day moratorium against demonstrations at Chester, Pa., was announced to give city and state officials a chance to settle Chester's months-long racial dispute.

A three - judge federal court threw out sections of the Virginia constitution and laws requiring racial designation on civil rights movement, even by Communists need not disclose membership. The group said in a statement: "If a Communist is for motherhood and against sin, this does not discredit those views."

A 40-year-old Negro businessman of Columbus, Ga., George W. Ford III, qualified as a candidate for the Muscogee County commission. He will oppose a white commissioner, P. S. Massey, in the Sept. 9 Democratic primary election.

A marching, singing demonstration interrupted Governor George C. Wallace of Alabama for 10 minutes as he spoke at the University of Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind., in support of his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

UN Posts Set Up At Pass

CP from Reuters-AP

NICOSIA — The United Nations peace force in Cyprus today set up its permanent UN posts in the Kyrenia Mountains where Cypriot Turks and Greeks clashed Wednesday night and today.

A UN spokesman here said the posts would be manned mainly by Canadians. He said they would be located on mountain tops around St. Hilarion Castle and in villages on both the southern and northern slopes of the Kyrenia range.

New fighting in the Kyrenia Mountains broke out today despite the cease-fire announced by the Cypriot government Wednesday night unilaterally for the Greek-Cypriot forces.

MAY SHOOT BACK

Under the UN peace forces operational orders the men manning the UN posts would be allowed to shoot back if fired upon.

St. Hilarion Castle is a Turkish Cypriot stronghold overlooking the strategic road north from Nicosia to Kyrenia.

A UN spokesman said the fighting was still going on at 8:30 a.m.

He said Greek-Cypriots on the southern slopes also opened fire downhill on a Canadian patrol of the UN force in the Turkish-Cypriot village of Agbiroz.

A Swedish UN patrol in southern Cyprus Wednesday night traded shots with Greek-Cypriots during a brief but fierce gunbattle between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots in the village of Timi. No casualties were reported, the spokesman added.

Both the UN and the Turkish-Cypriots said they were not informed in advance of the Cypriot government cease-fire announcement.

Greek-Cypriots said they had believed their objective in the Kyrenia area and Turkish "insurgents" had ceased to be a threat.

A Turkish-Cypriot spokesman said his side was uncertain about the cease - fire as such agreements had previously been broken by the Greeks.

World Review Will Be Given Trade Parley

Delegates Are Silent After 7-Hour Study

OTTAWA (CP)—State Secretary Dean Rusk arrived here today for brief talks with Prime Minister Pearson on the international situation while the Canadian and United States ministers entered a second day of discussion on joint economic affairs.

Mr. Rusk arrived by jet plane at 9:45 a.m. EST and entered the prime minister's office about 46 minutes later. He was expected to spend up to an hour with Mr. Pearson, External Affairs Minister Martin and a few advisers from each side.

Mr. Rusk told reporters at the airport that he and Mr. Martin would later give the joint economic committee a review of the world situation. He said he had found such talks "extremely worthwhile."

He was asked to comment on a speech last Saturday by U.S. Undersecretary of State George Ball, which some have interpreted as suggesting a form of free trade between Canada and the U.S.

'A BAD INTERPRETATION'

Mr. Rusk declined comment but Mr. Ball, standing nearby, said "that was a very bad interpretation of what I said" and walked away.

Meanwhile, the joint cabinet committee began its last three-day session. Its chief function was to follow in mid-afternoon. Delegates remained officially silent late Wednesday after the first seven hours of talks reported to have ranged from international issues to Great Lakes water levels.

Ministers from both sides evidently reached a point early in the conference to say nothing to the press — they would not even mention the room discussed—until the post-meeting briefing held today, likely in mid-afternoon.

However, this much was known:

Wednesday's talks included the water-level situation on the Great Lakes. Interior Secretary Stewart Udall was reported to have called for studies on the feasibility of diverting more Canadian rivers into the lakes. External Affairs Minister Martin told the meeting that no one intended to raise the issue.

TALK OF TRADE

There was further discussion of the position both countries will take in the coming round of tariff-cutting under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which opens in Geneva today as well as in the United Nations trade and economic

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top U.S. officials are understood to have urged anew in private talks here this week that Britain revise her policy of trade with Cuba and support the U.S. effort to deny industrial and transportation equipment to the Castro government.

State Secretary Rusk has held a series of discussions on world problems with British Foreign Minister R. A. Butler. President Johnson had a conference with Butler Wednesday.

Officials have confirmed that Cuban issues were raised in the Rusk-Butler talks.

Butler has been in Washington for a conference of the Central Treaty Organization which ended Wednesday. He is going on to Japan and The Philippines for talks in those countries.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Chamber of Commerce called on United States government Wednesday to re-evaluate its export control system and consider easing restrictions on trade with Iron Curtain countries.

About 90 per cent of the delegates to the annual meeting of the business organization expressed approval on a voice vote.

Speakers favoring the new policy proposal made it clear that its purpose was to give businessmen a chance to sell to Russia and her European satellites products which they now are required from allies of the United States.

The policy would not apply to Communist China, Cuba, North Viet Nam or North Korea.

Stronger Mandate Is Hinted

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin hinted in the Commons Wednesday that the United Nations peace - keeping force in Cyprus may be given a stronger mandate to prevent fighting on the island.

At the same time Mr. Martin and opposition Leader Diefenbaker renewed their verbal sparring over the minister's absence from time in replying to questions by Mr. Diefenbaker.

At one point Mr. Martin said the opposition leader "would do himself more credit" by helping the government in the cur-

Film Showing Churchill's Life Is Given Glittering Premiere

LONDON (CP)—A cavalcade of one-time warriors, diplomats and just plain friends of Sir Winston Churchill stepped into the Royal Festival Hall Wednesday night to watch the world premiere of The Finest Hour, a film version of Churchill's life.

The guest of honor was Prince Philip, but the spotlight was concentrated on the great names of the day — Lumsay, Slim, Dowding and Eden.

Lady Churchill was there, with her daughters Sarah and Mrs. Christopher Soames; so was 74-year-old former detective inspector Walter Thompson, Churchill's much-harassed bodyguard during the war.

The only person missing was the star of the film, himself. Churchill, in his 90th year, could not attend the opening but of saw the documentary privately two weeks ago at his home in Chartwell and gave it his seal of approval.

The 145-minute film, largely composed of old newsreel shots, covers Churchill's life from his birth in Blenheim Palace until his triumphant electoral victory in 1951. Most of the film's gripping, American director Jack Lie, was concentrated on the war years. As it unfolded out by all the critics shows Churchill toiling down an airstrip in North Africa trailing an incongruous umbrella.

British critics approached the film with mixed feelings, worried that they might be caught in a flood of nostalgia; most were pleasantly surprised.

"Here, gathered up for history, is an authentic impression of Churchill the war - leader," says Clive Barnes in The Daily Express.

But the anonymous critic of The Times felt the production lacked balance by failing to mention Churchill's mistakes.

Pleads Guilty To Charge of Careless Driving

Unlucky in a brutal sense.

On such a day - - March 13 - - he was driving a cement tank truck down Wallbridge Road when it was rammed broadside by a CNR freight on a level crossing.

The Belleville trucker - - employed by Lou's Transport - - was charged by provincial police with careless driving.

Today he pleaded guilty before Magistrate T. Y. Wills - - and the troubled epilogue to the incident went on record.

Although Arsenault was fined only $25 and $3 costs acting Crown Attorney Jack Hanna asked the trucker be given time to pay.

He was suspended from his job because of this. He is now on welfare. His wife is going to have a baby and he has five children now," the prosecutor told Magistrate Wills.

The magistrate decided to give Arsenault two months to find the cash.

"I very seldom do that - - but perhaps there are reasons in this case," he concluded.

Ornamental, Lighted Fountain To Be Placed in Fraser Park

TRENTON — The Trenton Board of Parks Management has voted last night to go ahead with the erection of an ornamental, lighted fountain in Fraser Park this year—or at least make a start on the project—for two reasons. (1) To get its own Centennial project underway. (2) To serve as a fine example for other town groups (including town council) by getting something start ed for the 100th anniversary of Canada's 100th birthday.

The decision to get underway with the project came on the heels of the board secretary, Miss Marion Baker's attendance at the Canadian Club meeting in Belleville, Tuesday night, where she heard John Fisher urge these present to make a start on Centennial projects, no matter how lowly the project might be.

The motion was sparked by board member Clyde Mason, who was instructed to get drawings and projected prices for the fountain.

It will be built in the park where the round flowerbed is now.

Last night was Planning night at the board meeting. More than $2,000 will be spent this year to provide play equipment in Fraser Park, Victoria (Mosquito) Park on Division St., long neglected along this line, will be provided with a six-swing set; a "merry-go-round" (driven by the children's feet, of course); a slide, not more than seven feet high and around 18 feet long and a "bar bell" swing. Recreation Director Donald McPherson will order the equipment.

Hanna Park will also get a slide, and Cottrell Park a basketball back drop. If the merry-go-round were cut in Victoria Park, the board may install one in Albert Park.

Hanna Park will have installed a paved surface, 100 x 50 feet, roped and divided, which can be flooded for a skating rink in the winter, and serve as a hockey or volley ball court in the summer.

WILL CHECK PRICES

If this works out, paved areas will be provided in other parks next year.

Mr. Mason will check prices against a public works' department estimate of $1,400 for the paving.

The machine equipment building in the Bayshore Park area will be the board's major project this year as the work will cost approximately $2,000. A site for the building which will perform with the town's proposed extension to Wharf St. will be selected.

Last year, 100 trees were planted on boulevards. This year, parks' board members and the parks' gardener, Bart Boers will discuss locations for trees with the public works' department and council.

The board voted last night to buy "up to 200 trees" for boulevard planting.

Mr. Mason has called for the survey of at least two parks this year, to define boundaries. "Each year," said Mr. Mason, "the board 'talks' about surveys, but this year, he wants to see a start made on the project."

So-Green fertiliser will be used in the parks this year, Mr. Mason told the board, adding that a more natural type of fertiliser would do a superior job. Mr. Mason was instructed to get a comparison report from John Deere.

So-Green contains potash, no soil, while other fertilizers do not, and potash is necessary for good plant growth.

Shatter-proof glass will be installed in the washroom at Hanna Park as last year the glass was smashed out of the newly built "new chalet" two building.

Present at last night's meeting were: William Ireland, chairman; Miss Baker, Mr. Mason, Mr. McPherson, Mr. Saylor, Mr. Boers and Norman Armstrong.

Senior Citizens Hear Reports At Meeting

TRENTON — Trenton's Senior Citizens now have ribbons with the name of the club to attach to the name-pins by which each member is identified. The ribbons in gold ribbons were presented to the 85 members who attended Tuesday night's meeting.

The club president, Mrs. Emma Panter, conducted a short business meeting during which the quarterly report was read by the secretary, Mrs. Mabel Gunter.

Mrs. Panter announced that two members, Mrs. Calla Rose and Mrs. Lois Conner, Deseaux were patients in Trenton Memorial Hospital.

The members were entertained by piano accordion selections by Miss Kathy Smith, and Miss Ruth Ann Hills and harmonica selections by William Nasarenko. Mrs. Yates accompanied the artists on the piano. The door prize was won by Norman Campney.

Following the singing of "God Save the Queen" members enjoyed a lunch and the meeting closed with the singing of "I'll Walk Alone."

As the week of June 7 is Senior Citizens' Week, the Trenton club will attend Sunday morning services at the Salvation Army Citadel in a body at the beginning of the week.

Police Officers Hold Zone Meet at RCAF

TRENTON — Police Chief F. J. Taylor and Inspector R. J. Rutherford attended a meeting for senior police officers from Zone Two at RCAF Station yesterday.

The officers were lectured in the opening session on the role of civilian police in the event of an emergency where aircraft would be involved. They were shown the various facilities at the station.

In the afternoon, the annual Eastern Ontario Conference on Crime was held and following this, the officers adjourned for a buffet dinner.

WILL HOLD FAIR

Tomorrow, May 1st, is May Day and in olden times, lads and lasses used to erect a May Pole and dance around it in the village square.

The children at Glen Miller school mean to emulate their remote ancestors. They have postponed the date until May 22nd when a fair will be held in the schoolyard.

On the agenda are log-sawing contests for the fathers and a nail pounding contest for the mothers.

KEEP LAND AT HOME

Get in Barry township, the strangest problem township clerk Angus Gunter has encountered to date in that vicinity, he got Tuesday from an irate township citizen who asked him to "do something about" and blowing from a neighboring field into her home.

Mr. Gunter confesses he doesn't know exactly what to do about the problem — unless it's to notify all farmers to keep their land at home.

Driver Loses Licence for Three Months

Convicted twice in three weeks after automobile accidents, a Belleville man this morning lost his licence for three months.

John Charles McArthur, 52 Charlotte Street, was convicted April 9 of careless driving after his car struck a boy on Belleville's western limits.

This morning he was back again before Magistrate T. V. Wills — this time charged with impaired driving after a three-car accident Saturday outside Trenton RCAF base.

McArthur pleaded guilty to the count — laid by Provincial Police when his car caused the rear-end accidents at the base traffic lights — and acting Crown Attorney Tom Lally called for a licence suspension.

"I believe you're right," agreed Magistrate Wills. The other conviction involved liquor, as a matter of fact, although there was no charge of impaired driving.

He fined McArthur $100 and prohibited him from driving anywhere in Canada for three months. The latter ruling is authorized by the Criminal Code.

Convicted On Charge of Manslaughter

HAMILTON (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court jury Wednesday found Robert Charles Edwards guilty of manslaughter in the Dec. 21 shooting death of his 19-year-old wife, Hazel.

The jury deliberated for only four minutes after Mr. Justice E. L. Haines directed that the charge be reduced from capital murder.

Edwards pleaded guilty to manslaughter. He had pleaded not guilty on the capital murder charge.

Mr. Justice Haines said: "There is enough evidence to cast grave doubts on whether the act was premeditated."

Edwards testified that he had returned to his home at 11:15 p.m. and found his wife and former friend, David Lloyd Tweedie, making love on the couch.

He said his wife had their nine - month - old daughter in her arms. He rushed in to separate his wife and snatched the child from her. Tweedie tried to get him to discuss the matter but he refused.

Edwards said he took the child to the home of friends, left from that time until he heard the explosion of the shot that killed his wife, he could remember nothing.

He said he recalled hearing a second shot and grabbing himself up to police but could not remember telling his friends he was going to kill his wife or telling a detective that he had murdered her.

Lord Tweedsmuir to Attend Presentation of Color

Viscount Lord Tweedsmuir, former commanding officer of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will attend the presentation of the regiment's new color here May 17th.

It is not known if Lady Tweedsmuir will accompany her distinguished husband.

Headquarters here doubts if this is the case since Lady Tweedsmuir is said to be busy on the political scene.

This will be the third time Lord Tweedsmuir has visited Belleville in connection with the regiment.

He attended a reunion a few years ago where he met another outstanding member of the First Division regiment Sergeant "Cockie" George Pensford who came here from South Africa.

Later he toured Canada with Lady Tweedsmuir. While in British Columbia Lady Tweedsmuir accompanied her husband on a hunting trip and bagged a large mountain goat.

Lord Tweedsmuir joined the "Hasty Three" from Darvel, Scotland in June, 1943 with the rank of major. He was seconded-in-command.

He went with the regiment to Sicily on July 10, 1943 and when Lieut.-Colonel Bruce Sutcliffe, commanding officer was killed in action at Assoro took command.

WOUNDED IN ACTION

Lord Tweedsmuir was wounded three days later and was sent to hospital in North Africa.

Recuperating from his wounds he rejoined the regiment in September and served with it until October 6 when he was invalided to England.

He was succeeded as commanding officer by Lieut.-Colonel A. A. Kennedy, then of Trenton, Ont.

A humorous incident of the reunion attended by Lord Tweedsmuir here occurred when one of the original veterans of the "Plowboys" approached him and said "MJud, ing with you here, this is the best time I've had since we were here!"

The Hon. Earle Rowe, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario heads the list and will formally present the color to the regiment at special ceremonies at the Fair Grounds.

Lieut.-General Howard Graham DSO and Bar, another former commanding officer, and distinguished war correspondent advisory committee is another prominent guest.

Lieut.-Colonel Jack Black present commanding officer head an imposing array of ex-CO's. Among them will be Brigadier Don Cameron, Lieut.-Col. Jack Kennedy, Lieut.-Col. Angus B. Duffy, Lieut.-Col. W. A. Dwyers, Lieut.-Col. E. S. Fairman, Lieut.-Col. M. Dave son and others.

The city, too, will pay honor to the regiment.

The 15th additional honor and give the unit the permission to wear sidearms and parade through the city, bands playing and drums beating.

Moscow Applies Pressure For New Communist Meet

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Moscow is applying pressure on Communist parties to agree to a meeting of world Red leaders next fall for a showdown with the Chinese on the issue of tactics for expanding Communism.

Red China, unless it agreed at such a conference to change its tactics, would stand a good chance of being expelled from the world Communist family, Moscow with wherever dirty politics refused to toe the Kremlin line.

Basically, the pro-Soviet and the pro-Chinese factions stand on the same thing: Eventual world Communism through revolution. The difference is over tactics. How aggressively should the expansion be pushed? What dangers can be risked in the process? The Russians are cautious about it, the Chinese want constant action.

The machinery for calling a world meeting would operate this way:

The Soviet Communist central committee would challenge its opposite number in Peking to attend a meeting in May, a preparatory session. Even if Peking rejected that challenge, Moscow would seek—in June or July—a meeting of delegates representing those parties who were on the drafting committee that drew up the 1960 Moscow declaration at the last world meeting.

That would be a preliminary to the fall conference, where Moscow would try to reverse what happened in 1960. In the 1960 Moscow declaration Premier Khrushchev was obliged to backtrack and make concessions to the Red Chinese to prevent a spectacle of acrimonious squabbling in the Communist camp.

The Soviet party now is trying to establish the principle that the U.S.S.R. is first among equals in the Communist camp, that it can be aiming at a sort of super-comintern in which tactics would be discussed and decisions taken which would thereafter be followed by all parties to the letter. Moscow, of course, would dominate the decision-making.

Khrushchev now is on dangerous ground. The Soviet party's attempt—in which he did not at first entirely agree—to call another conference may create even more dissension in the camp. But the situation is fairly desperate already, with China virtually breaking the world movement in two.

Settle Dispute Out of Court For $13,000

A legal dispute between two contractors has been resolved out of court with a settlement of $13,000.

The action, initiated before Judge J. C. Anderson, involved Richmond Sand and Gravel Company, near Roblin, and H. J. McFarland Construction, of Picton.

Cause of the litigation involved delivery of sand for a highways project in 1962. McFarland Company Richmond Sand alleged that $17,000 was owing on the contract.

In a counter-claim, the McFarland firm admitted owing $14,470 but charged the sand it received had a high water content and resulted in financial loss since it was not payable by government inspectors. It sued Richmond for $8,000.

The case ended yesterday when minutes of settlement were filed between both parties. McFarland agreed to pay $13,000 and dropped its counter-claim.

Bancroft Asks PM to Rescue Uranium Mine

BANCROFT — A telegram was sent yesterday by the Bancroft Chamber of Commerce to Prime Minister Lester Pearson urging him to find some way to prevent the complete collapse of the area's uranium mining industry.

"We cannot believe that in a period of temporary lull in the uranium industry, when your efforts and ours have so far failed to find alternative employment, we are being allowed to suffer the humiliation of relief roles," the telegram said.

The national interest would be best served by continuing the production of uranium, the telegram said, adding: "We are not looking for charity."

Device Gives GI Instant Foxholes

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — The U.S. Army has come up with a successful device designed to speed the digging of every infantryman — an instant foxhole.

To dig a proper foxhole in the past, a soldier needed a pick, shovel and stamina.

A team from the Fort Columbus Combat Development Command's infantry agency put the new development on display Wednesday at Fort Benning.

The one-pound foxhole digger comes in two parts—the first part for blasting a small hole two inches in diameter and several inches deep. This is known as a pilot hole.

The second part of the device is placed in the pilot hole, a primer is set, and the soldier gets down in the hole for about 30 seconds while a cratering explosion digs the foxhole.

A demonstration showed the device works best in hard, rocky, clay-type soil or frozen ground. This is because dirt blasted from soft, loam-type soil tends to cave in along the sides and the soldier has to pitch it out by shovel.

The instant foxhole varies from 20 to 36 inches deep and about two feet in diameter.

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF CHISHOLM McDOUGALL HOUSE — Located south of No. 2 Highway, east of O.S.D. Lane.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne McDougall, south of No. 2 Highway just east of O.S.D. Lane comes from outside the main street, North America's architectural tradition. A scottish crofter's cottage incongruously set down on a Canadian farm, it is the stuff of which legends are made and around it legends abound.

One story has turned the old place into a barracks. Another has General Brock stopping there on his way from Kingston to York in 1812. There is no proof that Général Brock was ever in the Quinte district, but the legend persists. Certainly a child born in 1812 was named Isaac Brock Ostrum, probably in memory of the General who was killed that year. Since an Ostrum held title to the lot on which the house stood, it was a simple matter to embellish the tale to the point of placing Brock's bed in the house.

The legend markers were not deterred by the fact that the Ostrums whose homestead is several miles to the west, sold the property to Alexander Chisholm in 1809, three years before the Battle of Queenston Heights.

Lieut. Alexander Chisholm was part of the wave of emmigration that went out from Scotland in the third quarter of the 18th century. He settled in Albany in 1775, but within a few months revolution broke out and Chisolm went to Quebec to serve with the British Militia. After the war he became one of the first settlers in Sidney Township.

Most pioneers bartered to obtain any goods they could not produce themselves, but Chisholm was able to clai ma re compensation money. He could have a mansion to build a substantial stone house at a time when most of his neighbours were living in log shins.

Did he find a Scottish mason who could reproduce a perfect copy of his boyhood home, or did he design the cottage from French-Canadian mason in the building? Either way is possible but all we can be sure of is that sometime around 1815, the long narrow, stucco covered rubble-stone house with great fireplaces at each end went up on Lot 27 in Sidney.

Perhaps because glass was still expensive in the colony Chisholm made the windows on the second floor smaller than a man's arm. At first, with the window that lit the stairway reduced to almost a slit. The massive kitchen fireplace with its hake oven remains, displaying the skill of a master mason in its long cut-stone arch. The original front door, clearly visible in old pictures, helps to date the house. It was the tall, narrow, straight-transomed, "wilderness" entrance. Mr. McDougall says, to admit today's furniture. The house has been altered over the years to conform to modern standards of comfort.

Alexander Chisholm came to America looking for economic security and got involved in a revolution instead. By the time he arrived in Canada he had had his fill of new-fangled Yankee notions. He decided on a house in the timeless tradition of the moorland cottages of Scotland. It was an anachronism in British North America, but it remains a touching example of the determination of an expatriated Scot to recreate a bit of his homeland on the alien shores of the Bay of Quinte.

Honeymooners Not Disclosing Destination

ROME (Reuters) — Princess Irene of Holland and Prince Carlos of Bourbon-Parma were honeymooning at an undisclosed location today.

The 36-year-old princess and her husband, a pretender to the Spanish throne, left their Rome hotel Wednesday night by car for an unknown destination. They were married earlier in the day.

A spokesman for the couple said they would be travelling to "various Mediterranean countries" but would give no further details.

The couple was married in the Hooghesa Chapel of St. Mary Major Basilica in a ceremony shunned by the Dutch royal family and all of European royalty's nobility.

MEMORIES ROUSED

Seldom in recent years and in one place were so many memories revived of disintegrated empires.

The chapel slowly filled up with Bourbons — descendants of Kobkowitzes, a Braganza, a Savoy and a Medina - Sedonia. Over them all, seated apart in lonely state, presided the exEmpress Zita of Austria-Hungary, the only person present who had ever sat briefly on a throne.

The romance almost caused a constitutional crisis in The Netherlands and estranged Irene from her parents, Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard.

The princess, a recent convert to Roman Catholicism, gave up her right to succession to the throne and agreed to live outside the country with her husband.

Courtesy and Consideration Best Way to Promote Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Thomas Crerar (L—Manitoba) said Wednesday courtesy and consideration are the two best methods of promoting Canada's tourist industry.

He said in Senate debate on a motion to set up a committee to study the country's tourist is the best advertisement to persuade other tourists to come to Canada.

"It doesn't cost anything for Canadians to be courteous to visitors and to show them every consideration."

The committee, when established, will study the activities of various agencies concerned with promoting the tourist industry and attracting people from other countries to Canada.

Senator Crerar suggested increased federal - provincial co-operation in this field. But he cautioned that if Ottawa takes the lead care should be taken not to tread on the toes of the provinces "in these sensitive days."

Senator Gordon Inman (L—Nova Scotia), who will be chairman of the committee, said the federal government, the provinces and Canadian municipalities are becoming increasingly conscious of the importance of the tourist industry to the economy.

He urged increased efforts to promote tourist travel by Canadians in Canada. Travel within Canada should become a hobby for all Canadians.

Senator A. J. Brooks, Conservative opposition leader, forecast that the tourist industry within a few years will become the main earner of foreign dollars.

Community School Projects For Adults Under Study

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Community school projects in Ontario should be "people-sponsored" rather than government-sponsored, a provincial secondary school teacher from Flint, Mich. said Wednesday.

J. A. Lee, an administrative assistant for experimental programs, told delegates to the Ontario Conference on Continuing Education the expense of adopting such a program is not great.

Mr. Zerbe urged that an Ontario city adopt a demonstration program and warned there could be no blueprints since no two communities are exactly alike.

"Providing recreational facilities over the course in continuing education for adults would not be expensive," he said. "School buildings are just sitting there empty during evening hours and the summer months."

He estimated the basic cost of the establishment of a community school would be half the school budget.

Delegates completed business Wednesday, drawing up resolutions and recommendations to be submitted to school boards, teaching associations and the Ontario government for study.

Police are investigating the death of the woman, who was admitted to hospital March 18, shortly after the accident.

The woman was released from hospital Tuesday morning and readmitted two hours later when the complaint of headaches. She died early Wednesday.

Canada As a Peace-Keeper

A group of American thinkers has decided that Canada is better equipped than any other nation to lead development of international peace-keeping machinery.

For this reason, those attending the American Assembly, a leading public affairs forum which seems to compare with our Canadian Conchiching conferences, have suggested that the U.S. should not try to bind Canada to conformity with U.S. foreign policies.

The recognition that Canada would lose part of its status and effectiveness as a leader of the middle powers if it should appear to be playing the role of a U.S. satellite is welcome.

Some doubt, though, ought to be generated by the assertion that Canada can best play the role of leader in developing peace-keeping machinery, including unaligned nations, with Israel and the United Arab Republic, with the Congo and now with Cyprus. Objection may be made that the UN, and Canada, have played peace-keeping roles in situations where the ideological differences between major powers were involved, less instance than here. But here the task was not to stop fighting, but to police a truce once it had already been arranged. Moreover, in Laos Canada's role on the peace commission was to counter-balance the communist appointee—the task of leadership went to neutral India.

Canadian independence within the Western Alliance may if it ideally to lead in such peace-keeping projects as appear feasible in today's world, but if it ever becomes possible to 'extend the operation of such machinery to disputes involving the major powers the role of leadership will have to be assumed by a nation outside the alliance. It is doubtful whether Canada could qualify as truly neutral, even if it wanted to do so.

All a Little Crazy

"Psychiatric illness is more prevalent in the general population than any other condition."

This sentence appears in a release prepared by the Canadian Health Association in connection with Mental Health Week, now being marked in Belleville and throughout Canada.

What the Association means is that there are more cases of psychiatric illness than of any single form of physical illness.

The sentence does not really mean what it appears to be saying, that there are more people who are crazy than those who are not. If, however, the Association did hold this conviction it would have company—the old woman who is reported to have exclaimed "they's all crazy 'cept thee and me—and sometimes I have my doubts about thee."

While doubts about the sanity of one's fellows seem to have been with us for a long time, some things suggest that the incidence of mental illness is on the increase. There are those who hold that this apparent increase can be laid at the door of pressures inherent in our modern life. Doubtless there is some truth to this, but we suspect that improved methods of detection and treatment of mental ills account for a major portion of the apparent increase.

Unfortunately there has been no commensurate improvement in the attitude of the average layman towards the mentally ill. We still tend to regard such illness as a sort of disgrace, although we feel nothing but deep sympathy for the victim of thalidomide polio. This is all the stranger when we note that most of us will admit that we are frequently irrational ourselves. But we think little the less of ourselves for such aberrations. The truth seems to be that all of us, even thee and me, are sometimes not in the best of mental health, are frequently a little crazy. It is comforting to think that this applies even to psychiatrists. The difference between them and their patients is a difference of degree—which is precisely the difference between physicians and their patients in the realm of physical illnesses.

The intellectual has a very special status in England. He is thought rather comic but rather lovable. He is part of the landscape; you don't have to take him too seriously, but you listen to him with courtesy and attention. England's a country which has the greatest of charms for intellectuals like me; it's a country of Philistines who are enormously tolerant.—Dr. J. Bronowski, scientist, writer and broadcaster.

'Dief' Still the Chief Impossible to Beat

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Admire him or detest him.

Hate and fear him, or cherish and perhaps even-almost worship him, and Diefenbaker still dominates the Commons.

There he is, a high head and shoulders above and beyond the Commons crowd.

Lester B. Pearson may be prime minister.

And External Affairs Minister Martin, Trade Minister Sharp, Justice Minister Favreau and the rest of the Cabinet may run the Federal administration and the country.

But John Diefenbaker still dominates the Commons.

He remains the height and bristle star of Parliament.

He stood out as its most dramatic performer in the long 23 years of Conservative Opposition, playing the always exciting role of "Fighting John Diefenbaker," and completely upstaging such stellar Parliamentary actors as Mackenzie King, Louis St. Laurent, C. D. Howe and Jack Pickersgill and company.

UNFORGETTABLE

Then, of course, as prime minister, he made Parliament almost a one-man show.

He dazzled, dominated, up to the final frantic days of that last frenzied year of power, as he became almost unforgettable.

So actually "unforgettable," in fact, that Prime Minister Pearson and Paul Martin, still now more than a year after his defeat, find themselves in red-faced embarrassment, referring to him as "The Prime Minister."

"They thought I was dead after the last election," he grinned, but grimly, the other day, "and they're finding out that I'm the liveliest corpse they'll ever have the misfortune to know."

And so it has been turning out to be.

Nobody in the House can approach his performance.

He can croon, softly, like a fond mother.

He can snort, and be as cruelly cutting as a whiplash.

He retains that an old Western gun-hand, verbally shooting from the hip.

No wonder, the other day, that Frank Howard, the young New Democrat from Skeena, too eager bearer for his own good, made the mistake of likening the Old Warrior: "who do you think you are—you're not the Messiah, you know."

SNAP SHOTS

He should have known better. Most people in the Commons do, and are extremely careful not to try glossing spears at Dief lest they come whistling back.

And whistling back came Frank Howard's reply:

"How would you know anything about a Messiah?" sang out the Conservative from the House—not excluding some Liberals—still familiarly call "The Chief" — "you wouldn't recognize a Messiah, he recalled, had put himself down in the Conservative Guide as an "athiest," know?

Dief was a shade out, for Frank Howard had described himself in the official Guide as an agnostic, back in 1960, dropping the reference in subsequent Parliamentary editions.

Then just the other day Joe Greene, the Senatorial-sounding Liberal MP from Renfrew, was fulminating in the old-world style that has caused the Lakehead's Douglas Fisher to refer to him as "The William Jennings Bryan of the Ottawa Valley."

But Dief did better than Fisher:

"Who is this?" he asked, quoting from Job, "that darkeneth counsel with words without meaning?"

Joe Green subsided.

And when Paul Martin was rumbling, Dief used the "Two Acts of the Apostles for "Paul, Paul, thou art beside thyself."

Mr. Martin settled down.

When Dief is at the top of his free-wheeling verbal form, there is just no answer, because there's simply no one in the Commons, including the prime minister, who can come near matching him, cut for cutting thrust.

In his home of Parliament, Dief, even in Opposition, still remains the man to beat.

Strictly Personal
Freedom Not Principle But Relationship

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices

Nothing is more foolish than to talk about "freedom" as a principle; when it's really a relationship; everybody is for freedom that the tyrant most of all, since he wants every bit of it for himself.

It's easy to mistake a merely active man for one who is actually accomplishing something; as Kim Hubbard observed, "A bee is never as busy as it seems; it's just that it can't buzz any slower."

I find few things more spiritually demeaning than watching a candidate for office making those fulsome attempts to be more affable than he should naturally be; Gov. Rockefeller's "Hi-ya, fella!" makes me curdle with embarrassment every time.

The rise of technology poses an insuperable economic problem in that the ways of earning money are incessantly multiplied, but the ways of expending it remain as few as ever.

There is one phrase that always means exactly the reverse of what it says: "Not to change the subject," means "to change the subject."

It's easy to think you're sensible at first as you haven't had enough money to make a fool of yourself with.

Some writers and speakers imagine that they avoid being tedious by being brief; but this conceit was exploded long ago by the Comte de Rivarol, when he commented on a couplet: "It is excellent, but somewhat long-winded."

The true art of being a diplomat consists in the ability to refuse a favor in such a manner that he seems to be conferring one (cf. "love means love" — that in the economics of the heart, those unwilling to make a large investment get one, no return, and that the very abundance itself generates more of the same.

The only house guest more annoying than the one who won't do anything for himself, is the one who always wants to help when help isn't wanted.

Between two people, friendships grow slowly from the first guarded meeting; between individuals, friendships leap at a spring into full ripeness at the first meeting, and then quickly turn rotten as it is learned that a similarity of ideas and ideals has no necessary relationship to the core of the personality beneath them. Ordinary people, in this respect, are wiser than their intellectual superiors.

To Your Good Health
No Points Are Scored for Guessing What Ails You

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 57-year-old man and have trouble passing my urine.

I don't have any pains except a little burning sensation for a short time. I wonder if the prostate has anything to do with my prostate gland? — H. S.

This may result from an enlarged prostate gland. It's true it could be other causes but they are not very common. Prostate trouble is.

But why guess about it? Why not tell your doctor what troubles you are having, and then let him make whatever tests are needed.

This isn't a game in which you score points for guessing what ails you. This is a serious business of correcting an ailment as quickly as possible.

The prostate is an unusual organ. It is partly muscle, partly glandular and it is shaped something like a warped doughnut. It encircles the urethra, through which urine is released from the bladder.

If the prostate becomes swollen or enlarged it can make the flow of urine difficult or can even make it impossible to empty the bladder completely, which is an invitation to chronic infection. In some cases, surgery is necessary to relieve the condition — and, in fact, may be urgent if it has been allowed to progress too far.

In other cases lesser treatment often is adequate. The important thing is to see a doctor for several reasons. First, the annoyance is stopped. Second, it is easier to treat. Third, deferring treatment can be a risk to your life, because a complete urinary retention is caused by cancer. Of course, other causes may be involved, such as a stone or infection of some sort.

Dear Dr. Molner: I recently read that one can waste money on vitamins. What type recommended for people in their 30's, 40's and older. What do you advise? — Mrs. L. B.

I didn't mean to imply that. I meant in general that some people are wasting money and falling for the fancy sales pitch of vitamin quackery.

I'm not opposed to vitamins. But a well-balanced diet gives us all we need.

I still feel that it's preferable in the long run to see your doctor once a year for a test and let him guide you to vitamin pills that will be better and cheaper — if you need them at all

Teach Fish How to Act

James Harwood in Wall Street Journal

There are no doubt some people in this country who regard certain government activities as a little silly. But even they, we're sure, will support the Interior Departm ' efforts to teach fish to act "naturally."

This is one government enterprise that does seem somewhat practical. Does it? Shoot proper schooling the government can teach will not be ready three years hence for the opening of the National Aqu ium, a $10 million fish house, where, we are officially informed "dolphins will perform spectacular leaps into the air and generally jump for the joy of it. Archer fish will shoot insects off overhanging branches. Orca, the killer whale, from their rock fortresses to attack sharks. Schools of piranha will swim vicious circles around customers.

"The aquatic animals will be doing what comes naturally," the Interior Department says, "but only after they have been carefully trained." If they were just dumped into their new habitat, there is nothing of public interest or scientific value would happen."

Some of the fish may have supposed untutored piranha regard food any differently than their more learned brothers, but that octopuses need too much coaching to attack a crab. We are glad to have this government-guided. It's also good to know that the federal organization approaches the curriculum for the dolphin.

The government assures us it isn't "trying to create a circus" and only wants "to make the dolphin behave naturally." But a near - natural habitat for the benefit of both scientists and public viewers." Ah, yes. But it's a good bet that when school's out the dolphins will never be quite the same again.

An Interior Department press re- se also proudly proclaims that "dolphins . . . will be taught to locate lump, an accomplishment never before . . . n a public." No circus, you understand; merely a whale of a trick pet.

Finally, the drive toward natural dolphins will concentrate on teaching them to talk. The department concedes that its pupils probably won't master the human language. All that's aimed for is sound patterns that r...mble such human words as 'thank you."

The last venture seems assured of success. After having been rewarded with all that education, what self-respecting dolphin could refuse to express his gratitude?

Startling Quebec Poll

Montreal Star

Le Devoir recently printed the findings of a poll on the religious attitudes inside a Quebec classical college, Le College Sainte-Marie, conducted by a group of students and published in the school's monthly. At some points the results are startling.

Asked flatly, "Do you practise your religion?", 23.9 per cent answered "no" and 15.3 per cent "sometimes" or less. Did the social and family control "forced them to practise it? Yes, said 61.2 per cent; 33.2 per cent said it "incited" them to do so, but only if they were left completely free.

"Do you believe yourself a practising believer?" Yes, said 47.2 per cent; 31.3 per cent considered themselves simply believers; 11.2 per cent were agnostics; 5.7 per cent atheists.

"Do you subscribe to all the dogmas of the church?" Yes, said 46.5 per cent; 40.5 per cent "more or less"; 12.9 per cent, "not at all."

Why did the students attend a Catholic College? For 51.2 per cent, primarily because it was Catholic; for 50 per cent, because the parents wished it so; for 32 per cent because they felt "forced to attend a confessional institution."

"Granted equal quality of the institutions and a free choice, would you attend a confessional or non-confessional college?" Confessional, 54 per cent; neutral, 23.6 per cent.

"Would you choose to attend a non-confessional school even knowing that the church condemns the principle of neutral schools for the faithful?" Yes, 48.1 per cent. In addition, 26.2 per cent favored the creation of "neutral" or "mixed" schools (without distinction of creed), and 36.9 per cent the creation of neutral streams.

Finally, 78.2 per cent of the students consider the demands of parents who want neutral or non-confessional schools for their own children to be fair.

Le Devoir commented: "The value of these results is principally symptomatic. It is fair to deduce that the meaning of the Church was not always understood precisely, and that perhaps some students took it all too literally in adopting 'radical' attitudes so as to give these results of the poll an explosive quality. But the document is still of a sort to invite reflection, and it is to be hoped the study will be continued, on a scientific basis, in other Quebec classical colleges."

BBC London Letter

Shortage of domestic staff is British social problem, and increasing persuasiveness of advertisements for them appearing in many papers, London television, liberal free time' are commonplace inducements; but few offer such unusual benefits as the following advertisement from the 'Times' of fifty years ago, quoted by Kenneth Ingram in a talk broadcast in BBC 'Woman's Hour' recently: 'A good cook is offered, and expects every room kitchen window of main thoroughfare with constant arrests, small accidents, ambulance calls, and other interested incidents at all hours of day and evening'.

Body of Pilot Found in Wreck At Bracebridge

OTTAWA (CP)—The body of Capt. G. J. Ross Flewin of Vancouver, 26-year-old army pilot missing since Jan. 17, was found Wednesday in the wreckage of his small aircraft near Bracebridge, army headquarters reported.

An RCAF helicopter spotted the wreckage, landed immediately and confirmed that it was Capt. Flewin's plane.

Capt. Flewin was flying an army L-18Z on a routine train- ing flight from Toronto to Ottawa when he was reported missing. The original search was hampered by snow and poor visibility.

B of M to Open New North Front Branch Friday

A. A. KROETSCH

New permanent premises for the Bank of Montreal's North Front and College streets branch will be officially opened tomorrow afternoon, according to A. A. Kroetsch, the manager.

The branch, which was established in a trailer in September, 1963, is now located in a modern, permanent office featuring a streamlined counter with three tellers' wickets. For safety deposit box customers, two private coupon booths are located close to a large steel-and-reinforced-concrete vault.

The interior is fitted with walnut woodwork, an acoustic-tile ceiling, fluorescent lighting and none - skid rubber - tile floor- ing. It is attractively decorated in pastel colors.

NEW MANAGER

Since it opened here, the office has operated under direction of Norman B. Keith, manager of the main Belleville branch. However, with the completion of the new premises, A. A. Kroetsch has been appointed manager and he will be responsible for the day - to - day operation of the office.

A native of Waterloo, Mr. Kroetsch joined the Bank of Montreal there, and later served at branches in Kitchener and Waterloo before being appointed accountant at Watford, in 1957. Five years later, he moved to Perth in a similar capacity, and he left that post to come to Belleville.

A special feature included at the new office is an "around-the-clock" depository unit, which allows both private and business customers to make deposits at any time.

Customers with private accounts are supplied with special envelopes by the B of M, while those with business accounts are given canvas wallets.

The deposits are placed in the envelopes or wallets, which can be placed in one of two openings in the face of the unit.

The envelopes and wallets slide down a chute into a safe-keeping unit inside the bank, where they remain until the bank is next open for business. The deposits are then processed in the usual way.

Students Taken On Tour Through Bell Building

Recently the Grade Eight Students of St. Michael's Academy toured the Bell Telephone Building. The information gleaned from the guide's explicit instructions helped the students realize the magnitude and importance of the Company's operations.

In the different departments they were shown files, the intricate switchboards, time-de- vices used on long distance calls and the various information centres throughout the building. In one department they listened to explanations on the "tin operators".

These are instruments which find your number as soon as you dial. We were shown the large cables, some of which held approximately fifty-seven hundred wires. It was of interest to note the different types of cables used and the reasons given for any change made. The huge batteries which were ready to take over in case of necessity were of particular interest to all.

Before departure refreshments were served. This tour was a memorable experience for the students who are grateful and appreciative of the efforts of the personnel. Through their guidance and the answers to questions they have learned to realize the efficiency with which they are served through the medium of the telephone.

DO WE HAVE A CANADIAN FASHION?

Periodically, this columnist is asked the question: Do we have a Canadian fashion look and why Canadian designers copy from American and European markets. These letters always stagger me until I realize that many women still do not realize how the garment industry operates in Canada or in the United States.

We do have a Canadian fashion industry, busily designing and making fashions for us, but no designer is uninfluenced by the creations of others in his field. Many well-known "brand names" and internationally advertised lines are made here in Canadian factories, by Canadian workers and backed by Canadian capital. A franchise is paid to the foreign owner of the design, but these same designers are also made and worn all over the world. A certain loyalty prevails in fashion whether it be seen in Timbuktu, London or Nanaimo.

Canada also exports fashions to the United States. There are several high-priced Canadian fashion houses, who produce an outstanding variety of items, such as beaded-embroidered evening gowns, slick daytime fashions, hand-knitted hats, etc. They are doing well, particularly in goods exported. The Canadian handbag industry has made such strides in the last five years that Canadian purses are now finding their way into the fashion markets of the United States and Europe.

CANADIAN ORIGINALITY

Anyone who was the Canadian Association of Couturiers present their collection this spring, is sure certain that Canada has a national design incentive and almost intuitive in its originality. All the hallmarks of the Haute Couture were shown — hand embroidery, careful drapery and unusual use of color and fabric. But if these fashions have been shown outside Canada, could we have identified

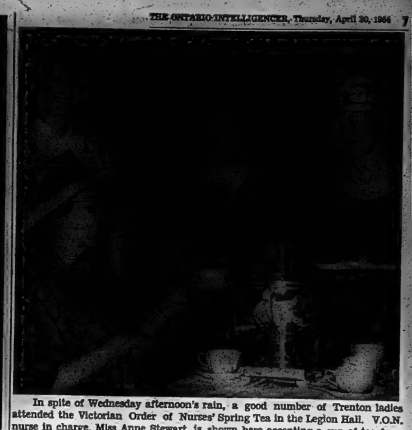
Each of the attendants carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations and mums.

Mr. Robert Way, Belleville R.R. 7, attended his brother, while Mr. Richard Flindall, and Mr. Brian Way, both of Belleville R.R. 7, were the ushers.



The reception was held in the parish hall of Christ Church, where the bride's table was prettily appointed with pink and white candles and the bridal bouquets lending colorful accent to the nuptial setting. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a dusty rose lace dress with matching jacket and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing a dusty rose lace over taffeta dress with a corsage of white carnations.

For the wedding trip to various points in the U.S. and Canada the bride chosen a three-piece turquoise linen suit and a pink carnation corsage.

Guests were present from Bancroft, Bowmanville, Northam, Bowmanville, Brampton, Ottawa, Peterborough, St. Catharines, Toronto and Whitby.

Previous to the marriage showers honoring the bride were held at the home of Mrs. L. Kennedy, Belleville, with Miss Lois Lyn Kelleher as hostess; at the home of Mrs. A. Wannamaker, Trenton R.R. 3, when girls from the Bell Telephone attended, and a shower at the home of Mrs. D. Mathieson of Belleville. A trousseau tea was held the previous Sunday at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Way are residing at 199 Moira Street West, Belleville.

In spite of Wednesday afternoon's rain, a good number of Trenton ladies attended the Victorian Order of Nurses' Spring Tea in the Legion Hall. V.O.N. nurse in charge, Miss Anne Stewart, is shown here accepting a cup of tea from Miss Hazel Naudett, Trenton Memorial Hospital Administrator, while the tea convener, Mrs. Nevaida LaCroix, and the tea room convener, Mrs. Jean Lupton, look on.

Red Ensign Favored by Institutes

GUELPH (CP)—The Federated Women's Institute of Ontario Wednesday voted against compulsory teaching of French in elementary schools.

"Some children just cannot be taught French and it should not be forced on the curriculum," one institute member told the four-day annual spring meeting which ends Friday.

The 40 delegates from throughout Ontario unanimously approved adoption of the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag.

Other resolutions submitted Wednesday covered such subjects as food, bathrooms, bottles and books.

The meeting voted for the abolition of stapling packages of food.

A resolution that new additions to houses, such as bathrooms, should be considered health improvements and not a luxury which would increase assessments was referred to local communities.

Resolutions calling for the abolition of boxing and for restricting the number of strikers to seven on any one project were defeated. Another to restrict advertising of alcoholic beverages on television was also defeated.

A proposed change in the criminal code to provide heavier penalties for cruelty to animals was not approved.

Ann Landers

Smart Aleck Needs to Be Taught Telephone Manners

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband's 22-year-old brother got out of the service three weeks ago. Vernon is staying with us until he finds a job. I have just about decided that if he doesn't go to work within two weeks I am going to work because I can't stand him around much longer.

If you can tell me what to do about just one of Vernon's habits I will be grateful. My husband says I have no sense of humor. I say his brother is a jerk.

Vernon answers our telephone with "Maxie's House of Flowers," or "State Mental Hospital. Give to Mental Health or I'll kill you." Sometimes he says, "Benny's Bookie Joint," or "St. Patrick's Cathedral, the Cardinal speaking." Our friends and relatives are complaining that this nut shakes them up with his crazy jokes.

The last time Vernon did this, the Baptist minister was on the phone. He didn't think it was very funny. Am I wrong? — BRINK OF WAR.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR BRINK — Since your husband doesn't seem to have any better taste than his brother, it's up to you to tell the clown to let the phone ring unless he can answer it properly. And let him know in plain language that you mean business.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A lot of knothead husbands who wouldn't think of reading a book on psychology read your column every day. Without realizing it you are educating a great many people — even those who insist at the top of their lungs that they are reading you for laughs.

Will you please say a few words about menopause.

I am 47 years old. (Everyone who writes to you says "I look younger." Well, not me. I look older.) For the past two years I've had hot flashes and sinking spells. During supper I will say, "Joe, open the window. I'm burning up." Twenty minutes later I'll say, "Joe, close the window, I'm freezing." He tells me I am imagining things and that I'm off my rocker.

Will you please print in your column that this is part of "the change," or the menopause. Thank you, in behalf of millions of suffering women who are also married to clods. — 28 YEARS OF SERVICE.

• • •

DEAR 28 — Hot flashes are indeed part of the menopause. An enlightened and sympathetic husband can do a great deal to help a woman over this difficult time of her life.

A visit to a doctor can also help. Today there is medication available which can alleviate much of the old-fashioned discomfort. I hope you will look into it.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Am I a freak because I don't want a great, big flashy engagement ring? My mother says I ought to have my head examined. My sister said if I don't get a diamond now I'll never get one so long as I live. Frankly, I'd much rather have some paid-for furniture than a $1,000 diamond ring.

I hope you will print my letter and say something in support of my ideas. Most of the people I have talked to look at me as if I have holes in my head when they ask to see my engagement ring and I tell them I didn't want one. — Thank you. — RINGLESS.

• • •

DEAR RINGLESS — Congratulations. In this day and age when so many young girls are hunting for husbands with a Ginger counter it's refreshing to hear from a girl who is not interested in blinding her friends with the Hope Diamond.

Stick to your guns, Buttercup, and don't feel that you must make excuses. The only ring that really matters is the plain gold band.

• • •

Ann Landers' frank and informative new book, "Teen-Agers and Sex" ($2.95) is now available at your book store.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Presbyterial Training Day Held for UCW

On Monday, April 20th approximately 200 United Church Women of the Belleville Presbyterial met under the capable direction of Mrs. L. Fiskin, Fonboro, chairman of Leadership and Development committee, for a Training Day, in Eastminster United Church, Belleville.

A welcome to Eastminster was given by Mrs. Heenn, president of Eastminster United Church Women and by Mrs. F. Smith, Newburgh, president of the Belleville Presbyterial. This was followed by Bible study conducted by Mrs. T. W Spear, Trenton.

The main training of the day "Christian Citizenship and Social Action" was deftly handled by Mrs. J. E. Waldie, Newburgh and her committee with Mrs. G. E. Dobbs, Belleville, as guest speaker. Much information was gleaned from her explanations and portrayal.

Representatives were appointed to attend the School for Leaders to be held in Belleville in July. A question and answer period brought a worth while day to a close.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

"MAIL CALL"

Question: I had a studio portrait taken of my two children and have ordered a number of copies made to send to families relatives who have been begging for pictures. I intend sending the pictures in folders, since frames for each would run into considerable expense, considering that I have to send prints to ten different people. Several are proper relatives of my husband, so I want to make sure I do what is absolutely correct. Should the pictures be framed, or may they properly be sent in the regular photographer's jacket? Your help will be appreciated. — Mrs. J. L., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: If the picture was being sent for a special occasion like a birthday or some sort of anniversary, and it was meant to be in the nature of a gift, then you might consider framing it. However, even then it would be optional. In the case of the prints you are about to send to relatives, framing is not necessary and the mailing folder will suffice to keep the pictures flat and dust-free until individual recipients get a chance to have the photos framed.

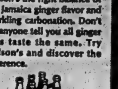
Question: I left a jacket at the home of a friend when I was visiting for a weekend. She just forwarded it to me, and I'm embarrassed that she had to go to the expense of shipping it. I'd like to reimburse her, but wonder if this would be acceptable. — F. G., Philadelphia, Pa.

Answer: If the charge was considerable, then it should be refunded under cover of a friendly thank-you note. But if the jacket was mailed for just a small amount, it's not necessary to send a covering amount, but a thank-you should be handed for her courtesy in going to the trouble to make sure the jacket was returned as quickly as possible.

Question: A well-known writer was at a dinner party I went to recently and I would have liked to get her autograph. I asked the hostess if this would be possible, but she shrugged off the idea and didn't seem to approve. I felt embarrassed that I even suggested it. Was it rude or ill-mannered of me to do so? — Mrs. E. V., Daytona Beach, Fla.

Answer: It's permissible to ask for an author's autograph at a literary tea or some other function at which his work is the subject of the meeting or discussion. But at a purely social gathering, it's not considered in the best of taste to ilionize any artist. Your hostess probably wanted to shield you from appearing gauche and that's why she vetoed the idea of securing an autograph.

Mother's Helper



SOMETHING really cold is a great comfort to small teethers. Available in most drug stores and infant departments is a liquid-filled plastic ring designed just for this purpose. It's good to buy two, keep one in the refrigerator so there'll always be a cool one in reserve. They're inexpensive.

HOLY TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH WOMEN

The Lutheran Church Women met at 815 Victoria Ave. for the April meeting.

President Mrs. Eldon Skuce, opened the meeting.

Mrs. H. Lindeman led the devotions and gave a story of a young man and the "Influence of a Picture." A spotlight focused on a picture of Christ praying in the Garden of Gethsemane, giving the setting of the story.

Mrs. R. Kraft read excerpts taken from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's book, "You Learn By Living." Mrs. Rolof accompanied at the piano for the singing of a hymn.

Mrs. Lorne Fever reported that an extensive visiting program was on the way. Mrs. W. Calbury reported for the Christian Action Committee and gave various ideas about future projects, namely: a used clothing drive for Lutheran World Relief, layettes, dishes and silverware for the new kitchen in the church, a request for used birthday cards for the County Home and the School for Retarded Children. Many others were brought to the attention of the ladies, and wholehearted support was given.

Mrs. M. Wodak reported for the Altar Committee and gave favorable mention to those who arranged such beautiful flowers for the altar.

The ladies offered to cater to a special Lutheran Sunday Church School meeting to be held May 8, with Peterborough and Kingston in attendance. There will be instructors and teachers from Manitoba and the United States.

With an educational hour in devotions, and a full business hour, all ladies brought the meeting to a close with the benediction.

Mrs. E. Skuce and Mrs. W. Calbury served a delicious lunch.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart R. Rosenberg

Perhaps the high rate of divorce has something to do with the low level of love. Maybe we have been seeing too many movies and thus have identified love only with "romance". But romance is not the cause of "romantic divorce," is grounded in myth and deception.

Those who regard love as romance, see in marriage a device by which they can secure their personal happiness. But built into such an attitude are inevitable frustrations which can destroy, rather than preserve, the marriage relationship.

ROMANTIC LOVE

To begin with romantic love requires that the husband - or wife-to-be be heavily endowed with endearing young- charms. Enter frustration Number One: the majority of men are not handsome, and despite generous assists from assorted cellfexes and cosmeticians, neither are all women beautiful.

Then, too, romantic love and success seem to work at cross-purposes, in our society. For Enter frustration Number Two: the average marriage is still a their chief career. But men sometimes discover that if they are to be successful — and "success" is a basic ingredient of romantic love — their rigorous careers drive ever greater shares of most of their energy and emotion. Their careers and their wife's "career" do clash. Thus, frustration Number Two: both husband and wife can be heavily endowed with endearing young- charms, but their marriage is still a failure because they have betrayed love. He, because his success, as necessary for their romance, has estranged him from her love. She, because his career has gotten in the way of hers. Neither is truly emotionally served by the other. Both believe that the other has not contributed to his or her aspirations, or fulfilled their own needs.

ROMANTIC DIVORCE

Romantic love also tends to be time-limited. Under age sets in, and children grow up. The tragedy of this kind of love is that it lasts too long. When love is only a sexual-emotional interaction, as it is regarded by those in pursuit of romance, it must, in time decline and die. This is, perhaps, why we see so much frustration in modern marriage — the kind that seeks its way out via "romantic divorce." Say the Beatles, how long after they should know me, if my husband no longer suits my romantic desires? I will retain my ideal, and seek out another romance." Hollywood has not hindered the promotion of this nonsense and its widespread acceptance by those who seem otherwise to be normal and intelligent!

In the field of child psychology, we have witnessed a new emphasis: parents are no longer urged to allow children the boundless freedom to develop their "personality", without restriction. Now, they are being told that the mental stability of their children is weakened, not weakened, when children are made aware of the limits of their freedom.

FREEDOM

Someone ought to start talking to parents about what they need to learn more about the limits to their own freedom. They have been defining love principally in terms of the satisfactions of their own "egos", or as the means of developing their own personalities. They might be taught to drop the childish attitude of "what's-in-it-for-me?" which is at the heart of romantic love.

Then, they may even come to believe, as true for themselves, some of the things they have been preaching to their own children!

Ladies' Night Enjoyed at Moira Lodge

On Saturday, April 25, another enjoyable evening was held at the Masonic Temple, when Moira Lodge, A.F. and A.M. No. 11, held its annual Ladies' Night. This event held true to form as an outstanding occasion in the annual life of the Lodge and was strongly supported with a large group in attendance.

Guests at the head table included Wor. Bro. A. Rose Bunnett and Mrs. Bunnett; Rt. Wor. Bro. A. Clare McFaul, D.D.G.M. and Mrs. McFaul; Rev. A. L. Sutherland and Mrs. Sutherland; Wor. Bro. M. M. Hackett and Mrs. Hackett; Wor. Bro. A. W. Warner, and Mrs. McKibbon; and Wor. Bro. F. Hodgen and Mrs. Hodgen.

The invocation was given by Bro. R. Reid, Chairman for the occasion, was Wor. Bro. Ross Bunnett, Wor. Master of Moira Lodge. The head table guests were introduced by Bro. Bob Moorcroft.

Following the dinner, the "Quinte Cavaliers" entertained with several vocal numbers which were well received.

The guest speaker, Rev. A. L. Sutherland, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, was ably introduced by Wor. Bro. Wally Warner. Rev. Sutherland chose as his topic "Your God is Too Small." This was a well-chosen topic, a provoking address which was appreciated by all. Wor. Bro. M. Hackett thanked Rev. Sutherland for his kindness in bringing the message to the evening.

The toast to the ladies was proposed by Bro. Clare Faulkner and replied to by Mrs. Winston Bushell. Rt. Wor. Bro. Clare McFaul spoke briefly.

The Junior Warden's toast to the Past position of the evening to a close. Bridge, euchre and dancing were enjoyed to the music supplied by Charlie Kammer's orchestra. The evening was under the direction of Bro. Clifford Brown, chairman of the entertainment committee, assisted by the members of the committee.

Harmony Studio Presents Program

The Harmony Studio Club met at the home of Mrs. Emily Veley Saturday evening, April 25th. The meeting opened in the usual manner with Susan Sweet at the piano.

The Club Lady welcomed the pupils and guests and announced the annual recital would be held on June 3 in Prince Charles School.

The class presented the following program, starting with Rondo in C" playing "Reggadon" and Katharine McGeown, "Bill's Lament." New Swerve to Cassini Curves Contrast Creates Empire Drama

Oleg Cassini

TWO COLORS create a smashing impact in this Empire-curved sheath designed by the sure hand of Oleg Cassini. It's definitely a one-piece dress. In the original, navy blue created the bolero effect beneath the slim-of-white neckline and above the stemmy skirt. While the two-level scoop neckline seems to curve dangerously low, it's really cut for both comfort and flattery. For summer, we suggest the sleeveless version. But be sure to make another version come fall — that neat, ruffled sleeve line is too smart to pass up.

Printed Pattern A877 is available in Misses' Sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, 16, 18. Size 10 sleeveless dress requires 3 yards 35-inch fabric.

Send ONE DOLLAR for Printed Pattern A877 to THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER, 60 FRONT STREET WEST, TORONTO 1, Pattern Department. Please print plainly your NAME, ADDRESS with STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Ontario residents add 3c sales tax.

A little salt

METHOD:

Steam together for four hours. Will keep well. A dressing may be made with 1 cup brown sugar, 1 heaping tbsp. butter, 1 heaping tbsp. flour, ¼ tsp. salt. Mix well together and pour boiling water over gradually, beating constantly until thickness required. One tsp. vanilla may be added.

Successful Living

Divorce Looked Upon as Being Merciful Way Out

DEAR DORIS — It has been eight years since my marriage was dissolved — a marriage which should never have taken place because, initially, I got the ring back three times.

I am anxious to remarry as I feel that I would be a good husband and father. However, as soon as a nice girl of my age finds out about my divorce I am dropped. Some of these girls have on occasion kept company with married men. I joined two marriage clubs, with no success. What is the solution? — REJECTED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR REJECTED — Is it the divorce that stops them? We Canadians are still prone to frown on divorce — especially young people who have not been up against the heartbreak of an unhappy marriage. For those who have lived through it, or who have seen a dear one take it, divorce is more likely to be seen as a merciful way out.

Never say die. Your feelings of failure may have something to do with it. How about taking a new look at things and cultivating a cheery optimism?

• • •

DEAR DORIS — My daughter, 18, wishes to have a large wedding, despite the fact that she is expecting. Both my other daughters received large weddings.

I do not think that she should have a large wedding; but rather, a small one. Anyway, my husband and I do not have the money to give one.

When I try to reason with her she merely says that she feels left out because her sisters received what she will not. She doesn't care about her present condition, and I doubt whether she would be ashamed to walk down the aisle of a church in a maternity gown.

How can I make my daughter understand? — ROBERTA.

DEAR ROBERTA — Her I-don't-care pose probably covers a panicking heart. And she simply cannot realize that a splash now will create miserable, lasting ripples in the life of her unborn babe.

A small wedding is certainly indicated.

• • •

Confidential to BASHFUL — A pick-up is when a boy begins to talk to a girl on the street when he has not been introduced to her, and she permits him to do so. In your case, I'd guess that the boys in the car, whom you knew, introduced you to the driver. This makes it O.K.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I have a guidance assignment to write on Child Psychology. I need to know what education is required to be a child psychologist, what pay you would expect, work involved, other benefits, etc.

I would appreciate any help you can give. — GRADE EIGHTER.

• • •

DEAR GRADE EIGHTER — Do you suppose it's good psychology for me to write your essay for you?

I will say this: Child psychology is becoming more and more important as we come to understand more about the influences which mean most in growing mentally healthy children.

Psychologists are an essential part of the Child Care team, working with psychiatrists, social workers, nurses, teachers, in estimating individual mental capacities and finding the answers to emotional and mental blocks of many kinds.

Some sources of information about this work are: your nearest library, a child care organization, and a psychologist.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I am very good at sewing and am wondering about taking up dressmaking as a career. Is there a need for people to do this kind of work? How do you train for it? — A STITCH IN TIME.

• • •

DEAR STITCH — Skilled dressmakers are still in some demand, either working from home or in their own shops. They are used extensively by clothing and departmental stores to do alterations, as well.

I am sending you my leaflet on Dressmaking, which describes the work in more detail. (Available to anyone sending in ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

• • •

DEAR DORIS — My girl friend, 16, loves me very much, but she hates her mother, and so she goes out with this other boy who is 24 just for spite, as her mother hates him.

Do you think I should try and find another girl or stay with this one, as she only goes with this boy once a week, and is with me all the other nights? — TROUBLED.

• • •

DEAR TROUBLED — Now I've heard everything. Who's fooling whom? A young girl who goes out with a grown man just to spite her mother doesn't love anybody. And she's heading right for trouble. Has it occurred to you she enjoys his company? If you take her out any more, do it with your eyes open.

• • •

Confidential to ENGAGED — Enuresis may be related to a physical weakness or to some psychological situation which occurred in your early childhood. Since, with your doctor's help, you are improving in this regard, it is not something which should make you "wipe all thought of marriage" from your mind.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I am 16 and am engaged to a 23-year-old boy. He is extremely jealous. If I talk to any boy he gets mad. Is there any reason why he should get so mad? — WONDERING.

• • •

DEAR WONDERING — If you want to marry a jailer, here's your chance. True devotion never includes such unreasonable jealousy.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I hope you will forgive me for using your Christian name, but I felt to put "Miss Clark" would be so cold and formal in response to your kind and informative letter. I realize you gave much thought to helping me in my dilemma.

Your help has cleared my mental horizon. When a person is in another city and country one knows nothing about such resources and it is distressing, to an elderly person especially. — GRATEFUL.

• • •

DEAR GRATEFUL — You are welcome. I trust you will get the service you need. And why not call me "Doris"? We're friends, aren't we?

• • •

(Ask Doris, a Canadian social worker, about what's troubling you. And remember to enclose a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Mother of Year Gets Welcome In Commons

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — An Indian mother of 12 children met Prime Minister Pearson Tuesday and later got a desk-to-desk hug from all the House of Commons.

Mrs. Mildred Gottfriedsen of Kamloops, B.C., named Canadian Mother of the Year in a national competition earlier this month, said after MPs applauded her in the House: "This is an honor not only for me, but for all my people as well."

The 45-year-old Indian woman won her title after a Kamloops newspaper, The Sentinel, applied her efforts in the fight against Indian prejudice.

A firm supporter of full integration of Indians into community life, she also has found time to raise her own 13 children, one adopted child and 20 foster children. She is a member of the Shuswap tribe and helped her husband, Gus, run a ranch.

NEED EDUCATION

In an interview Tuesday she said that higher education is the biggest need of Canadian Indians.

She spent five minutes chatting with Mr. Pearson in his office and presented him with a pair of moccasins which she made herself.

"We talked about sports—baseball and hockey—and of course about Bobby Orr of the Toronto Maple Leafs, we got along just fine."

After visiting the prime minister, she went to the visitors' gallery overlooking the House of Commons.

Other appointments during Mrs. Gottfriedsen's busy day, included lunch with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and his wife and an interview with Northern Affairs Minister Laing.

U.C.W. Meeting

CANNIFTON EVENING UNIT

The April meeting of the Canniston U.C.W. Evening Unit opened by singing a hymn. There were 12 members present and president Alice Day conducted the general business.

Joy Putman read a letter from the teacher in Trinidad, who had received the Sunday School papers. She thanked the group and asked them to keep sending the literature.

Alice Day read an invitation from the Afternoon Unit to attend their open meeting on Thursday, May 7th.

The worship service was conducted by Beverly Reid, Gertrude Bowers, Mildred McPherson and Mary Thornton. They chose as their theme "Standards of Church Members".

Rosemary Packman gave an interesting talk on Christian homes. She said the regulations of a Christian home were given by God and the principles were the same for modern as well as ancient time and applied to every class of people. Each home should start with three people, a man, a woman and Christ. The husband should be the head of the home even as Christ is head of the church. Mildred McPherson thanked Mrs. Packman.

Beverly Reid read a short poem and Mildred McPherson closed with prayer. The members enjoyed a social hour.

Home and School News

On Monday evening the Hillcrest H. S. Association held a successful euchre in the school auditorium. Those winning prizes were: ladies' high, T. MacGregor; 2nd, Nora Lanning; low, Barbara Crain.

Men's high (playing as men) Mildred Hancock, Betty Parks; low, Annie Thompson.

Lone hand prize was won by Mrs. McCoy. A fancy cake, donated by Margaret Dryden, became the prize of Ruby Stapley. Refreshments were served by the executive.

Splinter Group Of Nurses Asks Better Pay

TORONTO (CP)—A splinter group of nurses seeking better pay and working conditions said Wednesday it will seek reorganization of the 23,000-member Registered Nurses Association of Ontario.

Spokesman for the group—the Committee for the Advancement of Professional Nurses—said six resolutions aimed at making the association "more representative and democratic" will be tabled at the association's annual meeting today.

CAPN spokesman Mrs. Ruth L. LeRoux said the group will set up a "campaign headquarters" and try to approach all 3,000 nurses expected to attend the convention.

The group—financed by hundreds of nurses across Ontario —charges that the association is controlled by supervisory nurses who tend to view grievances from the management position.

Scholarships Provided by Art Exhibit

On May 2nd, at St. Michael's Auditorium, the University Women's Club of Belleville and District will present, for the nineteenth consecutive year, an exhibition of Manly Macdonald paintings at the annual Spring Fair.

Mr. Macdonald first displayed his paintings at this event in 1945, and each year he has donated a painting as a draw prize. Proceeds from this generous donation have always been used to provide scholarships for city and district high school graduates who plan to enter university in the fall.

NEW SCHOLARSHIP

Originally one $50 scholarship was awarded, and then, as the exhibit became more widely known, the value and number of awards each year was gradually increased until, last year three $300 scholarships were presented. This year the club plans to present three $300 scholarships and one $200 scholarship. The latter will be named The Ontario Intelligencer Scholarship in appreciation of the gift of $200 from The Ontario Intelligencer Limited to the Scholarship fund.

Mr. Macdonald, who was born in Point Anne and lives there several months of the year, has portrayed many local scenes on his canvases. He is a graduate of the Allerdale Art School, Boston, of the Boston Museum School of Fine Arts and of the Ontario College of Art. He is an associate of the Royal Canadian Academy and of the Ontario Society of Artists. Several of his paintings hang in the National Gallery in Ottawa.

Mr. Macdonald, accompanied by Mrs. Macdonald, who is also an artist of note, will be present at the Fair to discuss paintings with the visitors.

In conjunction with the exhibit there will be a tea and bake sale.

His Dream of the Sea Came True!

By ED WALTERS

HALIFAX (CP)—Niels Jannasch was eight years old when he decided that, more than anything, he wanted to go to sea in a sailing ship.

The Second World War intervened and service as a sub-lieutenant in the German navy delayed the realization of his dream.

But realize it he did, and today, at 39, he is never very far from the taste of salt water.

Mr. Jannasch lives with his wife and four children beside the sea at French Village, 23 miles south of Halifax. He is director of the Maritime Museum here and sails a 25-foot double-ended Norwegian sloop.

The sort of contentment he enjoys today has been matched on only a few occasions in the past.

His father, a Moravian missionary who spent most of his life in Labrador, used to take him on walks around the docks at Hamburg. It was there that young Niels began his romance with the sea.

When the war began he joined the navy and was assigned to armed German trawlers in the North Sea. He later was stationed in Norway as a wireless officer. In 1944 he spent three happy days aboard a small Finnish sailing coaster that visited German-occupied Norway.

UNDER ARREST

When he returned to his base near Trondheim he was arrested for being absent without leave. It was just after the attempt on Hitler's life by a group of dissatisfied generals and the German high command was cracking down on all misdemeanors. But an understanding commanding officer agreed to forget the incident.

A couple of years after the war found Jannasch in a German coaster, The Viking, a Finnish four-masted barque, was lying in Antwerp. Mr. Jannasch feigned sickness as an excuse to get off the German vessel and signed on Viking, but she didn't sail.

The owners, however, transferred Viking's crew to Port Talbot, Wales, where Passat, another four - masted barque, was preparing to sail for Australia in ballast.

Niels Jannasch signed on as a carpenter. He didn't, particularly like being a ship's carpenter and, in fact, had little carpentering to do. But he was what he wanted to be—a sailor drinking the isolated contentment found aboard a sailing ship left over from another age.

HAD NO RADIO

The voyage was one of the high points of his life. There were only 32 men in the crew taking the 3,000 ton ship to Australia. He says he felt as much at home on the royal yards 170 feet above deck as if he had been there all his life.

While in Australia he spent some time hitch-hiking around the country with a Welshman who had served during the war on a motor torpedo boat that had exchanged shots with Jannasch's armed trawler.

The homeward voyage took 110 days—with no radio and no engine — but no one missed them.

Mr. Jannasch said goodbye to Passat. There followed a series of voyages in Swedish tankers and cargo ships, mainly to the Far East. Then someone wrote to tell him Passat was being outfitted as a combination freight and school ship by private Swiss interests.

"Don't go back," the captain of the Swedish cargo ship told him. "They're never the same when they have been converted to training ships."

But Mr. Jannasch was paid off in San Francisco and headed for Hamburg. On the way he got his first sight of Nova Scotia when he stopped here to visit relatives.

FELL IN LOVE

He says he fell in love with Nova Scotia—"I guess I decided unconsciously to settle here when I saw the sun rise out of a purple mist above Yarmouth from the deck of the old Boston-Yarmouth ferry."

He got back to Hamburg and signed on Passat as bosnwain.

FORMER NAVAL OFFICER — Neils Jannasch, 39, director of the Maritime Museum in Halifax, was eight when he decided he wanted to go to sea in a sailing ship more than anything else. The Second World War intervened and service in the German Navy delayed the realization of his dream. After the war he sailed to Australia and South America. He came to Nova Scotia in 1953 and now sails a 25-foot double-ended Norwegian sloop. (CP Photo)

She sailed for South America with a crew of 92, mostly cadets. An engine had been installed and the sails were unfurled only when the wireless operator learned another ship was nearby.

"It was disgusting," he says. He retired to his cabin, unwilling to take part in the sham.

Upon Passat's return to Germany, he married. With his wife he came to Nova Scotia in 1953. A variety of jobs followed until, in 1959, he became museum director.

PLEDGES MONEY

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP) — The Kinsmen club of Dauphin has pledged $10,000 for the construction of an auditorium for a proposed school for handicapped children. The school will have two classrooms, office facilities and rest rooms as well.

MINTO — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Palmer of Peterborough spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ern Broadworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Keller and family of Belleville were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Keller.

Mrs. Edith Edwards and Janice of Stirling spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Tanner.

Mrs. Mac Sine and Mrs. Florence Sine of Belleville were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Jackson on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Bell of Baltimore, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Diamond of Campbellford and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wright of Stirling were Sunday guests at the same home.

BAPTISM

The infant daughter, Pamela Joy, of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Finch was baptized in St. Thomas' Church at the service Sunday afternoon. Mr. Carman Colden of Springbrook and Mrs. John Myall of Peterborough acted as god-parents. Following service the Colden family was entertained to tea at the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Finch at Allan's Mills.

WILSON CONCRETE PRODUCTS

New cement handling equipment is in use at Wilson Concrete Products now. The old Stephens-Adamson-built bucket elevator has been removed and replaced by a four-inch pipe and a filler system, which accepts delivery from the blower type trucks now used by most cement companies. Reason for the change is that cement companies began January 1st to include delivery in quoted prices. With the change, it is no longer profitable for Wilson's to send their trucks to pick up required cement. The blower-equipped trucks can blow their loads to the top of a 60-foot silo in about fifty minutes, using 15 pounds of air pressure. The silo at Wilson's holds about three truckloads.

A filter above the silo cleans the air before it is exhausted, and the blower delivery, according to Wilson's, is cleaner than the bucket elevator. Dust used to be a problem because the firm uses a special grind of cement, much finer than average, for precast products.

Also new at Wilson's is an automatic cement batcher, which dumps a predetermined weight of cement into the mixer at the push of a button. The machine, able to dispense up to 500 pounds of cement at a time, is fast and more accurate than the one it replaces.

The Model-Makers
Avon Makes Own Designs

By ANDY TURNBULL

"Model making isn't just a job you can learn — if you can do it, there's no other job for you". So says model - maker Ronald Vesterveide. His father, Walter, also a model - maker, agrees. Both work for Avon Jewellery Ltd., in Belleville, making the originals for Avon's line of costume jewellery. Belleen there are unique, because Avon is the only costume jewellery firm in Canada employing full - time model makers to produce original designs. Other Canadian costume jewellery firms use copies of designs made or more expensive Canadian jewellery.

Walter Vesterveide was a dental technician for 35 years in Holland, and for six months in Quebec province after he came to Canada. He started at Avon Jewellery in 1951 as foreman of the soldering line. His experience as a dental technician soon led him to model-making and within six years he was a fully qualified model maker. He has since added some dental techniques his model - making job, to improve efficiency.

FAT FOLLOWS

Ronald Vesterveide, 37 now, went out to see the world, when he left school and worked at a wide variety of jobs around Canada. He had learned the rudiments of model-making, however, in his father's home shop and he decided, within a few years, that there was no other job for him. He has been at Avon four years, and a qualified model - maker for the past year. Married for the past two-and-a-half years to the former Gail Demille of Halloway, he has settled on model - making as his life's work.

Most Avon designs start out as an idea in the mind of Joel Mazer, vice-president of the company and the firm's head designer. He makes a two-dimensional drawing which he sends to one of the model-makers.

NEED ARTIST'S EYE

It takes the eye of an artist, Mr. Mazer says, to make the three dimensional model from a two dimensional drawing. Jewellery must look right from the side as well as from the front, and any single drawing could be interpreted in several ways, most of them wrong. It is the artistic ability, mainly that separates the model-maker from a dental technician.

First step in making the model is to cut the rough shape from pure tin, with a jeweller's saw. Sometimes, when the pattern is unusually complex, it is cut in two or more parts and soldered together. Rough forming is with a rotary file bit in an electric drill, but all the delicate work is done by hand. Files, and needle the model-makers make themselves, are the most important tools. Rough layout on a model normally takes about one day, finishing takes another two or three days. The model-makers do some of the final polish work themselves, using a rubber disk with grit embedded in it on an electric drill, or with a piece of polished tin. The firm's polishing department puts a fluid polish on the models before the molds are made.

HAVE PROBLEMS

Molds at Avon are made of hard rubber, vulcanized under high pressure, and the pressure can lead to trouble for the model-makers. Tin is a very soft metal, ductile and easy to work, but it won't always hold detail under the pressures, (up to 25 tons), used in making molds. For some work therefore, the model-makers must make their models of brass or bronze. These metals are much harder than tin, and consequently harder to work. A bronze model may take a week to make, and may leave the model-maker with sore hands for another week.

The fact that the models are for eventual mass production leads to other problems. Individual pieces must be designed and made in shapes easy to cast, and the castings must be easy to assemble so the relatively unskilled production line workers can handle them economically. The model-maker must interpret each design to satisfy both the designer and the production manager.

HOMEWORK TOO

But the challenge of the job is one of the more desirable features of the Vandervelde's and they increase it by doing some designing on their own. Some of their designs are among Avon's top selling lines. And as though working eight hours a day at making models were not enough, father and son both have modelling equipment at home, which they use to make custom jewellery for their respective wives. Walter Vandervelde also paints landscapes as a hobby, and Ronald models clay.

The fast turnover of new designs in the modern world has created a shortage of model-makers throughout the world and especially in Canada, but that's a problem for the firms that employ them. For model-makers, like Walter Vesterveldes and his son Ronald, that's just one more advantage of the job.

E. J. Benson, parliamentary secretary to the finance minister, said that point will be raised by Canada at the GATT international tariff conference opening in Geneva next week.

Deseronto Rate up 46 Mills, Council Flays School Board As Financially Irresponsible

DESERONTO — Figures released by the town council after its short budgetary session show tax increases of 46.25 mills. The industrial and commercial rate is 54 mills, the farm and residential rate 180.5 mills.

In presenting the town budget for approval Mayor Gerald Lott stated that "a great deal of time and consideration was spent in effort to keep the budget down."

It is understood that the mayor was referring to the town's attempt to reduce the size of the school budget which is exceptionally large this year.

The mayor's remarks were followed by the presentation of a special resolution castigating the School Board for "inditference to the will of the people."

For some time the Town Council and the School Board have been at odds concerning the best means of procuring education for the students of this town.

In an earlier meeting of the council the budget for the schools was returned to the Board as being unacceptable. At that time the council declared the school budget presents "a crippling blow to the finances of the town."

Although the town fathers appealed to the Department of Education in Toronto in the hope that the budget might be reduced, it was returned to the figures remain as originally presented by the board.

The board hopes to gain some release from the size of the budget caused them to accept a deficit approval, under exigency of law and so that the town may remain solvent."

PASS RESOLUTION

A six point resolution was tendered to the trustees. Declaring the Board of Education to be "financially irresponsible" the document went on to pin deficits at the feet of the board and accuse it of using "local politics with lamentable results."

The resolution was passed unanimously and reads as follows:

"After consultation with the Department of Municipal Affairs and the Department of Education the Deseronto town council reports as follows:

"1—That a financially irresponsible Board of Education has incurred deficits now amounting to $30,907.71.

"2—That the board, by continuing operation of the Deseronto High School (which was condemned by the Department of Education for high school instruction in 1956) paid out teachers' and other salaries and maintenance costs to no useful purpose.

"3—That the board incurred legal expenses in an unsuccessful attempt to prevent a plebiscite on the high school question causing the town to legally and successfully defend its right to such action.

"That the board ignored the wishes so decided by the plebiscite) by continuing operation of the Deseronto High School and buying education, thus losing the right to proportional High School grants.

"5—That members of board ignored the recommendations of the Department of Education, delayed and worked against the best interest of the students, the taxpayers and the town of Deseronto.

"6—Instead of seeking the best education facilities available on the best terms, members of the board played local politics with immediate results as indicated by their 1964 High School budget.

"This council deplores the board members' indifference to the will of the people and the illogical decisions made in regards to education and passes the high school budgets without approval, under the exigency of law and so that the town may remain solvent."

GIVE EXPLANATIONS

Under the public school, increases are due generally to salary increases for teachers.

Only rate increase has been granted to an industry in 1963 while the increase in general rate has been laid to an lingering costs for water and sewers and provisions for a 1963 deficit of $1,612.00.

The greater explanation for increases was reserved for the controversial High School situation.

School Board Head Answers Council Critics

DESERONTO — In a special interview the chairman of the Deseronto School Board has charged the town council with an attempt to cover up their own shortcomings by blaming the school board for this town's 39 percent rise in taxes.

Mr. John Neal, chairman of the board, was answering the charges levied in a resolution of council last week. In that resolution the board was declared to be "financially irresponsible" and accused of being "indifferent to the will of the people."

"Our books have been, and always are, open to the view of the public," stated Mr. Neal. "Since the town auditor assisted in the drawing up of the school budget and since the budget appears to be approved by the Department of Education, it is very difficult to see how financial irresponsibility is involved.

"We might remind the public," said Mr. Neal, "that those who were in favor of joining the Napanee District High School Area, and this included the town council, published and had delivered to the local householders information assuring the people that educational costs would be little more than $17,000.

..."In the light of the actual costs of education this is nothing more than a dream figure. We might better accuse these people of living in cloud cuckoo than admit to being financially irresponsible.

NOT DEFICITS

In answering charges that the board has accrued deficits of $27,000, the chairman said that the sum would have been budgeted accurately in 1965, but that the school boards involved requested the money in advance.

"Under new regulations," said Mr. Neal, "this is allowable. The town council collected the sum for this year. Both the tax thousand and seven-hundredths of a mill declared to be deficits are legitimate expenditures.

"This was explained to the town council at the special meeting this board held with them to discuss the budget.

"At that time the auditor, Mr. Lewers pointed out that these were legitimate expenditures and recommended that the town remove the impression that they were deficits from its report," said Mr. Neal.

"Since the town was barred from that meeting by the Reeve there would be no way for the people to know what took place.

"But at that meeting the town council indicated that it understood these figures were not deficits and that the 1965 mill rate would be reduced by 25 to 30 mills in 1965 as a result of the sum being paid in advance."

Mr. Neal went on to indicate that it was Mr. Frosts of the Napanee District High School District Area who had "condemned" the Local High School in 1962.

In a conversation with Mr. Stevenson, secretary of the School Board for Deseronto, it was revealed that Mr. Frost's condemnation was only verbal and that the local Board had never received a written report on this subject from the Inspector.

It was also pointed out that subsequent to the complaint by Mr. Frosts work had been done to remove the cause for criticism. Mr. Neal indicated that no further criticism had been received from that time, privately or written.

"With regard to the Board incurring legal expense in an attempt to prevent a plebiscite Mr. Neal refer to the ruling in Mr. Justice Fraser's report that indicated that the plebiscite is not binding on anyone, but is simply an attempt to obtain an expression of opinion. Mr. Neal indicated that the report from the bench also stated that "if the result of the plebiscite were favorable to the municipality . . . the result might well be given the heads of the School Board members in an attempt to coerce them into accepting the electors' expression of opinion."

"In my opinion this is exactly what happened," said Mr. Neal.

With respect to the loss of "proportional High School grants" by buying education Board chairman declared emphatically that "we lose nothing through buying."

"In fact," he said, "we save money since the taxpayer is not charged to find the additional $6,500 we would have to in Deseronto's share of the Napanee High School debenture debt."

Deseronto Ratepayers' Body Seeks Legal Advice Aimed At Probe of Town Affairs

DESERONTO—The operation of the Town of Deseronto came in for heavy criticism at Monday night's meeting of the local Ratepayers' Association, when a resolution was passed unanimously asking that the executive of the Association seek legal advice to ascertain the means and method of proceeding with a full investigation into the financial affairs and the administration of both Town Council and Board of Education."

Making his resolution before a crowded Town Hall of enthusiastic Ratepayers, Mr. Maurice Detlor, finance chairman of the Board of Education, deplored the attempt by the Town to make the Board a scapegoat.

By his resolution he indicated that the Board is ready to stand investigation of the charges that it is "financially irresponsible" and is prepared to place itself under the jurisdiction of the Municipal Affairs department.

TEXT OF RESOLUTION

The resolution read as follows:

"Due to the financial condition of the municipality as indicated in the striking of rates by the Town Council for 1964 of 180.5 mills and assessment at 184.63 mills, and farm and residential at 160.05 mills.

"And whereas the explanation has been given for this increase;

"And whereas the communication released by the Council to the press and published in the Kingston Whig-Standard on Saturday, April 25, 1964, attempts to place all the blame on the Board of Education for this increase;

"And whereas the numerous meetings and the numerous transactions thereat do not appear to have been within the powers of the Council;

"And whereas the actions in the past year have created considerable dissension and expense;

"And whereas it has been deemed advisable that the affairs of the Municipal Council and the Board of Education should be placed under administration of the Department of Municipal Affairs, and it has been deemed advisable that a full investigation be made into the financial affairs and the administration of both the Town Council and the Board of Education;

"Therefore be is resolved that the Deseronto Ratepayers Association through its president, J. H. McVicker and W. Higgins and the executive members of the executive, be empowered to seek legal advice to ascertain the means and method of proceeding with the matter."

Mr. Detlor and other members of the board had just come from a meeting of their own in order to offer themselves for questioning concerning the controversial school budget for 1965.

DISCUSS BUDGET

Copies of the board's estimates were distributed and placed in the hands of the Ratepayers and discussed point by point.

Chief interest was centred about the relatively high figure of $1,000 for a writing expense on this subject from the Inspector.

It was also pointed out that subsequent to the complaint by Mr. Frosts work had been done to remove the cause for criticism. Mr. Neal indicated that no further criticism had been received from that time, privately or written.

"With regard to the Board incurring legal expense in an attempt to prevent a plebiscite Mr. Neal refer to the ruling in Mr. Justice Fraser's report that indicated that the plebiscite is not binding on anyone, but is simply an attempt to obtain an expression of opinion. Mr. Neal indicated that the report from the bench also stated that "if the result of the plebiscite were favorable to the municipality . . . the result might well be given the heads of the School Board members in an attempt to coerce them into accepting the electors' expression of opinion."

"In my opinion this is exactly what happened," said Mr. Neal.

With respect to the loss of "proportional High School grants" by buying education Board chairman declared emphatically that "we lose nothing through buying."

"In fact," he said, "we save money since the taxpayer is not charged to find the additional $6,500 we would have to in Deseronto's share of the Napanee High School debenture debt."

Minimum

In the north and northwest, Fort William, Port Arthur, Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, Timmins and North Bay also will be included in zone 1.

Zone 2 is complete Goderich, Owen Sound, Orillia and other areas of the province, except for the Lake Ontario horseshoe.

The Rowntree said it was decided to zone the province on the basis of economic conditions because the proportion of employees receiving less than $1 an hour varied considerably in different parts of the province.

Employers in less prosperous areas would need more time to upgrade their wage scales to the full $1-an-hour minimum, he said.

IT TAKES 18 MONTHS

"Through the use of progressive stages of rates in the two zones, we will be able to achieve a general minimum wage of $1 an hour and a comparable minimum for students of $1.25 up hour across the province by Dec. 27, 1965—just 18 months after the initial stages of the program go into effect."

Mr. Rowntree said a survey by his department showed that a general minimum wage of $1.35 an hour would not be feasible. Many small businesses, and perhaps some large ones, would be forced to cut back their operations or move out of the province.

But the minister said a $1.25-an-hour minimum was an objective which the government would strive for in the future.

Asked if there were reasons why farm laborers would not be covered by minimum wages, Mr. Rowntree said the traditional that agricultural workers were excluded from such legislation.

The government had received no serious representations from farm organizations about the law or the program, he said, but he would be happy to consider such suggestions if they were put forth.

AFFECT CONTRACTS

The establishment of minimums throughout the province will affect a few union contracts certainly in the clothing and textile industry, Mr. Rowntree said. These employers would have to increase wages despite the contracts.

The survey made by the labor department showed that about 6.5 per cent of all non-farm wage earners in Ontario earned less than $1 an hour.

This percentage represented 132 000 persons out of a work force of 2,000,000. Of those who earned less than $1 an hour were in the retail trade or the hotel and restaurant business. Other firms employing less than 15 persons.

Mr. Rowntree said groups other than farm laborers who will not be covered by the minimum wage law include registered apprentices, camp counsellors or students employed in certain recreational programs, apartment house janitors living on the premises, real estate and insurance salesmen, and outside salesmen who determine their own hours, professional persons and teachers' college students.

Pinsetters, caddies, delivery boys and messengers under the age of 18 will be allowed a rate of 50 cents an hour in zone 2 and 60 cents in zone 1. Special rates also will apply to a few other categories, such as for "learners."

Mr. Diefenbaker retorted that Mr. Martin was "shaky" and pompous bluff at that."

New Democratic Leader Douglas Fisher asked whether he is urging on the UN the need to protect Turkish Cypriots, now in the province of the United Nations force in Cyprus from receiving deprived of Turkish - Cypriots of any outside aid."

STAY NEUTRAL

Mr. Martin said the Canadian government, while maintaining its neutral position, has made representations "along the lines suggested" by Mr. Douglas.

Mr. Diefenbaker renewed his urgings that the Canadian government seek stronger powers for the UN force in Cyprus, where some 1,100 Canadian troops are serving.

Mr. Martin said he met UN Secretary - General U Thant here Thursday and expressed the view that the UN force was being placed in a very difficult position. He said he will make a statement by the UN commander in Cyprus, Lt.-Gen. Gyani, expressing confidence that peaceful conditions can be restored.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Commons has been getting "uncertain reports" from Mr. Martin and asked for better and more complete information.

Mr. Martin replied "it is not fair to our soldiers, the United Nations and the Canadian people to say that I have given uncertain reports."

"I have given reports that were exact and precise."

Making Bank Deposits Regular Chore for Rusty

Rusty's banking technique is simple. He is given the day's receipts from Mr. Bezubiak's glass works in downtown Vancouver, is driven to a neighborhood bank and let out of the truck.

Clutching the money securely between sharp teeth, Rusty bounds to the bank door, is let inside and trots to the nearest teller. The dog hasn't missed a deposit yet, his owner says.

"People can hardly believe their eyes when they see him. His biggest deposit so far was about $750 and, if there's a lineup at the cage he waits his turn."

Rusty came to Don and Margaret Bezubiak as a stray and Mrs. Bezubiak took him in. He is also a pet of their daughters, Donna, 18, and Judy, 15. ...

"He meets them at the door after school and carries their books or anything else they have into the home," says Mrs. Bezubiak.

The family allows have to trust him to carry things, she says. He just started on his newest own.

Now, says Mr. Bezubiak, he won't quit.

Rumors of mutiny are rumblings in the armed forces because the government has not yet announced whether a pay will be allowed those being compulsorily retired by integration.

500 TO LOSE JOBS

The government has announced that 500 RCAF officers, some of them on flying duty, are being retired.

There are already a few officers who are said to be getting $600 hours' flying experience, reportedly looking for civilian jobs in the meantime.

One officer said bitterly: "I'm not afraid to die, but I'm civvy street! I can't do anything but fly—it has been my whole life. And I can't even find out how much the government will pay me when it kicks me out."

There is also a good deal of bitterness that the government hasn't publicly thanked men being retired for long years of service.

"We're being looked on as numbers, not human beings," one officer said. "Morale is below shot to hell. When morale goes, our effectiveness goes with it."

Pet Projects of Students Set up in 'Display Night'

It was "display night" last night at the Moira Secondary School as students and teachers at the east end school were hosts to parents and other visitors.

Occupational studies at the school were demonstrated and displays throughout the school marked the progress of academic students.

Pet projects of many students were set up in special displays, while to add variety a gymnasium program offered a physical education display, fashion show by the home economics students, and a folk dancing demonstration.

School principal James Musgrove termed the night a success although inclement weather possibly kept attendance below last year's figure.

There were demonstrations of woodworking shop equipment, auto repair techniques and metal working equipment. Girls' occupational groups demonstrated sewing, restaurant services and other studies.

Future stenographers and office workers demonstrated typing and business machine operation.

But the academic students also got into the demonstration act with displays of student work, posters and projects, the "Improvement of Reading." There was a demonstration on continuous display of arts and crafts.

Even the language departments got in on the act. There was display of the French dictation methods, while the Latin students had a display of poster and presented a skit "Roman Dress."

The science department saw exhibits on physics, biology and agriculture, while the school army cadets staged a demonstration of wireless signalling.

Special duties in connection with the evening's program were assumed by the school prefects, cadets and hyettes.

To conclude the evening, coffee and cookies were served in the school cafeteria.

FUTURE MECHANICS — Auto mechanics is a trade of growing importance and these two auto shop students at Moira Secondary School are laying the correct groundwork. Seen checking a motor with modern electronic equipment are Steve McLennan and Dan Keene.

OTTAWA (CP)—A working session for conservatively-minded intellectuals will be held in September on the campus of the University of New Brunswick at Fredericton.

The atmosphere, Conservative party planners hope, will be conducive to laying down the broad outlines of Conservative philosophy to be incorporated later in an election platform.

Dalton K. Camp, once a student Liberal club member at the University of New Brunswick and now president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, announced that the Conservatives so-called thinkers conference is to be held Sept. 9-12.

200 TO ATTEND

About 300 participants will be invited, including 11 from the Conservative party caucus here, and some delegates who have not been formally identified with the party in the past. The majority, however, will be committed Conservatives.

They will discuss and pool their opinions in public sessions on these topics:

—Prospects for Canadian unity.

—The role of the individual in a changing society.

—The role of governments in developing the national economy.

—External relations, with emphasis on the future of the Commonwealth.

"I feel we have to develop a trained and informed people," Mr. Camp told a press conference. "This will be a start."

It will be known as the national conference on Canadian goals, he said.

The purpose is to take a long-range view of the country's problems and to give conservatively-inclined intellectuals a opportunity to express their views.

The conference on goals will not in itself write an election platform, but lay the basis for policy decisions which have to be taken whenever an election is called.

It is not possible to expect a party resolutions committee to formulate a carefully-thought out national policy under the pressure of an election campaign or in preparation for general meetings of the party every year, Mr. Camp said.

The Conservatives last held a similar meeting in Port Hope, Ont., in 1942. The Liberals held a somewhat similar meeting in Port Hope in 1932 and at Kingston in 1950.

Mr. Camp said the Conservative meeting will be unlike the Liberals' Kingston conference. However, the Conservative sessions will be open to the press —although there may be some late evening private "bull sessions."

Communist Campaign Backers Said Opposed to Seminars

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Persons who "back the Communist campaign" were blamed by an official of the Christian Action Movement Wednesday night for opposition to their attempts to hold seminars at various points in Canada.

Eric D. Butler challenged the mayor of Moncton to a public debate on the movement.

Mayor Leonard C. Jones Jr., who earlier this week said "we neither need nor want persons of this kind in Moncton," indicated he would ignore the invitation to debate the background of the group formed in 1961.

It was organized by Ron Gostick, editor and publisher of a pamphlet entitled the Canadian Intelligence Service that has gone on record as being against Brotherhood Week as the brainchild of organized Jewry and has described the United Nations as evil and subversive. The pamphlet is published at Flesherton, Ont.

IS NO COMPLAINT

Butler, asked to comment on Monday night when the mayor led a walkout of about 20 persons from the first seminar, said he "held no bitterness or complaint."

He have struck opposition across Canada. We were not surprised. We believe the people responsible back the Communist campaign."

A final seminar was held in the Moncton area Wednesday night, Butler said, but he declined to disclose the location.

While Mayor Jones led the walkout at Monday night's meeting and rejected an invitation to speak "for not more than 10 minutes" at the opening of Wednesday's session, officials of the University of Moncton cancelled a scheduled seminar there, claiming a lack of classroom space.

The rabbi of a Jewish congregation thanked Mayor Jones for his stand in an open letter. The letter claimed the group was "spreading hate and discrimination in general and against our people in particular."

DIVIDEND INCREASED

Hayes Steel Products Ltd. has increased its annual dividend rate to 60 cents a share from 50 cents, W. F. Thompson, vice-president, said in Toronto Wednesday. Earnings from operations reached a record high in March, 1964, he said. The company marketed autopotive parts with plants in Thorold and St. Catharines.

URGE TRADE WITH REDS

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce called on the federal government Wednesday to re-evaluate its export control system and consider restrictions on trade with Iron Curtain countries. About 90 per cent of the delegates to the annual meeting of the business association expressed approval on a voice vote. The policy would not apply to Communist China, Cuba, North Viet Nam or North Korea.

Traffic Accidents Canada's No 1 Social Problem Claims Speaker at Safety Rally

LONDON (CP)—Traffic accidents are Canada's No. 1 social problem, John Atkinson, president of the Canadian Highway Safety Council, told the 15th annual Ontario Traffic Conference here Wednesday.

Guest speaker at the three-day conference, Mr. Atkinson called for a revision in the attitude of Canadian drivers to make them greater respect for life. He said:

"Death passes us by on the highways with a shrug and we accept it as a way of life. How do we change the attitude of recognition that this is a problem that must be solved?"

He suggested Canadians might be shocked into recognition of the problem if announcements were posted: "Wanted Killers armed with 2,000 horsepower, possibly lurking in this hotel, their crime—killing 4,200 people in Canada last year and injuring many more."

Mr. Atkinson said the known paid costs for accidents in Canada during 1963 was almost $400,000,000 and said that for every dollar of known cost there is a hidden cost of 18 of unknown costs covering such things as lost wages, increased vehicle depreciation and the fact that 10 per cent of all hospital beds and associated services are required for accident victims.

Mr. Atkinson said mechanical defects cause perhaps 15 per cent of accidents, but the remaining 85 per cent are caused by the man behind the wheel."

The conference adopted a number of resolutions to be presented to the provincial minister of transport later this year.

One calls for "eventual" compulsory inspection of all motor vehicles. Delegates also voted to recommend that police officers be given authority to arrest, without warrant, speeding drivers who refuse to produce their licence or fail to identify themselves.

The minister also will be asked to review for simplification, the speed limit sections of the Highway Traffic Act.

Sea Experiment to Have Profound Impact on NATO

By RAYMOND MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Early in June, sailors from a number of Atlantic treaty countries will begin an experiment in community relations that could have a profound influence on the future of the North Atlantic alliance.

The sailors, drawn from Britain, Italy, West Germany, The Netherlands, Greece, Turkey and the U.S., will be put aboard the U.S. destroyer Biddle, to determine whether a NATO multinational, mixed-manned nuclear force is workable.

This will be the first experimental stage of a proposal that first was introduced by the U.S. almost four years ago and which was re-emphasized by the late president John F. Kennedy during his Ottawa visit in May, 1961.

The object of the proposal was the use of shipboard life to quieten grumblings within the alliance. Europe had no voice in the American nuclear deterrent force which, in effect, was its protection against the Reds.

Through the years the U.S. tended to back away from discussion of a multi-national nuclear force would be itself head of European dissatisfaction.

In fact, every time NATO headed towards a crisis in unity, the U.S. seemed to attempt to steer NATO attention elsewhere. Typical was the offer of 23 nuclear ships, armed with Polaris missiles, patrolling the seas as an important part of the entire strategic defence against the Soviet Union.

But the threat of weakening in NATO unity did not disappear. European leaders demanded a major role in the control of Western nuclear power, even to withdrawn its naval affiliation from the NATO military command.

Britain withdrawal is not by itself important, for the move was anticipated and in fact France already has withdrawn the ships and now only completes the move by removing her naval officer from NATO headquarters.

But the European authorities, while playing down the public image of NATO disinterestion, privately express considerable concern over the French move. What was needed, they said, is some positive action to demonstrate NATO cohesion.

French President de Gaulle may therefore have given the multi - national nuclear force concept a boost. The U.S. will be pressing hard to make the June experiment work, not so much because of the military importance of the nuclear force concept but because of the need to demonstrate NATO unity.

The sailors, drawn from varying environments, will train with a conventional type of guided missile. This has become necessary as a substitute for the Polaris missiles. Polaris missiles proposed for the 25-ship force for the simple reason that there is no way to surface ship equipped with Polaris missiles.

Once the sailors show they can work and live together and once a portion of the NATO allies agree to participate in a surface ship force, the U.S. Britain will be relatively simple task to build the ships and equip them with Polaris weapons.

Requests More Canadian History Be Taught

TORONTO (CP)—Many problems facing Canada could be solved if all Canadians understood if Canadians had a better sense of their history, Thomas Wells (PC—Scarborough North) said Wednesday.

He complained in the legislature that Ontario secondary schools have no course devoted entirely to Canadian history. In fact, many teachers seemed to think Canadian history dull.

In Grade 10, the history course encompassed Canada, Britain and the United States, with approximately one-third of the time being devoted to each.

"How can we have an adequate understanding of Canadian history when we have to study the history of three nations in about four periods a week?" he asked.

Grade 12 Canadian history was part of a course which included the history of the world from the year 1500, the Conservative member said.

Mr. Wells said Grade 13 offers a good optional history course but attracts few students.

He asked Education Minister Davis to take the problem of history teaching under study.

Bills Will Be Amended Before Given to House

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Wishart announced Wednesday that four bills to be introduced in the legislature by Frederick M. Cass, former attorney-general, will be amended before they are dealt with further in the house.

Mr. Wishart did not spell out the amendments he will propose to the legislature's legal affairs committee, although it is expected most changes will deal with powers to be given to civil servants under the bills.

One bill, introduced by Mr. Cass at the same time he brought forward Ontario's so-called "police state" legislation last year, was an act providing for the registration, supervision and control of used car dealers and salesmen.

This bill would create a registrar of used car dealers and salesmen. The registrar would have the power to cancel licences on receipt of complaints about unscrupulous tactics or evidence of shady dealings. He also would have the power to demand to see the books, correspondence, bank accounts and records of any used car dealer.

Other bills to be amended are an act to amend the Collection Agencies Act, an act to amend the Mortgage Brokers Registration Act and an act to amend the Real Estate and Business Brokers Act.

B and B Commission Will Not Extend Investigations to Other Countries Is Report

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism is concerned, above all, with carrying out its investigations in Canada, rather than extending them to other countries with similar problems, it was learned Wednesday night.

Andre Laurendeau, co-president of the commission, said at a press conference the government-appointed body does not plan to send researchers to European or African countries in which two or more languages are spoken.

Mr. Laurendeau, replying to a reporter's question, was commenting on press reports that the commission did plan to extend its studies abroad and on a Toronto newspaper's criticism of such a step.

He said the commission will not be able to give full details of its huge research program for several weeks.

The co - presidents explained the commission intends to take advantage of at least one person who is going abroad to make a study relevant to the questions of bilingualism and biculturalism. The commission will ask Professor Jacques Brazeau of the University of Montreal to make available to it the results of a European study he is to undertake soon, even though the commission itself is not sending him.

Mr. Laurendeau and four other commission members were to hold a hearing today in this southwestern Ontario industrial city. The meeting is one of about 25 the commission plans to hold between now and mid-June.

At the press conference, one reporter said there seems to exist "an English-speaking myth" a conviction that Quebec does not want to achieve a dialogue and that French-Canada refuses to come half way to deal with the issue.

Mr. Laurendeau, emphasizing that he was commenting only on opinions heard so far before the commission sat was not giving a personal opinion, said French-speaking Canadians believe they had come half way already and were a little tired of always claiming what they felt were their real rights.

REGINA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism might make an interim report to the federal government in the near future, Davidson Dunton, co-chairman of the commission, said Wednesday night.

Mr. Dunton told a press conference the commission is interested now in "getting views, not giving them."

"We are just gathering research and information. We are not prepared to draw any conclusion."

Previous reports indicated commission findings would not be made public until formal submissions have been completed, probably next year.

Mr. Dunton and three of the eight commissioners visited Regina during a meet-the-people tour of western Canada. They were scheduled to hold roundtable discussions with Saskatchewan community and organizations leaders today.

The commissioners said western Canadians displayed a sharp interest in the country's bicultural problems and a desire for more information about them.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the bicultural royal commission heard local French-Canadians stress that they like the high pay standards and balmy climate in British Columbia but fear they will lose their ethnic-cultural identity in this 90-per-cent English-speaking province.

The only bulwarks against assimilation into the English-speaking mass are two private bilingual schools financed by a form of double taxation and five Roman Catholic churches served by French-speaking priests.

The French-Canada Federation of B.C., which has a membership of only 460, held a special meeting late Tuesday night for the benefit of five members of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism who attended as observers.

French-Canadians born in the Fraser Valley townships complained that when they converse in French in public, strangers near them tell them to "go back to Quebec" or to "speak white."

French teacher Irene Lefranchise of Cultus Lake said French is taught as a dead foreign language for two years in B.C. public high schools, as an alternative to Latin. French should be taught in the three-day period, she said.

Another participant said French-speaking youngsters are regarded as "quares" by their schoolmates if they show a willingness to preserve their mother tongue.

END SATELLITE TALKS

MONTREAL (CP)—A group of experts from several European countries, Australia, Japan, the United States and Canada wound up a three-day conference on satellite communications here Wednesday. A statement said the meeting was held for the "specific purpose of providing statistics with respect to appropriate traffic both current and forecast for 1968."

Douglas F. Bowie, president and general manager of Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corporation, said further statements might be made by the governments represented when the delegates are able to report and make their recommendations.

Liberal Party Is Pledged To Cut Taxes, Attract Firms

By RON MacDONALD

REGINA (CP)—The Liberal party, if it takes over from the CCF the reins of government in Saskatchewan, is pledged to cut taxes and implement policies to attract more industry to the province.

Liberal Leader Ross Thatcher told the press conference after the April 22 provincial election that his first priority after taking office would be to set up a commission to determine where "fat and waste" could be eliminated in government operations.

The next step likely would be to call a fall legislature session to begin cutting taxes.

On the basis of election night returns last Wednesday, the Liberals unseated the CCF provincial government, but 39,000 ballots still to be counted and recounts in some seats could reverse the Liberal night outcome.

Mr. Thatcher during the election campaign said a Liberal government would retain, with some changes, the province's compulsory hospital and basic medical care insurance plan.

TO INCREASE CREDIT

Farm credit would be greatly increased. Financial aid would be provided to private high schools.

At his post-election press conference the Liberal leader said his party believed in principle that government should not be in competitive business and that compulsion should be used by government only when it was really necessary, usually on a financial standpoint.

Tax cuts proposed include reduction of the five-per-cent retail sales tax to four per cent immediately after taking office and to three per cent in the first four-year term plus exemption of more goods such as school textbooks from the sales tax.

Provincial income tax would be reduced by one per cent a third to bring it in line with that in neighboring provinces; tax-free gasoline would be provided farmers; and the three-cent-an-acre mineral rights tax on farmlands would be eliminated where any minerals were being produced.

JOBS PROMISED

"Almost any steps" will be taken to attract new industry to Saskatchewan, Mr. Thatcher has said. Claiming industry has been shy of Saskatchewan because of the CCF government's socialist aura, he has promised creation of 30,000 jobs in industry and 20,000 jobs in other fields in the next four years.

This would be accomplished by a "business-like" government atmosphere; decreases in mineral royalties, the corporation tax and power and gas rates; loans and possibly tax holidays for industry; elimination of the monopoly position of some Crown corporations such as the Saskatchewan Government Insurance Office, which runs the compulsory provincial auto insurance scheme and the lumber board; and financial assistance to small businesses and companies going into the north.

Elimination of "fat and waste" in government operations would include the firing of civil servants not performing useful functions efficiently.

Farm credit of up to $30,000 at low interest rates, repayable over 30 years, would be made available to young farmers. Mr. Thatcher has said lack of adequate farm credit is preventing young men from getting up their own farms and contributing to the disappearance of the small family farm.

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

A frequent question asked me each year is "What can I claim for my common-law wife?" The Income Tax Act does not have any provision whereby an exemption could be allowed on such a person. Therefore, the answer is definitely no claim.

However this does not mean that the taxpayer derives no benefit at all, where there are children of the union. If the taxpayer has children of his own or of the common-law union law wife would qualify as a full time housekeeper provided she was not employed outside the home.

If she is not employed elsewhere, the taxpayer can claim the equivalent to married status on one child ($1,00 and the fact that he employs a full time housekeeper (common-law wife) to look after the child. He may also claim the same for alimony paid for the applicable child allowance.

Any other children must be claimed in the usual way. Medical or dental expenses paid by the taxpayer on behalf of a common - law wife may not be claimed.

Should the common-law wife have any employment outside the home she would not qualify as a full time housekeeper. The income tax department is quite strict in this case. If the common - law wife worked for only a week or so in the year, she would cease to qualify as a full time housekeeper. Full time means just that.

Children of the common - law wife, where the taxpayer is not the father, presents a somewhat controversial point as to the taxpayer claiming them. I have had a ruling from Ottawa on this, by the time this article appears in the paper.

For personal reptiles pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin for each question you wish answered.

Question: I am living common law. We both work but my common-law wife only earned $800 in 1963. What do I claim for her?

Answer: You have no claim at all. Common-law wives are not recognized as such by the income tax dept.

* * *

Question: I am a common-law wife with one child by my legal husband. I worked before I met the man I am now living with. My legal husband pays me $20 per month by court order. What exemptions can we claim?

Answer: You can claim $1,000 for yourself, $1,000 on the child as equivalent to married status. Your common-law husband has no claim for either you or the child. He would have a single exemption only.

School Program May Soon Lead to Stopping Homework

By G. E. HODENFIELD

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (AP) — Homestead High School is embarked on a program that may someday lead to eliminating homework.

There is a catch, though. It's that still - distant future the school day may run from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

There will be scheduled time for classes, laboratory work, research in depth, individual study, conferences with teachers, library assignments, and extra-curricular activities.

"Once the student leaves school after 5 p.m. he usually would be free from schoolwork responsibilities until 8 a.m. the next day," says Fred Dwight Allen of Stanford University.

"There would be no work hanging over the student's head, and no automatic handicaps for those students who are unable to do their homework for various reasons."

EASIER ON PARENTS

Allen points out this advantage to parents: It would free them from pitting their rusty school knowledge against the new systems now in general use, particularly in mathematics. Any parent who has tried to help his youngster with his homework in the "new math" knows what Allen means.

Allen is co-director of Stanford's "flexible scheduling" project, which he believes to be a necessary first step toward the 8-to-5 school day. Homestead High is one of four west-ern schools pioneering in flexible scheduling.

Instead of the traditional school day of six or seven 55-minute periods, Homestead has 14 30-minute "modules"—educationists' term for a unit of time.

A class period may be one, two, three or four modules long. Deducting time for movement from each period for movement from room to room, the time in class may vary from 25 minutes to one hour and 55 minutes.

CLASSES VARY

Flexible scheduling fits the program to the subject instead of the clock. It permits a 35-minute class for typing practice or foreign language drill, 55 minutes for English, one hour and 25 minutes for physical education, and one hour and 55 minutes for a science lab.

To gain even more freedom of action, Homestead High next fall will move to 21 daily modules of 20 minutes each.

Only a high-speed computer can handle the job of matching up teachers, courses and classrooms for 2,000 students, in sessions ranging from 25 minutes to two hours.

Allen, and Stanford Profs. Robert N. Bush and Robert Oakford spent four years developing the flexible scheduling concept that went into effect last fall here and at Marshall High, Portland, Ore.; Lincoln High, Stockton, Calif., and Virgin Valley High, Mesquite, Nev.

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

PUZZLING PLUMAGE

Birdwatchers are presented with many puzzles. One has to do with birds that take more than twelve months to acquire full, adult plumage. There are several kinds which spend all this class, two of which are among our familiar song birds: the purple finch and the red - winged starling. In their first autumn these young resemble so many others, greatly resembling their mothers and sisters. By the next spring when other young males have changed their costumes to look like their fathers, these few, though compared to sing and breed, still wear suits so like females' that we are definitely confused.

The bird student hardly knows what to think when he sees what he supposes to be two female purple finches tending a brood of nestlings, or an adult female feeding a fledgling cowbird. The confusion is added to when we are told that a number of reliable bird authorities tell us that they have actually seen both adult female purple finches and fledglings sing (Singing females are rare in Birdland.) However, the year old male purple finch is usually a bit more yellowish or greenish yellow than females, especially on the rump, which is a help.

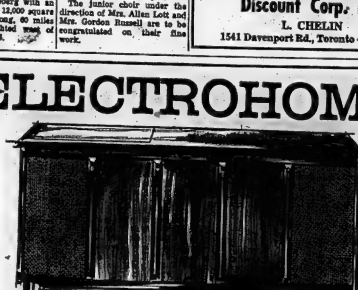
IS NOT PURPLE

When the male purple finch is in his two years of age, seen in full sunlight, he is a very beautiful bird. Our ancestors of a century ago thought of his fairly sweet singing canary.

'Just a Second'

"You don't look like THAT in reverse!"

color as "magenta", but we are likely to call him crimson. If we want to be very exact, we should speak of him as "rose madder", a color found in an artist's paint box. No really purple bird exists. His rump is the brightest part of him, brilli. and rosy red in the sunshine. Unfortunately, seen against the light his beauty is hidden.



His lady love might easily be mistaken for some kind of a small sparrow, but is recognized by the light break over her eye and the extremely heavy, brown streaks on the throat, breast, and underparts. Both have unusually stout bills and deeply notched tails.

ARDENT SINGER

Mr. purple finch is an ardent lover, and a persistent lover. In early spring he may be heard from some tall evergreen, or bare branched tree, well into the air, pouring out his love in bursts of joy, wings vibrating as he soars. Or he may be barely touch a branch as crest raised, tail spread, and rosy rump feathers on end he flutters his wings and sings his long, variable, melodious song comparable with that of a particularly sweet singing canary.

HOUSE IN MUD — This house, once located on a hillside, was almost carried into the St. Lawrence River (background) by a landslide at St. Joachim Tourelle, Que., last December. The hillside contained "quick clay," a composition of fine particles of earth that appear to be solid but can flow like molasses when the water content rises above 50 per cent. (CP Photo)

Hillsides and Level Stretches Of Land Containing Quick Clay Common in Quebec

By GERARD McNEIL

The patter of spring rain has an ominous sound for them, and it always results in close inspection of a nearby hillside.

Last spring the innocent-looking rise was found to be composed of quick clay, the thixotropic stuff nightmares are made of across Quebec.

Thixotropic is derived from the Greek word meaning "to turn by touch." It describes one of nature's oldest phenomena—the process by which solid earth turns to flowing liquid, sometimes at the thump of a foot.

Hillsides and level stretches of land containing quick clay are common in the St. Lawrence Valley. They were left when the Champlain Sea receded after the last great ice age.

Easily recognized, the clay generally is dark blue when wet. It is composed of fine particles and, in its sensitive state, has a low salt content—salt being an important factor in binding the clay particles together.

SOMETIMES HIDDEN

Sometimes such deposits are hidden by topsoil or sand, but an experienced engineer can

Quebec history is full of references to such slides.

The worst occurred in 1908, about 25 miles north of Ottawa, when 33 residents of Notre-Dame-de-la-Salette died in one.

More than $3,000,000 damage was done in 1955 when a section of the town of Nicolet slid into the Nicolet River across the St. Lawrence from Trois-Rivieres. Three residents died.

Norway and Sweden also have recorded such disasters, and 120 residents of Verdal, Norway, were killed in 1898 when 3½ square miles of the city flowed away.

The Quebec natural resources department plans a full study of the situation in the province, with the aim of discouraging settling in danger areas.

Dr. P. E. Auger, the deputy minister, says there are practically no preventive measures that can be taken, once stopping a few million cubic feet of earth is next to impossible.

It surprises him—and almost everybody familiar with the effects of such slides—that many Quebecers are knowingly living in such areas now.

Dr. Auger can't see how any trained person could have allowed a hospital to be built, or any other residence, at St. Jerome site, 115 miles north of Quebec City on the shore of Lac St. Jean.

Residents of Desbiens, in the St. Jerome area, thought volcanoes were erupting during a 1947 slide that caused widespread panic but no deaths.

Yet, says Dr. Auger, the population in the slide areas has increased.

"Les Eboulis," as they are known in Quebec, had their most spectacular recent occurrence at St. Joachim de Tourelle, on Quebec's north Gaspe shore.

As at St. Jerome, cracks were noticed in the earth last spring and there were a few small slides. Residents prepared for the worst but it didn't come.

Since the slides usually occur during the wet spring or autumn months, the disaster last Dec. 11 was unexpected. It was later recalled that a mild autumn was followed by heavy rains.

The slide began at dusk, when a hillside dotted with houses turned to a liquid mass that flowed down a creek bed, buried the Gaspe Highway and a 55-foot-long concrete bridge, and muddied the St. Lawrence.

A few of the houses were carried into the river and another caught fire at the bottom of a 100 - foot - deep chasm. Though those in the houses escaped without injury, four brothers driving into town after dark didn't see the pit where the road had been. Their bodies were recovered from the buried St. Joachim was sliced in two by the slide and its communications wrecked. Numbed residents were hardly able to grasp the extent of the disaster that new December night.

Altogether, more than $500,000 damage was done and more than 200 persons had to be relocated—this work is still under way under the supervision of a Quebec government community planner.

Despite everything, some residents were reluctant to move away from the gulf left by the slide, even after engineers indicated there might be more.

At Shawinigan, 25 miles north of populous Trois - Rivieres on the St. Maurice River, a mass of quick clay has been described as "a potentially dangerous configuration."

A clay dam there was described in the same scientific paper as "a hazard threatening the lower reaches of the St. Maurice River."

About the best a resident of a slide area can do is watch the soil carefully and, like the nuns at St. Jerome, pray that an "act of God" won't occur.

Frightened Prostitutes Aid Hunt for London Murderer

LONDON (AP) — Scores of frightened prostitutes emerged from London's shadier pleasure-grounds today to help Scotland Yard with the case of the river-side nudes.

Twenty - three searched into one police station alone. Others talked to the Yard's murder squad direct or by letter.

The girls came forward to answer the Yard's appeal for help in finding the killer or killers of four street walkers whose naked bodies have been found in or by the Thames over the past six months.

"The appeal's response has been staggering," a senior detective said. "Women who would never have dreamt of talking to a policeman are coming forward all the time."

The Yard's appeal, addressed to all London's 8,000 known prostitutes, asked for information on any of them made to strip or assaulted. It warned that none may be murdered unless the killer is caught soon.

IS ASTONISHED

Commander George Hatherill, head of the Yard's criminal investigation department, said: "I want to get it home to these women that we want to protect them. What has astonished me is that so many women in this profession have been picked up, stripped in a car, then knocked about — and made no complaint."

Detectives said at least seven of the girls who came forward believed they had had dates with the killer.

All said they had been picked up by a car, driven to lonely lanes beside the Thames and ordered to strip.

Four said they refused to disrobe and were beaten nearly unconscious. Then their clothes were torn off by force.

FIND MISSING TWO

A police guard was put on their apartment.

Sports Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

PICTON — Over there in Harvey J. McFarland's favorite ballwick they're added another bargee to their championship halyard and raised it topmast high.

Flattering with two world championship Harmsworth bentlags in the financial-rags-to-timber riches OHA intermediate championship blue ribband won by a courageous club that refused to accept defeat both on the ice and at the box office.

Flaunting defiance in the face of circumstance, Manager Walt Fraser, former sea-going sports impresario, sided and abetted by playing coach Davy Jones, gathered a gaggle of puckizers and tied them together with a monetary sheestring.

Davy is no stranger to championships. Neither are colleagues Lionel Body and Keith MacDonald. All three lent senior OHA, Allan Cup and world championship mementoes to their trophy rooms.

The Fraser-Jones duo added promising younger players to their nucleus of battle-scarred veterans. They dovetailed and welded a Quinte crew that transformed the flagship "Picton" into an effective battle-wagon.

Pilot Jones and skipper Body drew upon championship experience in their selection and operation of the club. They came up with a topflight goalie, a solid defensive bulwark, and platoons of up-front shock troops who were deadly in front of enemy targets.

And don't take this agent's word for that. A glimpse at the "Picton" logbook will substantiate the statement. A single loss in 24 schedule outings reads like the scorebook of the 1927 New York Yankees.

The club operated on a basis that was as amateur as a preliminary bout between two suckling pigsies. There was no surreptitious under-the-table passing of that green lettuce. There were no salary cheques. No bonuses. What other way could it operate when the home office cash registers lots of times laughed sales, not cheques.

The Picton "Jones Boys" brought to McFarlandville the first hockey championship since Champlain's Voyageurs defeated a Mohawk team in front of what is now the Prince Edward Yacht Club.

The team that came closest to a provincial title was the famous "Men of Mohawk" of some four decades ago, but I'm told these boys went to the finals and were defeated.

The Fraser-Jones duo showed early signs of power, born of experience and good coaching. Their schedule record of 21 wins against one defeat sent OHA record-searchers thumbing manuscript archives.

They faltered slightly in the round-robin playoffs with Napanee, winning two and losing two, but struck their stride again to eliminate Trenton RCAF Globestrotters 4-1 in a best of seven series.

They met Thorold in the first round OHA playdowns and this annual-town titled before their powwer. After two crushing defeats the Thorolders said "uncle" and that was that.

Sterner opposition was encountered in the Delhi squad and the Jones Boys had to go all out. They took the best-of-five series in three straight victories.

Then came the Lucan laddies, the Western Ontario champions, a hard-fighting bruising squad that eventually bowed three games to one in the titular series.

In the one game that Lucan won something of a record was set. They scored five goals in a little over two minutes, three of them coming in 31 seconds.

The new champions set a record, I believe, with a seasonal mark of 35 wins as against five defeats... Not bad in any man's league.

SWEDES WIN

ATHENS (AP) — Sweden clinched a first-round European zone Davis Cup round Wednesday with a straight-set victory over Greece in the doubles match. The Swedes won all three sets 6-3 after taking both singles matches Tuesday.

CZECHS ADVANCE

BUDAPEST (AP) — MTK of Budapest blanked Celtic of Glasgow 4-0 Wednesday in a European Cup of Cup winners semi-final match to take their two-game series 4-3. Glasgow had won the first match 3-0 in Glasgow.

Braves' Bonus Baby One-Hits Bucs

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tony Cloninger said he had been throwing curve balls all night to Willie Stargell, so Willie probably wouldn't be looking for another one.

Stargell said Cloninger had been throwing him curve balls all night so he was looking for another one.

But Cloninger, 23-year-old righthander who got a $100,000 bonus from Milwaukee Braves and was expected to start paying dividends this year, went on to pitch a one-hitter for a 1-0 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

In other National League action, Los Angeles Dodgers won their fourth straight game, 7-3 over Houston; Cincinnati Reds, San Francisco Giants dumped Chicago Cubs 4-0 and St. Louis Cardinals edged New York Mets 4-3 in 11 innings. The Philadelphia at Cincinnati game was rained out.

VEALE VICTIM

Victim of Cloninger's one-hitter was Bob Veale, who threw a six-hitter for the Pirates. Felipe Alou singled the only Milwaukee run across in the third.

Don Nottebart of Houston, who had a no - hitter last year, flirted with another against the Dodgers—and it looked for a while as if he might duplicate the feat of Houston's Ken Johnson in pitching a no-hitter and losing. Although he had not allowed a hit, Nottebart trailed 1-0 with two out in the seventh.

Then rookie John Werhas broke it up with a single. Werhas batted in three runs on the night. Another rookie, Nick Willhite, pitched the victory, a five-hitter. He was the latest Dodger to step in an take up the slack left by injuries to Sandy Koufax and Johnny Podres.

The Dodgers, who lifted their season mark to 4-0, have allowed only three runs in their last four games.

MAYS HOT

Willie Mays, off to the greatest start of his career, lifted his batting average to .438 with a triple and two singles. He drove in two Giants to raise his RBI to 20.

Juan Marichal, the Giants ace, won his third game without defeat. He got ninth - inning relief help from Bob Shaw.

Bases on balls got everybody into trouble in the Cards-Mets game. St. Louis starter Bob Gibson walked the first two men and then served up a three-run homer to Tim Harkness of Lachine, Que.

But that was all for the Mets. The Cards pecked away at four New York pitchers. Singles by Dick Groat, Bill White and Ken Boyer got a run in the first and a double by White in the sixth narrowed the gap. Curt Flood singled home the tying run in the seventh.

In the 11th, reliever Larry Bearnarth gave up a single to Boyer and Groat walked Tim McCarver. After a sacrifice, Bearnarth intentionally walked Julivan Javier to load the bases, then walked pinch hitter Geoff Long to force in the winning run.

And They Call It Hockey!

Marlboros Mash Montreal 6-3

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Marlboros are said to carry more beef than any of the teams in the National Hockey League. They used their size to good advantage Wednesday in downing Montreal NDG Maroons 6-3.

The win enabled the Marlboros to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-five Eastern Canada Memorial Cup final series. Fourth game of the set is scheduled here Friday and a fifth game, if necessary, will be played here Saturday.

The winner will meet the defending Memorial Cup champion Edmonton Oil Kings in the first game of a best-of-seven Canadian final Sunday afternoon at either Toronto or Montreal. Toronto started hitting from the opening faceoff and, although they were assessed seven of eight penalties in the first period, they managed to build a 1-0 lead as well as getting four Montreal players out of commission.

Monarchs lost the services of defencemen Jeff Topping and Clement Boudreau and centre Andre Lagueux in the first period. All are expected to be out of action for the remainder of the series. Defenceman Bill Flager suffered a stick cut on his face and missed most of the second period.

HAD LIGAMENTS TORN

Tapping received torn knee ligaments when crashed into the boards in the first minute of play by Toronto's Mike Walton and Boudreau suffered a shoulder separation when he was hit by Ray Winterstein.

Lagueux was carried off the ice on a stretcher minutes later after he was crashed headlong into the boards by Andre Champagne who got a five-minute major. Lagueux was taken to hospital where he was reported to have suffered a concussion.

Peter Stemkowski and Ron Ellis paced the Toronto attack with two goals each. Brit Selby and Wayne Carleton added the others.

Marlboros were overwhelming favorites when the series got underway and lived up to their notices with a 7-1 win in the opener. However, the Monarchs upset Toronto 6-4 in the second game.

Toronto's advantage vanished in the second period when the Monarchs came to life and grabbed a 3-2 lead. The Marlboros added another soon after and the score was tied 3-3 after the second.

Bobby Hull Hurt In Car Crash

DETROIT (AP)—Hockey star Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks suffered serious injuries Wednesday when his car skidded on wet pavement in suburban Allen Park and collided with a semi-trailer truck.

Hull, 25, was admitted to hospital and held overnight, but a spokesman said Hull's only apparent injuries were minor ones to his hands and that he appeared in good shape. He added Hull was being kept for observation only.

Allen Park police said that Dennis Hull of Point Anne, Ont., Hull's hometown, and John Montgomery of Detroit, also in the car, were not hurt.

Tweed Boy Stars in U.S. Hockey

Michael G. Sowden, formerly a student of Tweed High School, recently completed quite a season for himself on the New Lenox Aces hockey team, New London, Conn.

Sowden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sowden, of Long Lake Lodge, Cloyne, joined the United States Coast Guard in November of 1963 and is stationed at New London.

He played goal with the Aces there and was chosen as the league's all-star goalie for the past season. He was presented with a plaque by the league and was also honored by his teammates at a recent dinner in New London.

Bobby Hull Says 1963-4 Team Can Repeat

Come, Come, Mr Imlach

QUEBEC (CP) — George (Punch) Imlach, coach and general - manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, said Wednesday he will return to the Stanley Cup champions in his dual capacity next year if the club wants to offer him a new contract.

Imlach, who has just rounded out a three-year contract with the Leafs, said in an interview he believes the team "has been well served in that time, what with three Stanley Cups in as many years."

Asked if he would seek a longer-term contract and more money, Imlach replied: "You can just get so much in this profession."

Imlach, in Quebec City on private business, said there is no question as far as he is concerned of another man's taking over as Leaf coach while he carries on as general manager.

Referring to the possibility of changes in the Leaf lineup next year, he said the 1963-64 team could win the Stanley Cup in 1964-65.

"Veteran players are the best," he went on, citing especially Johnny Bower, Allan Stanley and Red Kelly.

He called Bower the best goalie in the National Hockey League and said Kelly, who injured his knee in the gruelling final series against Detroit, would be welcomed by the Leafs next year "if he succeeds in proving that he deserves a place on the team."

James Signs Contract With Sasky Riders

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Football Conference announced today that Jerry James, 26-year-old former all-star Winnipeg Blue Bombers fullback, has signed a 1964 contract.

After 10 years with Bombers, James refused to report to their 1963 training camp when contract negotiations failed.

Later in the 1963 season, Winnipeg asked waivers on him and he became a free agent when no Canadian Football League club entered a claim. James did not play any football last year.

He went to Switzerland last fall as supervisor of that country's hockey development program.

Yesterday's Stars

Batting — Willie Mays, San Francisco, smashed a triple and two singles and drove in two runs in the Giants' 4-0 victory over Chicago Cubs. Mays raised his National League leading average to .438 and his leading RBI total to 20.

Pitching — Tony Cloninger, Milwaukee, pitched a one-hitter as the Braves blanked Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0. Cloninger had a no - hitter for 6 2-3 innings.

Belgian Bikeman In Coma

MONTREAL (CP)—Belgium-born Louis de Vos, representing Canada in the international 26-day bicycle race, was in a "deep coma" today at Montreal's Maisonneuve Hospital after smashing head-first into the wooden floor of the bowl-shaped track Wednesday.

Dr. Guy Blanchard, stationed at the Paul Sauve Sport Centre since the races began last Friday night, said de Vos underwent an emergency operation but remained on the critical list.

See 'Dancer' Threat To 'Hill Rise'

History May Repeat

By KELSO STURGEON

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—California, which in years past has seen many of its fine thoroughbreds eating dust—or mud—at the finish of the Kentucky Derby, is making a big move to monopolize the classic for three-year-olds.

Not only a short-priced favorite, Hill Rise, is from George A. Pope Jr.'s El Peco Ranch, located near Madera, Calif. Two years ago Pope's Decidedly won the Derby. Last year Candy Spots, also the California stable of Rex Ellsworth, was the big favorite but finished third.

Hill Rise, who won Tuesday's Derby Trial in a breeze, was expected to top a list of 13 definite starters named today to run in Saturday's $125,000-added 1¼ mile derby. Two other colts were considered possibilities.

Those slated for sure to oppose Hill Rise are Northern Dancer, Quadrangle, Mr. Brush, The Scout, Northern Brother, Dandy K., Mr. Moonlight, Will Had, Inkhodah, Prince Al Darville, Royal Shuck and Extra Swell.

The owners of Clem Pac and He's a Gem also were expected to put up the $250 it took to pass through the entry box today and then decide later whether to start.

The event will be televised starting at 5:30, EDT by the CBC. Post time for the Derby is 5:36.

Hill Rise, with eight straight wins, will be out to add more prestige to West Coast racing and is expected to go off a much stronger favorite than 2-1 morning line.

Swaps, Decidedly and Morvich are the only California breds in 90 years to win the historic race. But there is every indication that this average is going up fast.

SOME SKEPTICS

Kentucky racing hardboots always have been skeptical of California horses. These diehards point to the failure in the Derby of such California-bred horses as Indian Broom in 1958, Terrang in 1956, Silky Sullivan in 1958, Four And Twenty in 1961 and Candy Spots last year.

Two of the Western challengers raced in Canadian colors. Indian Broom being owned by Mahlon Taylor of Vancouver and Four and Twenty by Max Bell of Calgary.

But this year it is the Canadian - bred Northern Dancer, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, that is considered the most likely candidate to repel the California threat.

The northerner remained a big factor in the first jewel of the triple crown, Main Bell stretch Wednesday but did not seriously affect the track The long-range forecast calls for a little more moisture before Derby day.

Leafs Split With Suns, Chiefs Win

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ray Washburn is headed back to the majors, having pitched himself back into shape after a spot of arm trouble, and Toronto Maple Leafs have a chorus of International League players in wishing him all the luck in the world.

The 26-year-old right hander, counted on heavily by St. Louis Cardinals, took the year with Jacksonville Suns after missing a large part of last season with the injury. The Leafs are in a position to confirm that he's ready.

Washburn set them down with two hits, struck out eight and didn't walk a man as he chalked up his second victory in as many starts in the 1-0 opener of a twin bill. The Leafs also got two-hit pitching from Bob Anderson and Dave Ellers but lost when Don Ricketts doubled home Ed Spicale, who had walked, in the fifth inning.

Ron Piche, a native of Verdun, Que., won his second game of the year as Toronto defeated Jacksonville 3-2 in the second game with the help of Sleepy Del Greco's two-run homer in the third inning.

Syracuse Chiefs stayed on top of the standings by outslugging Richmond Virginians 5-3 for their fourth victory in five starts, getting two triples and an inside - the - park home run from Mack Jones to offset El-viro Jiminez' grand-slammer in the eighth inning.

The winless Atlanta Crackers dropped their third and fourth games of the season as Buffalo Bisons whipped them 4-3 and 8-0 in a double-header. A two-run homer by rookie Ron Swoboda gave Buffalo the winning margin in the opener while Dick Ricketts' seven-hit pitching was backed by a 13-hit assault in the nightcap.

Columbus Jets and Rochester Red Wings were rained out.

Bob Lee Flying High
Youthful Angel Flaunts One-Hit Wing

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Lee, who took an automobile ride to notoriety last season, is flying high these days with Los Angeles Angels.

Lee, a rookie right - handed pitcher who jumped to the Angels from Class D competition, won his first major league game Wednesday night, hurling a one-hitter for seven innings as Los Angeles whipped Washington Senators 5-1.

Lee's automobile trip came during the tremendous year he had for Batavia of the New York — Pennsylvania League. Then the property of Pittsburgh Pirates, Lee was called on the pitch in an exhibition game at Cleveland against the Indians.

Pitched 11 Victory

He drove in the game, struck out 16 and rapped two doubles in a 7-1 victory, then drove back to Batavia.

He proceeded to finish the season with a 20-3 record and a 1.76 earned - run average, the best marks in the league.

Actually the rise from Batavia to the Angels was not as meteoric as it might seem. Lee, 20, pitched for the minors for eight years, starting in 1956. His record in that time wasn't even good. Before Batavia, he won 38 games and lost 35.

But now, suddenly, after two starts and 21 innings with Los Angeles, he has compiled a 1.29 earned - run average.

Lee's performance Wednesday night highlighted an American League schedule riddled by rains. Detroit Tigers nipped Kansas City Athletics 5-4 in 10 innings. Add Baltimore Orioles downed Boston Red Sox 4-2 in other games. Rain washed out Chicago at New York and was

THE Arnold Palmer METHOD

CHECK3 TO STOP SWAYING

Early in the golfing season, it is especially easy to lose your balance unconsciously. Tell John Hunt what you're swaying — causing sideways instead of turning — on the backswing. Here are three ways you can detect any sway in your swings:

1. It is a sway the moment you can swing while watching your shoulder. Position yourself so that the shadow of your head overlaps an object, such as a piece of paper. If, during your swing, the object moves outside of the shadow, your head is swaying sideways or up-down. Corrective measures then can be taken.

You can also check for any head movement by swinging while looking at your head's reflection in a window. Try to keep the reflection of your head centered in a window pane.

You can detect hip sway by placing a stick in the ground just to the right of your right hip, as the illustrated player is doing. If you hit the stick with your body on the backswing, you should seek correction for your sway.

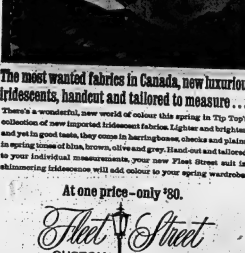
DENIES WHOL FOLDING

SEATTLE (CP) — Al Leader, president of the Western Hockey League Wednesday denied rumors that the league would not be in operation next season. He was commenting on a report from Edmonton that the league would fold. He said he did not expect Edmonton and Calgary to return after a one-year absence, but that the other teams would be back next fall.

Sonny Liston Talks
Thinks Clay Good Runner

DENVER (AP) — Alternately smiling and bitter, dethroned heavyweight champion Sonny Liston told a meeting Wednesday he feels he is entitled to a return fight with Cassius Clay.

"If not," he added, "then any other challenger should fight me before he is allowed to fight Clay."



One fan asked Liston: "Don't you think you made a mistake carrying the fight to Clay? Usually a champion will let the challenger come to him."

"If I had waited for him to come after me we would still be standing in a neutral corner" Liston said. "He runs pretty fast."

Liston was the main attraction at the monthly meeting of the Bronco Quarterback Club, made up of supporters of Denver's American Football League team.

Picks 'Dancer' Third

Arcaro Likes 'Hill Rise'

NEW YORK (AP)—Of Rosaires Noon, the most successful of all jockeys, will be in mufti instead of silks when they saddle up Saturday for the Kentucky Derby but if he could pick his mount it would be Hill Rise.

"This is a big, strong colt—I think he'll take it," said Eddie Arcaro, the 48-year-old millionaire saddleSmith and winner of a record five derbies, in his busy mid-Manhattan office.

"He's got a lot of 'guts' on his record, raced straight, and he proved in the Derby Trial Tuesday that he can go on any kind of track. Besides, Willie Shoemaker rode both Northern Dancer and Hill Rise, and then chose Hill Rise. That's enough for me."

HAD 4,779 WINNERS

In 31 years of racing, the nine-sized native of Cincinnati had 4,779 winners and his mounts earned a record $30,109,543. He is the only man to ride five derby victors—Lawrin, Whirlaway, Hopp Jr., Citation and Hill Gail—and the only one to win the Triple Crown twice. He did it on Whirlaway in 1941 and Citation in 1948.

Arcaro said behind Hill Rise he would pick Quadrangle, winner of the Wood Memorial, for second Saturday and the Canadian - bred Northern Dancer third.

"I stick Northern Dancer in there because of his record—I don't particularly like the horse," he said. "He's a horse that won't pull away. Reminds me a lot of Nashua. He'll beat a lot of humpty dumpties by a neck and give you heart failure.

Crazy Colt Wins Big Handicap

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Baldric II, a "crazy" colt with links to three countries, won the Two Thousand Guineas Wednesday and plunged the English turf in gloom.

Taking the lead at halfway, the 20-to-1 shot from France coasted home clear of Faberge II and Balustrade, both at 28 to 1, with the favored Showdown fourth in a field of 27.

Baldric is about as un-English as he could be. He was bred in the U.S., is owned by Mrs. Howell Jackson of Bull Stad Farm, Va., and is domiciled in France.

As a further blow to Britain, Baldric was trained by an Australian, Eric Fellowes, and ridden by 30-year-old Bill Pyrah, another Aussie, who had his first winner since coming to Europe.

It was a remarkable triumph for Mrs. Jackson, whose Classic record now stands at three for three. She previously won the One Thousand Guineas and Oaks with a filly called Never Too Late.

At a two-year-old Baldric was wild and unruly and had to be fitted with blinkers. Trainer Fellowes, in a post-race interview, called him a "crazy" colt.

But he showed no signs of temperament in contemptuously dismissing the bonnerets Wednesday. His next race will be the Prix Lupin at Longchamp in Paris, after which he will be trained for the Epsom Derby June 3.

The victory was worth £40,301 ($120,900) and was the biggest first-place purse in English racing history.

Patterson Machen July 5th

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson has a plan for the future. Contrary to the opinion of some people, he thinks his future still is ahead of him.

"If I beat Eddie Machen July 5 at Stockholm I am going to try to get Cassius Clay," the former world heavyweight champion said. "I feel I may get the chance. After that, if I am victorious, I want to fight Sonny Liston. Then I shall retire — provided I don't get knocked out in the first round."

Patterson and Machen were at a midtown restaurant yesterday to sign contracts for their 12-round match at 45,000-seat Solna Stadium, a Stockholm football field.

Machen, making a comeback at 31, said he was guaranteed $50,000 plus 30 per cent of the ancillary rights. Patterson, 29, was vague and said he was working on a percentage of everything. It is believed Patterson is getting 40 per cent.

Allan Cup Final

Maroons Try For Third Time

By BOB PARKINS

WINNIPEG (CP) — Coach Gord Simpson of Winnipeg Maroons, facing an unknown quantity in this year's Allan Cup final, expects another strong contender from the East in Woodstock Athletics.

Simpson points to Woodstock's record along the playoff trail. The Athletics won 16 of 19 games and in their final round shattered Ottawa Montagnards in four straight games.

"You have to figure they've got a lot of scoring power," he says. "The East always turns out pretty strong champions, and this won't be an easy series."

Last year the Maroons were beaten in five games by Windsor Bulldogs and in 1961 they lost to Galt Terriers, also in five.

But both those series were in the East. This year Winnipeg will be the site of all games in the best-of-seven series opening Friday.

WON 8 OF 9

Maroons won eight of nine playoff games in marching to their second straight Allan Cup berth. In the Western Canada semi-final they tossed aside Fort Arthur Bearcats in four games, outscoring them 27-6.

In the Western final, they found Saskatoon Quakers not classed as pickups because of an affiliation between Moosomin and Winnipeg Rangers. Ball, a hard-rock defenceman, remains a question mark as he has been asked to try for a spot with Edmonton Oil Kings in their quest of the Memorial Cup.

In the first game 6-1, then took two squeakers 7-6 and 5-4 in overtime. In the fourth game Quakers stayed alive with a 7-5 victory, but Winnipeg snapped back to win the fifth, 6-4.

Aside from pickups, Simpson expects to ice a team neither stronger nor weaker than last year's club. Fred Dunsmore and Reg Abbott were lost due to injury during the season but Simpson feels the addition of Al Johnson, a onetime National Leaguer, and former pro Elliott Chorley has left his team on a par with the 1963 club.

Simpson, a defenceman with last year's club, has bolstered his squad with a small handful of pickups. From junior ranks he has drawn Freeman Anundson and from the intermediate Selkirk Fishermen he chose Leo Kouyk, Harry Breum and Mike Dzakal.

Two other juniors invited out

Sport Snapshots

By ED SIMON

TORONTO (CP) — April 30, 1938, is a date that will still fill an amateur hockey official's eyes with nostalgia.

That was the night 15,617 roaring fans packed Maple Leaf Gardens to watch a Memorial Cup game.

Fire regulations prevent that kind of house at the Gardens today. But it would take a team with three of the Beatles as its first - string forward line and Ringo playing goal to attract comparable business for junior hockey in Toronto nowadays.

The big 1938 crowd didn't even see much of a game. Billy Reay, now the fatherly mentor of Chicago Black Hawks, fired a couple of early goals and St. Boniface Seals went on to walop Oshawa Generals 7-1 and capture the cup by three games to two.

It was an anti-climax to a series that stands out in the memory of many fans in their 40s and over as the most thrilling cup battle in history, in which Reay, a whirling - dervish defenceman named Wally Stanowski and their teammates twice fought back to tie the series before pulling away from the favored Generals.

BIG MONEY-MAKER

Junior hockey was big in those days. The Canadian Hockey Association, braving protests from fans in outlying areas, staged the cup finals at the Gardens at every opportunity and was invariably rewarded by five-figure crowds. Even an Allan Cup final pulled in 13,250 in 1940 to see Kirkland Lake Blue Devils, with Bill Durnan in goal, defeat Calgary Stampeders.

The juniors still sell out in places like Edmonton and Kitchener, where the last two finals were played. But the CAHA still has bitter memories of 1954, when only 2,848 customers found it worth their while to come to the Gardens as the East got its first look at two future National Hockey League stars, Norm Ullman and Johnny Bucyk, in a losing cause as their Edmonton team lost to St. Catharines.

The juniors are back in Toronto this year. And CAHA bigwigs hope for a revival of past glories.

Unless the world comes to an end, the eastern representatives will be Toronto Marlboro, a team packed with all the best prospects in the Maple Leaf chain, who have been toying with their opponents all season long.

Their lineup includes Rod Seiling, the young defenceman the Leafs reluctantly gave New York Rangers as part of the deal that brought them Andy Bathgate and Don McKenney for their successful Stanley Cup bid.

There is also a left winger named Wayne Carleton, whom the Leafs consider their hottest prospect in years. Centre Pete Stemkowski, a Winnipeg expatriate, and right - winger Ron Ellis are others considered ready to step into the NHL lineup as soon as a few of the Leaf veterans' criteries begin to harden.

At the other end of the rink will be Edmonton Oil Kings, defending Memorial Cup champions, loaded with talent from Detroit Red Wings' farm system and as far ahead of their Western opponents as Marlboros were in the East. It shapes up as a younger edition of the spine - tingling Stanley Cup final.

At least, CAHA officials hope it does. They could use the money.

DEMAND GREW ... cent in 1963 to £165,000,000. World demand for British with sales to Canada accounting wool textiles grew by 10 per for about £18,000,000.

Holes Between Garage, House Caused Deaths

TORONTO (CP)—A coroner's jury was told Wednesday 11 hours between a house and attached garage allowed fumes to enter the home and asphyxiate two children.

The jury was investigating the death of Mary Suzanne Downing, 18, asphyxiated in a car in the garage Feb. 22. Another son, 14, and John Charles, 5, two other children of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Downing, were overcome in the house.

The jury found Mary Suzanne's death to be accidental. Carman B. Robbins, a building consultant appraiser, attributed the children's deaths to alterations performed on the home without permits and therefore improperly built. He said all the openings should have been noticed.

The jury recommended more rigid inspection of homes built before building bylaws were revised in 1952.

He also said NORAD is working desperately to achieve an early-warning system against attack by nuclear submarines.

Claims Hollywood Cruel To Many Talented People

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "This is the cruelest town in the world to talent. Hollywood's full of talented people, but hardly anyone will give them a chance to show what they can do."

But the pen business takes up only a part of his day. As most every afternoon and evening he can be found at the Lindy Opera House, a film theatre he converted in a musical showcase for $180,000.

Unlike his businesses, the opera house produces a healthy deficit, which bothers him not a whit.

OPERA SOLD OUT

"We opened in December, and our audiences are growing all the time," Linden said. "Some of our grand opera and our children programs have been sold out. I don't expect that the concerts will ever make a profit, but we will be having a season of light operas which should pay for what we lose on the other events."

One of his greatest pleasures is holding of auditions for new talent.

"Most auditions place all the emphasis on young talent, and I think that is unfortunate," he said. "Producers think that anyone past the age of 24 is not suitable for singing jobs. But there are many singers in their late 30s and 40s who have magnificent voices and deserve a chance to be heard."

Linden sometimes reflects on how his career might have turned if more people had listened to him sing.

"But I didn't have that certain hardness that a singer needs to succeed," he said. "Take John Charles Thomas. He always insisted on being paid in full before every concert. Once in Dallas the management would only come up with a partial payment. The hall was filled, but Thomas didn't sing that night."

Lacking the drive for self-promotion, Linden worked in movie labor unions and his brother's jewelry store in Santa Monica; After the war, Linden went into ball-point pens with only fair success. When a batch of cartridges came out oversized, he devised a disposable pen which sold enormously.

Linden is president of the Lindy Pen Company. He started

Too Little Time Spent On Gen. de Gaulle, the Man

TONIGHT
"DR. STRANGELOVE"
Brought Back by Popular Demand
PENTAGON WAR ROOM

By CYNTHIA LOWEY

NEW YORK (AP)—The first of two hour-long CBS Reports dedicated is an examination of the life and character of Charles de Gaulle spent almost as much time on the recent history of France as it did on the man.

Too much ground had to be covered — the Second World War when de Gaulle led the Free French forces, his return to head the government, political bickering and early retirement, only to return to power in an emergency.

The hour required too much rehashing of well-known events for even the casual students of foreign affairs and too skimpy a fill-in for those unfamiliar with the 73 - year - old French president's stormy career.

Still, it was a brave attempt to help viewers understand better what Collingwood described as "the aloof, imperious, monarchical figure forever in a whirlpool of controversy but whose passionate love of country has never been questioned."

Ed Sullivan isn't the only importer of off-beat English guests. Red Skelton will have The Snobs on his Tuesday night CBS show. They are four 17-year-olds who "sing barbershop harmonize attired in 17th century clothes, including powdered wigs.

Some Cliches Described As Dangerous

TORONTO (CP) — Postmaster-General Nicholson has criticized what he described as "dangerous cliches" — United States domination of Canadian industry and Quebec "contracting out" of Confederation.

"Neither their constant repetition nor the authority of their source can invest them with any relevance," he told the Association of Canadian Advertisers' Incorporated annual conference Wednesday.

Mr. Nicholson said the phrase "American domination" was a "travesty" to ridicule Canadian authority, to shame Canadian national pride . . ."

He said it attempts to assign responsibility for the wealth and power of the U.S. to "subservience or indifference of the Canadian government or to Canada's lesser development," and not to U.S. effort, policy and people.

IS 'NONSENSE'

The cliche that Quebec is "contracting out" of Confederation is "absolute nonsense," Mr. Nicholson said.

"Contracting out' applies to programs of joint federal-provincial jurisdiction, he said. Quebec was claiming its constitutional right to handle certain programs which the British North America Act says are the responsibility of the provinces.

That does not mean separation, nor, for that matter, does it mean any lack of co-operation."

The postmaster-general said Canada welcomes foreign investment, but is concerned about the use to which it is put.

Communists in United States Grabbing for Gimmicks in Their Struggle for Survival

By WILLIAM J. RYAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Open the hammer and sickle symbol of violent revolution. Communists in the United States are trying to — superimpose a picture of "mom's blueberry pie."

Grabbing for gimmicks in its struggle for political survival, the party is trying to produce the respectable, true-blue, all-American Communist.

The party's foundering newspaper, now the twice-weekly Worker, hyped the Communist hand not long ago. It was discussing Premier Khrushchev's 1957 prediction that U.S. grandchildren would "live under socialism." Said the Worker, which once ridiculed capitalists for promising pie in the sky: "Not the Russian socialism, of course, but something all American as mom's blueberry pie."

The picture of blueberry feds betokens a desperate search for a new sales pitch. The old cartoon image of the bomb-wielding, bewhiskered Communist would have to go if the party was to get anywhere in a country with the world's highest living standard.

The party's present low estate, with probably no more than 7,000 mostly aged, unmasked members, came from agonizing years of faithfully mirroring the Soviet party and Politburo. It had tried once before to look American and failed because of its Soviet obsession.

BILLION IN, OUT

Between then, the 1930s, and now, perhaps 1,000,000 Americans filtered into party ranks and then out, never to return. Today there are perhaps several hundred thousand successful businessmen, writers, teachers and people of other professions who once were Communist or close to it.

The framework of the party remains, but "they're just keeping up the franchise," snorted one former leader who quit in disgust.

Inside the U.S. Politburo, then under General Secretary Eugene Dennis, a bitter quarrel raged. Dogmatic old William Z. Foster wanted to throw out Worker editor John Gates as an "anti — Soviet revisionist." In the Worker Gates had denounced the Soviet strangulation of the Hungarian revolt of 1956, another of the rude shocks to the U.S. party's morale. Negro leader Benjamin Davis Jr. blasted Gates' all-out to boost himself against all comers.

FUNDS IN DISPUTE

The two fought about money, too. Those on the losing side wanted to know where all the funds had gone. Foster's wing was not about to part with money if it would help the internal opposition. The party's newspaper was slowly dying, but Foster's wing apparently preferred to let the paper collapse rather than cough up in these circumstances.

In the end, Gates quit the party, as many had before him. Gates had wanted the party to go American again—even to dropping the name Communist to indicate independence from Moscow control.

FAVOR ENSIGN

TORONTO (CP)—The city's board of control voted Wednesday in favor of retaining the Red Ensign as Canada's flag and of informing the federal government of its choice. Controller Allan Lamport put forward a motion that "the ensign is the true flag of Canada."

Plenty of Live Bait Available For Fish Derby

PICTON (Staff) — When the fishermen invade the Bay of Quinte area this weekend for the Chamber of Commerce Opening Derby aided not worry about the availability of bait, live or otherwise.

Larry Nelson and his son Don, who operated the bait store at the Picton Marina last year, are ready for business this year. Last year they were just getting started and some of the "Izaak Waltons" could not get sufficient quantities of live bait.

This year they have on hand 10,000 live minnows and about the same amount of night crawlers, or dew worms.

"The minnows this year are about the best I have ever handled," they told The Ontario Intelligencer on Wednesday. They are all of a nice size and strong. "Lively as can be," he added.

Lorne speaks with authority on bait, as he is recognized as one of the better fishermen in the entire area.

He is pleased to have the bait store open on a "round the clock basis" over the first of May weekend.

Pleads Guilty To Charge of Impairment

PICTON (Staff) — Only one case was heard as Magistrate T. Y. Wills held court here Wednesday morning.

Robert S. Dufeck, 48, 29 Lake Street, Picton, was fined $100 when he pleaded guilty to a charge of ability impaired.

The charge was laid by Picton Constable Ron Roblin after he had investigated a two car accident opposite the Globe Hotel on Main Street at 9.30 p.m. April 28.

The accused was driving west on Main Street, and when he swung sharply to his left to avoid a car that was backing from the angle parking area, he collided with an eastbound car driven by Anthony McLennan, Spring Street. The damage to both cars was estimated at $300.

Ronald F. Woodcock, Belleville charged with robbery with violence, was remanded for one week. This adjournment was granted at the request of William Lee, who will be defending counsel after a medical examination of his client may be procured.

His will appear in court next week, and it is possible that a date will then be set for a preliminary hearing.

SET LOOT FIGURE

MONTREAL (CP)—Latest reports indicate the loot in the March 31 mail truck robbery here was $1,182,000. Police say they now know there was $600,000 in cash and $382,000 in bonds in the bags looted by robbers. Seven masked, armed men stopped a truck carrying mail near the CNR's central station, forced the postal employees into another truck and drove off with the mail truck.

Accused Found Guilty of Wash Trading

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Michael Jay, 40, a Toronto businessman, was convicted by an Ontario Supreme Court jury Wednesday of wash trading in National Hosiery Mills Limited shares during 1960.

Mr. Justice Aird will be sentenced Friday.

The jury, after deliberating for two hours and 40 minutes, found Jay guilty of making 25 separate transactions through seven stock brokers for the purchase of class B voting shares of National Hosiery. He was acquitted on a second count of conducting the transactions through the Toronto Stock Exchange.

Wash trading is an illegal stock manoeuvre which brings no effective change in the control of the shares. Jay was charged with ordering the purchases with the intent to create a false or misleading appearance of active public trading in the stock.
